NAN PATTERSON FLEES TO AVOID A DIVORCE SUIT THREATENED BY HUSBAND

Former Actress Has Disappeared From Her Pittsburgh Haunts.

Believed She Has Sought Seclusion to Avoid a Trial.

Husband Objects to Her Mode of Life in Smoky City.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 2.—Following closely upon the report from Los Angeles, Cal., that she will be made defendant in another divorce suit to be filed by Leon Martin, Nan Patterson has disappeared from the haunts that have known her most since she was released after the second trial for the murder of Caesar Young. Her friends claim she has gone to Washington, D. C., to visit her parents, but there are many who believe she has sought seclusion, fearing that she may be again called upon to face a jury in New York. Rumors have been rife in Pittsburgh for weeks concerning the "good time" the former "Floradora" sisset girl was having. She has been seen frequently at a resort near McKeesport, which is the rendezvous of many young Pittsburghers who seek to evade the restraints of the downtown cafes and other resorts and enjoy the luxuries of "high life" in seclusion. These stories also tell of gay automobile parties, midnight lunches and other pleasures and pleasures that show the young woman has been enjoying life in Pittsburgh to some extent, at least.

A dispatch from Los Angeles, published here, announced that Martin, to whom she was twice married, will sue for divorce, charging that she has refused to live with him, and that he is not satisfied with the way she has been living. Since this report cannot be denied, it is believed that from Washington she has reached her home.

JESSE HALL IN CANADA

President of Belding-Hall Company Watching Financial Developments.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Dismissed by the condition of his financial affairs, and on the verge of a physical breakdown, Jesse H. Hall, president of the Belding-Hall Manufacturing company, is on the other side of the Canadian border awaiting the result of the investigation now being made by the company's creditors. Clay Clement, the actor, with whom Mr. Hall was associated in a theatrical venture, told last evening of accompanying Mr. Hall to Detroit. Developments indicate that the venture of the refrigerator manufacturer into the theatrical business when he backed "Sam Houston" was but a drop in the bucket with this other financial venture. According to Mr. Clement, who left Chicago, the liabilities of the Belding-Hall Manufacturing company are estimated at from $500,000 to $700,000.

Mr. Hall was collaborating with Mr. Clement in writing a play at the time he left Chicago. The liabilities of the Belding-Hall Manufacturing company are estimated at from $500,000 to $700,000.

ASSASSINATION OF THE PREMIER

Of Persia Believed to Have Been Work of Secret Societies.

London, Sept. 2.—It is believed here that the assassination of the Persian premier and minister of the interior, Mirza Ali Akbar Khan, who was shot and instantly killed as he was leaving the national council at Teheran, Aug. 31, was planned by the secret societies which have their headquarters at Bakou, whose members, numbering about 50,000, have bound themselves to uphold the constitution. The societies have collected arms and ammunition, possess considerable funds and through the Persian press have been carrying on a campaign against the late premier, declaring him to be an enemy of the constitution. The Persians in London deplore the assassination, occurring as it has just at the time when the Anglo-Russian agreement gave fresh hope of progress for Persia, the late premier having been a friend of both Russia and Great Britain.

UNREST AT CORRIENTES. Buenos Ayres, Sept. 2.—News of serious unrest in the province of Corrientes has reached here. Armed bands have appeared on the frontier, and a revolution is said to be imminent.

BURGLAR KILLS HIMSELF RATHER THAN BE TAKEN BY A MOB PURSUING HIM

Two Men Were Caught Robbing New Jersey Store.

One of Them Shot Police-man Who Had Made Arrest.

Both Ran and One of Them Succeeded in Escaping.

Lyndhurst, N. J., Sept. 2.—George Cassidy, a policeman, was shot down and killed early today while endeavoring to arrest two burglars who had been caught robbing a store. The burglars were pursued by a crowd and rather than submit to capture, one of them killed himself in a swamp. The other burglar escaped. Cassidy had arrested the men and started with his prisoners for the station house, when one of them drew a revolver from his pocket, and pressing it against Cassidy's coat, pulled the trigger. Cassidy fell dead and the two men ran away. The shooting aroused the neighborhood, and a crowd gave chase. The burglars separated, one of them making for the Passaic river. When the crowd pressed too closely the burglar turned and fired a few shots, but no one was hit. The burglar then ran into the swamp, trying to find a place where he could swim the river, but the mud and slime dragged him down and he became exhausted in his efforts to escape. Realizing he would be captured, he used the last cartridge in his revolver to shoot himself. He was dead when his pursuers reached him.

CLARK TO BE ARBITRATOR

Denver, Sept. 2.—Interstate Commerce Commissioner E. E. Clark has agreed to act as arbitrator of the wage question in dispute between the Western Railway managers and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. He will hear both sides in Chicago between Sept. 10 and 16. Grand Master P. H. Morrissey will appear on behalf of the switchmen, and J. E. ## WIDOW IS IN POSSESSION

Mrs. Mike McDonald Refuses to Leave the Family Residence.

Gains Access to House and Will Not Get Out.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Sick and nearly penniless, Mrs. Dora McDonald, widow of Millionaire "Mike" McDonald, has returned to the family residence at 4601 Drexel boulevard, which her husband had not allowed her to enter since she is alleged to have shot and killed Webster Guerin, her supposed parol. The latest action on the part of the widow has startled the other heirs, who fear it may conceal some legal trick affecting their interests. Every peaceful means possible has been taken to induce her to leave, but without avail, and an armistice has been declared between the contending factions.

NEARLY 9,000 WORKING MEN SHOW STRENGTH OF UNION LABOR MOVEMENT

THE PRINCE IS PLEASED

With Happiness of the Swedish People in United States.

Nowhere Else Has He Seen People Dress So Well.

New York, Sept. 2.—Prince Wilhelm of Sweden at the Hotel Astor gave to the press his first interview since his arrival in America. Before leaving the hotel for a visit to the North German Lloyd docks in Hoboken and Grant's tomb, on which he had planned to lay a wreath, he called the newspaper men to his apartments and shook hands all round. Then, asking the score or more of scribes to be seated, he remarked: "Now, gentlemen, I am ready for you. 'I came over here at the desire of my grandfather, the king, to represent my country at the Jamestown exposition,' he began. 'I have been very busy since I arrived and I notice that everybody in this country is very busy. What struck me most here is that everybody works and everybody seems to be supremely happy. Nowhere else will you see people who seem to enjoy life so much. Nowhere else have I seen people dress so well. This means a great deal about the world. I have seen the people in the cities of England and France and many other countries and nowhere have I seen people so well dressed and happy-looking. The prince's keenest pleasure is over the happiness of the Swedish people who have come to this country. He spoke of the cordial welcome his people always have received in America, and expressed pleasure that they have been able to mingle so successfully with the citizens of the United States. 'Newport was quite a revelation to me. It far surpassed any resort that I have ever seen. I saw the wealthy people there as well as the working people, and both were happy and contented. The owners of the villas there entertained on a lavish scale. 'How about the American women?' someone asked, and the prince replied: 'All the American women I have seen are exceptionally good looking and they dress charmingly, with excellent taste. ## QUEER ACTS OF RECTOR

Attempts to Read Burial Service While Marrying Couple.

When Opposed He Shifts to the Ritual on Baptism.

London, Sept. 2.—Rev. J. H. Taylor, rector of a church at Isle Albottis, county of Somerset, astonished a couple who had gone to him to be married, by reading the funeral and baptism rituals. The opening words of the clergyman were indistinct, but when he read: "I commit these people to the ground," etc., Arthur Bart, the bridegroom, amazed, began expostulating with the minister while the bride wept. The clergyman insisted on resuming the service and this time he began with: "I baptize these people with water." The wedding party then made him desist, and some of its members broke through the line of the minister. They found one who solemnized the marriage. The bishop of Exeter has apologized to the bridegroom, writing him that he regretted the rector's disgraceful conduct.

BLACKMAILER IS SHOT DEAD

While Attempting to Extort Money From a Blairsville Man.

Blairsville, Pa., Sept. 2.—Gueseppe Guesseff, an alleged blackmailer, was shot dead, one companion was arrested and a third escaped, following their attempt to blackmail Frank Cieppino, who was fatally stabbed by one of the Italians. Cieppino is a shoemaker. Late Saturday night as he was about to close his shop, the three men entered and demanded a sum of money. He refused to give them any, and immediately opened fire from a revolver. As he fired, Guesseff fell dead, and one of his companions stabbed Cieppino in the breast. The outrage attracted many persons who gave chase to the two men. One whose name is unknown, was captured by the authorities, who placed him on a freight train and lodged him in jail at Indiana, Pa. It is said the man who escaped was recognized, and hopes for his capture are entertained.

Labor Day Parade Nearly Twelve Blocks in Length.

Fairmount Park is the Scene of Monster Gathering.

Complete Text of Address of Orator John H. Norton.

FACTS ABOUT THE PARADE.

Nearly 9,000 men in line. Fifty-eight unions represented. Parade nearly twelve blocks long. By far the biggest labor demonstration ever seen in Duluth. Probably 25,000 people assembled at Fairmount Park.

Organized labor took possession of the city today and in the big parade through the streets this morning made a splendid showing before thousands of Duluthians lined up on the sidewalks and curb. It was the biggest parade ever given in the history of the city, and between 8,000 and 9,000 men were in line.

With skies of the brightest blue and an atmosphere clear, cool, and invigorating, Labor day opened this morning most favorably for the workingmen whose special holiday it is. Weather Forecaster Richardson kept his promise and a finer day for the big celebration could not have been furnished. His forecast given out yesterday was for cooler weather, partly cloudy, but generally fair.

The Labor day committee has been at work preparing for the celebration for weeks, and yesterday after a joint meeting of the various sub-committees at Kalamazoo hall, S. M. Kieley, the general chairman, expressed the hope that everything was ready for the celebration. All final details had been attended to, and nothing had been left to the last minute.

Assembly on First Street. Long before 8:30, the hour appointed for the start of the big parade, hundreds of union men had assembled on West First street, between Sixth and Third avenues. As the number constantly increased, the men began to line up further up the hill on Third street. The parade started at 9:00 a.m. on First street. The line extended from Third avenue nearly to Seventh, and on each of the avenues there were still more men.

Chief Marshal Kieley and his deputies rode furiously back and forth arranging the several divisions and subsections of the line. It was not until after 6 o'clock that the big parade finally got in motion. Just before the line started, one of the union leaders estimated that there were nearly 9,000 men, but this is considered putting it pretty strong.

Headed by the usual platoon of mounted police, followed by the G. A. R. drum corps, the first division started at 9:15 and within five minutes every man in the long line was in motion marching to the music of half a dozen bands, well interspersed in the different sections.

John H. Norton, county attorney, who will deliver the address of the day at Fairmount park this afternoon, occupied a carriage near the head of the parade. In the same carriage were Mayor Cullum and William J. Hunt, president of the trades assembly. Duluth's central labor body. Another carriage contained members of the city council and other prominent citizens.

The trades assembly occupied the place of honor following the carriage and with a brilliant silk banner and new white badges made an imposing sight. Next in line were the members of the new union of ore dock workers organized only a few weeks ago after the big strike on the docks. This was probably the biggest union in the parade and the strike was displayed was visible.

"We have just 62 men in line from the Duluth union and there are several hundred more from the Two Harbors local," said one of the members as the parade was getting under way.

No Telegraphers in Line. For some reason the union of telegraphers, who are now on strike, did not show up and the parade had to go without them. They were to have been given a place of honor in the line on account of the strike, which is being waged by them.

Following the ore handlers in the line found the other unions in the city came marching in good order. It is said that practically every labor organization in the city was represented this morning. To be exact there were fifty-eight unions in the parade.

A number of the unions had secured special uniforms and the members put up an excellent appearance as they filed by. The union of bakers and confectioners, half a hundred strong, were uniformed all in white and were about as neat and clean looking a bunch as any in the parade. The bakers were also in white and looked well. Other unions uniformed according to their trade were the blacksmiths, carpenters and joiners, builders, laborers, lathe men, and other organizations.

Among the features was the big advertising float of the United Garment Workers' union, organized last spring. Big and little shirts and overalls, each with a union label, were displayed and the occupants of the wagon were throwing out little souvenir overalls to the children along the streets. Following this float was a big curtil occupied by a score or more of the attractive women members of the garment workers' organization, representing a blacksmith shop, with the forge in working order and several big brawny smiths at work shoeing a pony, was another feature which attracted much of the crowd.

POLICE FIND STOLEN RIG

Thief Not Yet in Custody, Though Search Is Thorough.

The police succeeded yesterday in locating the carriage belonging to the Board of Trade, which was taken by August Carlson. The rig was found in the rear of the Delmont hotel, at 706 West Superior street, where Carlson had hidden it after selling the horse. In the carriage, when it was found were two grips containing Carlson's clothing.

One clue that the police had concerning the supposed movements of Carlson after his escape proved unsuccessful. It was reported that a man answering Carlson's description hired a rig from Dahl Bros. at 610 Superior Saturday evening to drive to South France. The rig did not get back yesterday, but was returned this morning.

Carlson hired the horse at the Board of Trade Friday night and failing to return, the police were notified Saturday. A diligent search was instituted and late in the day detectives located the horse, a little bay, through Arvid Newquist, who stated that he had purchased the animal of August Carlson and subsequently sold it to another party for $5.

The detectives followed the clue thus afforded and located the third party in the deal who still had the horse in his possession. But the rig was not there and had been stolen from him, according to his statement and he had no idea by whom. Newquist later returned the $5 to the third man and since then the search has been a close one for Carlson.

TWENTY DAYS FOR FREEMAN

Jailed for Throwing Cuspidor Through Plate Glass Mirror.

The saloon of Paul Magnusson, 59 West Superior street, was the scene of a rather lively fracas Saturday night when August Freeman, known as "The Terrible Swede," to many because of his prowess and inclination to engage in brawls, started in to clean out the place.

Freeman started a row in the saloon and when the proprietor objected hurled a cuspidor at the head, missing it, but smacking the big plate glass mirror behind the bar into a thousand pieces.

Patrolmen Carter and Wamvik, reinforced by Sergeant Gilson located the "Terrible One" in a saloon near by and after considerable of a tussle succeeded in overpowering Freeman. He was handcuffed and marched to the police station, where he spent the night and Sunday. This morning he was arraigned in court on the charge of being drunk and disorderly before Judge Cutting. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a 20-day term in the county jail.

ON THE IRON RANGES

IRON UNDERLIES THE POOR FARM

Itasca County to Dispose of Metal on Royalty Basis.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Sept. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The discovery of iron under the Itasca county poor farm, and the deal just closed between the county commissioners and a company of Grand Rapids men for working the mine on a royalty basis, has created quite a flurry in local mining circles and aroused a deep interest in the future possibilities of this section. The county commissioners have signed the papers, granting the right to extract the iron ore under the poor farm, and work developing the property will proceed at once.

John Ellis and Ernest Romer, representing a company of Grand Rapids men, are the grantees. By the terms of the lease, the county will receive 25 cents for each ton of ore mined from the 160 acres of four government subdivisions. Under the terms of the lease not less than 10,000 tons are to be taken from each subdivision, and the company is bound to begin operations within ninety days from the date of the lease. After the first two years 20,000 tons must be produced from each forty. The time of the lease is unlimited. The company is bound in the sum of $10,000 to fulfill its part of the contract. The action was made by the unanimous vote of the board.

The farm cost the county only $4,000, which was considered a very high price. It is said the bed of Deschambeau under the farm is a very large one, and will last for the operations of a lifetime, which will be a godsend to the debt-burdened county, and will be the cause of building up a fine city here.

THE SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Duluth Clergymen Devote Their Sunday Sermons to Topic.

Minister Says Conditions on Range Rival Those in Russia.

The social conditions and problems were touched upon by a number of the local clergy in their sermons yesterday preliminary to the Labor day celebration of today.

At the First Unitarian church Rev. Kerby S. Miller, the pastor, preached on the topic, "The Social Outlook." It was Mr. Miller's first sermon after his several weeks' vacation. In his opening remarks he paid tribute to R. C. Mitchell, the veteran Duluth editor, who died a few weeks ago, and signified his intention at some future date of preaching a sermon in which he would deal with the deceased's life more fully.

Mr. Miller claimed that the social conditions have caused an upheaval all over the world, not only in this country but in many of the old countries and of late in Mexico. He said that France, at the present time has a government controlled by the Socialists, that the Socialists have a firm grip in Germany and have developed a great deal of strength even in the English parliament.

Coming nearer home Mr. Miller maintained that capital is exploiting labor in many places in this country, notably the iron ranges, where, he claimed, conditions are as bad today as they are in Russia.

Rev. John W. Powell, pastor of the Episcopal Methodist church, in his sermon on the topic, "The Social Outlook," also touched upon the social conditions of the world. He claimed that it is not a local, but a world-wide problem and that it is the natural outcome of the democratic idea of the people. He argued that the people are entitled to a share of the world's political power and now desiring of grasping some of the world's wealth.

Mr. Powell took up the Socialistic theory of the solution of the problem and argued that the weakness of Socialism is that they do not allow for the different capacities of the people and for the difference in their contribution to the world's production. He claimed that the Socialistic doctrine does not offer anything for thrift and industry but on the contrary, puts a premium on the lack of effort.

Mr. Powell referred to certain ethics that should be kept in mind while attempting to work out the solution of the social problem. The first of these are the simple principles of honesty, righteousness which must be enforced in all business life. He spoke of the many people who are forced to close with the thought that as good citizens all should have an effort for the enforcement of the laws.

For a mild, easy action of the bowels, a single dose of Doan's Regulator is enough. Treatment cures habitual constipation as fast as a box of your favorite for them.

LONG TRIP FOR NOTHING

Through a mistake on the part of the telephone company or some one's strange, weird ideas of a practical joke, Horace Ingersoll of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mrs. Adelbert Ingersoll, his sister-in-law, made a flying trip from the Michigan town to Duluth, because they thought that their brother-in-law, who was at Duluth, was at Hibbing, Minn., as a result of a railroad accident in which he had lost both his legs.

Mrs. Ingersoll received a telegram last week saying that her husband had met with an accident and she started at once for Duluth, accompanied by her brother-in-law.

When they reached Duluth, they went to the home of Mr. Ingersoll's uncle, W. H. Longstreet, before starting for Hibbing. Mr. Longstreet was surprised to learn of the accident and he immediately telegraphed to the telephone company.

After delays, which seemed endless to the frantic wife, who had been almost prostrated by the shock of the accident, Mr. Longstreet succeeded in locating his nephew at Hibbing. That gentleman was overcome by surprise when he learned of the telegram and its import, and said that he had not been doing his work as usual. He was told the whole story, but was unable to do any light upon the matter of the telegram.

Mrs. Ingersoll and her brother-in-law were employed to learn that Adelbert was unhurt. They decided to stay in Duluth and rest, and Mr. Ingersoll came down from Hibbing today to join them.

Every member of the family was greatly incensed about the telegram and Mr. Longstreet has taken steps to have it traced to its sender. It was sent to Mrs. Ingersoll at Grand Rapids, Mich., and was signed "Jennie," but she was in Duluth at the time and did not send the telegram. The text of the telegram follows:

"Jennie" badly hurt. Both legs cut off. Come at once."

It was sent from Hibbing. No clue as to the sender or the cruel missive has been found yet, but an investigation is being made.

Mrs. Ingersoll and her husband's brother are so overjoyed at finding Mr. Ingersoll unhurt, however, that they have forgotten the worry of the trying trip from Grand Rapids.

prince's engagement, he laughed heartily. He was then asked what he thought of the American navy, and he replied: "The American ships of war are of a splendid type, so far as I have seen." But he could not be persuaded to enter into any comparisons between American men-of-war and those of European powers, saying:

"That would not be diplomatic."

The prince spoke enthusiastically about the Swedish fleet and said of his own ship: "It is quite new, entirely Swedish built, of Swedish steel and fitted with Swedish guns, and she is one of the fastest cruisers afloat, making twenty-three knots an hour. We have a dozen fine battleships for coast defense."

Here somebody broke in with the observation:

"The prince has few enemies."

"Ah," replied the prince, with a smile, "Sweden has no enemies."

"How about the newspapers, prince?" was asked.

He laughed and observed: "That's the hardest question that has been put to me yet. What can I say?"

The newspapers of New York are really very clever. They show great enterprise."

"Have they told any untruths about you yet?" one of the interviewers asked.

"Oh, well, a few," he answered laughingly. "But so long as they are nice lies it doesn't matter."

ORE DOCKS' TO EXTEND BUSY DAY

Many Big Boats Were Vessel Owners Want More Given Cargoes on Stations on Great Saturday. Lakes.

Good Dispatch is Given One Will Probably Soon be Established in Duluth.

Saturday was one of the busiest days on record at the Duluth ore docks. There was a big fleet waiting to take out ore and the vessel agents were all anxious to get their boats out before 6 o'clock yesterday morning in order to avoid the two or three day wait on account of Labor day.

Twenty big boats were loaded at the Duluth docks in the period of twenty-two hours and this is considered to be a fast day's work. Yesterday morning the docks were shut down for two days and as a result there is quite a fleet of boats which is being held over. These will probably not get away before tomorrow night or Wednesday morning.

It is claimed that there has been some misapprehension at the Lake Erie ports about the long time required to get the boats out of port here.

Officials of the Duluth docks claim they are loading the boats in very good time and that only a few of them are obliged to wait at this end. Judged by the time taken at the docks on Saturday the average time of loading is very good as present.

The boats will probably be badly bunched at both ends of the route after Labor day and conditions will not be normal again for several weeks.

Come! Let ball games on all day every day for a family. Launch rides up the river.

Boat races in Lester. Chester, Lincoln and Fairmount parks.

Evening excursions on the lake.

Hunting expeditions to points within a radius of fifty miles of Duluth.

Whether you have 25 cents or $50 to spend on a Labor day celebration, Duluth offers unlimited opportunities for pleasure today.

The day broke clear and cool, and it is ideal weather for outings of all kinds.

Probably 90 per cent of the people of Duluth are enjoying a holiday today and the other 10 per cent are providing the amusement.

The cheapest and most popular form of amusement for a family is a basket picnic in one of the parks. It involves no additional outlay, but carefree, and even this is not necessary, as there is a park within walking distance of almost any part of the city.

Many who will spend the day at outside pleasure resorts left Friday night, intending to take advantage of the three days of the Labor day.

The copper brokers' office were closed on Saturday as well as today, and this allowed all whose business is connected with stocks or grain, to enjoy a three days' vacation.

The season's amusement in the way of sports will find plenty to entertain him today. In nearly every portion of the city there will be some sort of game in progress, and the events on the cards are of such a diversified nature that there will be amusement for all.

At Athletic ark, a double-header will be played by the Duluth and Houghton teams of the Northern Copper Country league. The two teams are running closely for second place and a decision can only be reached today by one of the teams winning both games. The first game will be played at 2:30 and the second at 4 o'clock.

The annual cruise of the Duluth Yacht club takes place today. A large number of yachts and launches will be out today, and the day will be spent along with several of his friends, in a big fellow, who knew him, accosted him. The man weighed about 300 pounds and Paul is a slight fellow about 125. There were a few words, in which the big man was under the influence of liquor, questioned Paul's ability and started in to prove he could dispose of him. Paul wasn't looking for trouble, but when the big fellow started at him, he cut loose. Three times he swung and three times the fellow was down. Paul's face was covered with blood, he wanted more, but Paul left and with a badly damaged conscience, he would be right out on his back. No policeman happened along, so the drunk escaped.

PRELIMINARY SKIRMISH OF RAILROADS VS. STATE ON RATE QUESTION ON

Judge Lochren Hears Application of Stockholders.

To Prevent State From Enforcing Laws of Last Legislature.

Question of Right of State to Make Rates Involved.

St. Paul, Sept. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge William Lochren in the United States district court today began hearing the arguments in the matter of the application of the stockholders of the railroad operating in Minnesota for a temporary injunction restraining the state from attempting to enforce the commodity rates contained in a law passed by the legislature last winter with the 2-cent passenger rate law and the merchandise rates ordered by the railroad and warehouse commission last year.

The hearing today is on the application for a temporary injunction pending the final judgment. Some time ago Attorney General E. T. Young entered a motion for the dismissal of the suit as against him on the ground that by making him a party defendant, the suit was in fact against the state, and hence against the constitutional provision exempting the state from being sued without its consent. This motion Judge Lochren denied, and the case now comes up on the question of the issuance of the preliminary injunction.

On this hearing it develops upon the complaints to make out a prima facie case. Affidavits were presented for the purpose of showing that the merits of the case are such that they have a reasonable probability of winning in the end. The hearing now is on the sufficiency of the prima facie showing to entitle them to the preliminary injunction.

While the question to be settled in the hearing is merely in the nature of a preliminary skirmish in the great battle, it is a question of vital importance to the vital questions involved. The question of the right of the state to regulate rates is one of the most important in the state, involved in these cases, is the same question which is now being fought out in the courts in other states.

WEYERHAEUSER NOT OUT OF IT

Says Secretary Garfield
as to Lumber Trust Prosecutions.

Cleveland, Sept. 3.—Secretary of the Interior Garfield, in an interview in his home, on his return from a conference with President Roosevelt, outlined the administration's next great clash with the trusts. The lumber trust is to be the next foe with which the Roosevelt administration will measure swords, said Mr. Garfield, who talked freely of the intention to wage a campaign to prevent combinations in restraint of trade in the lumber industry, intimating that prosecutions would follow in the effort to preserve the forests and to abolish monopoly.

Mr. Garfield said he would be actively interested in the campaign, although the real battle would be waged by the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce and labor and by the inland waterways commission, headed by Representative Burton of this city.

"Our investigation," said Mr. Garfield, "has brought to light the fact that there is a trust in the lumber industry. I cannot say when the first action will be commenced. I presume a move to take to the courts will be made before the interstate commerce commission. The lumber business is a national institution, and one interest now controls the entire business."

"Who is that?" was asked.

Mr. Garfield only smiled when James J. Hill was mentioned, but he remarked: "I will say that the Weyerhaeuser, who formerly openly controlled the market, are not out of it. The Weyerhaeusers are a type among the lumber holders, and still are perhaps the largest owners."

"It is for the government to correct illegal combinations of lumbermen who have joined together in any way to restrain trade. The government will not be lenient where any criminality is apparent."

A WOMAN AERONAUT HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Myrtle Rydell, a 17-year-old aeronaut, narrowly escaped death in making a balloon ascension at Midway park here. When 300 feet in the air the balloon caught fire and the hot air escaping, it fell rapidly. Several thousand persons in the park expected to see the young woman dashed to death, but she luckily fell into thick foliage of a tree. She escaped with a few scratches.

SEVEN BIRDS ON STEAMER.

New York, Sept. 3.—Though the Red Star liner Kronland is a speedy ship, a flock of seven storks caught her on the trip just completed across the Atlantic. One bird occurred in the cabin and six in the steerage.

QUESTION OF DUTIES

On Imported Pearls Will be Heard by Appraisers.

Matter of Much Interest to Purchasers of Jewels Abroad.

New York, Sept. 3.—The board of United States general appraisers will hear this morning the Customs and Tariff cases involving the question of duties on collections of drilled pearls. Importing jewelers and persons who contemplate the purchase of necklaces abroad await the outcome with special interest, for if the government wins, the duty on such jewels will be 60 per cent; if the importers win the duty will be only 10 per cent.

The necklace question has worried importers and people who buy pearls abroad, for the last six or eight years. The tariff law imposes a 10 per cent duty on pearls in their natural condition, not set nor strung. The claim for a 60 per cent duty is imposed by the so-called jewelry clause of the tariff. A completed necklace, it is admitted, is an article of jewelry, and the government asserts that even though the pearls of a necklace are temporarily unstrung and imported in that condition they are dutiable at 60 per cent.

The Citron necklace is valued abroad at $20,000, and the government's claim of additional duties on it amounts to $10,000. The pearls were brought to New York a year ago by Bernard Citron, who delivered them to Mrs. William Leeds.

The Tiffany pearls were selected in Paris in 1865 by Morris Cuggenheim, the executive officer of the American Smelting and Refining company. The valuation abroad was $15,000, and as 10 per cent duties was paid, the suit is to recover upward of $8,000.

Which ever way the general appraisers give their decision there will be an appeal to the courts, but the board's ruling will be looked upon as important in affecting the practice while the litigation is in progress.

LIPTON IN STORM.

Sir Thomas and Guests Have Rough Time Off South Sea.

London, Sept. 3.—Sir Thomas Lipton and a party of guests have arrived at Southampton on the steam yacht Erin. Lipton left Belfast last Thursday for Dublin, and his non-arrival at the latter port had given rise to rumors that he had started for the United States.

Sir Thomas and his guests had a lively experience off South sea. They had boarded the schooner yacht Ceylon and were at luncheon when a storm arose which caused the boat to heel dangerously. Dishes, chairs, etc., were thrown about and smashed. The party returned to the Erin as soon as the squall abated.

HAS NOVEL PLAN.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 3.—Edward H. Dunham has adopted a novel plan to increase attendance at the Third Presbyterian Sunday school, of which he is superintendent. He will appoint a recording committee of the prettiest girls for each Sunday's session, for the purpose of shaking hands and welcoming all comers.

PRINCE CANNOT VISIT MINNESOTA

Says He is Sorry He Cannot Come to West.

New York, Sept. 3.—"I'm very sorry I can see no more of the United States than the Eastern edge, and particularly sorry I cannot go into the upper valley of the Mississippi where so many of my countrymen have settled and won distinction in public and business life."

So said Prince Wilhelm to a reporter in his apartments in Hotel Astor.

When the reporter told him of his contention, Prince Wilhelm jumped up and shook hands with him again.

"From Minnesota," he exclaimed, "I'm very glad to greet you. We in Sweden know much about your part of the United States, more perhaps than of any other. Our people have so many connections there and we are proud of those who have gone from the fatherland to Minnesota, Wisconsin, the Dakotas and other states in that section and taken an important part in public affairs. We have heard much about them and they have been favorable reports. A Swede is governor of your state, I think, and another represents you in the United States senate, and several in the lower house, am I not right?"

"Ah, I should be especially glad to visit that part of America. Can I greet them from here? Yes, perhaps, your telegram will carry my greetings to my countrymen in Minnesota. I wish you would say that my grandfather, my father and myself think kindly of the Swedes in America and wish them continued success."

MADMAN ON A STEAMER

He Breaks Into Woman's Stateroom While Crossing the Atlantic.

Finally Overpowered and Placed in Irons—Is Insane.

New York, Sept. 3.—When the French liner La Lorraine arrived this port, Paul Jouget, one of the first cabin passengers, said to be the son of a wealthy Frenchman, was a prisoner in irons. Jouget came from Paris, and when he boarded the vessel at Havre had with him a large amount of baggage and $2,500 in American money. The first three days he kept apart from the other passengers, and appeared on deck only when it was practically deserted.

Late on Wednesday night the stewards on the night watch were aroused by a crash followed by screams for help, which they discovered came from the stateroom of a woman passenger. Several men rushed to the stateroom and found the woman grappling with Jouget, who had broken down the door.

As soon as the stewards appeared Jouget turned on them. He is a man of powerful physique and bowled them over like ninepins. The terrified cries of the woman had aroused nearly every passenger on the vessel, and in a few minutes the Frenchman was hemmed in the narrow passage way and overpowered, but not until he had inflicted many hard knocks and black eyes. Although bound hand and foot, Jouget struggled and raved continually. Capt. Poncet ordered him taken below and placed in irons, while Dr. Vigie attended him.

When La Lorraine reached quarantine the man was turned over to the health authorities, the doctor who examined him pronouncing him insane. He will be sent back to France. The officers of the ship refused to tell the name of the woman whose stateroom was broken into.

RACES SENT

Police Seize Outfit Used by the Track Gamblers.

New York, Sept. 3.—A wireless outfit which the police believe was used for transmitting racing news to the pool rooms of New York city, was seized in a cottage near the Speersdown Bay race track yesterday. Two men were arrested in the apartment.

The fact that the race track managers withheld racing news for a stated period in order to make it of little value to pool rooms, has led to many ingenious schemes to get the coveted information. The wireless method was the latest. A cottage overlooking the track was hired, and experts, with the aid of a powerful telescope, collected such information as was desired. As the telephone and telegraph wires in the tracks were closely guarded, the wireless system was resorted to by the pool room agents to get the news through to the city.

New York, Sept. 3.—A new law, making it possible for a professional thief, who has been convicted more than once, to be arrested when loitering in a public place or riding in a public vehicle, and who can be sentenced to six months in prison, went into effect yesterday.

Last night the Central office men who watched the street cars for pickpockets were instructed to bring in all the men they believed to be thieves. Thirty of them were locked up at headquarters.

The police say they are sure they can prove that more than half the number answered the requirements of the new law.

SUIT OF GOVERNMENT TO CRUSH THE STANDARD OIL OCTOPUS IS POSTPONED

Life of Company at Stake

Paul Chief Attorney for Government.

New York, Sept. 3.—The hearing of the suit of the United States government against the Standard Oil company was postponed today until next Thursday.

New York, Sept. 3.—An important legal proceeding, which may have far reaching results, is to be called in the federal building today. The case is the suit in equity brought by the government in St. Louis against the Standard Oil company, by which the government seeks to dissolve the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and to enjoin it from receiving rebates and discriminating rates. The defendants are John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, John D. Archibald, H. H. Rogers, C. M. Pratt and seventy corporations of which the New Jersey corporation is the holding company. This includes the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which was recently fined more than $25,000,000 by Judge Landis.

Former Judge Franklin Ferris, appointed by the United States circuit court of St. Louis, will sit as master to hear the testimony that is to be taken in this city. The government's chief lawyer is Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, who has been appointed a deputy attorney general for the purpose of conducting the examination of witnesses. He will be assisted by B. Morrison, ex-United States attorney of Illinois. Many witnesses have been subpoenaed and it is likely that some prominent men are included, but who the witnesses are will not be divulged until the hearing is in progress.

The Standard Oil company will be represented by a distinguished array of counsel. It was reported today that they would ask for a postponement on the plea that they had not had sufficient time to prepare their case, but the government officials have indicated that they would fight against an adjournment.

The proceedings, it is stated, will involve the very life of the Standard Oil company, so that a battle royal is expected. Hearing will be heard in several cities after the work here is over.

LOST MONEY FOR BRIDAL TOUR

Put $1,500 in Hat and Could Not Find
It.

Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 3.—Edward Nacher, 65 years old of Edwardsville, and Mrs. Louisa Hartman of Alton were married in Edwardsville Friday, and Saturday night when they were about to start on their honeymoon, Mr. Nacher lost the $1,500 he had set aside for the trip. The wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. Nacher's daughter, Mrs. George Dunstetter. The couple prepared to start for Switzerland for several months. Mr. Nacher went to the bank and drew $1,500. He placed this in his hat and returned. While the carriage waited for the bride, Mr. Nacher looked for his money and could not find it. He searched every pocket, looked through suit cases and a cottage near the Speersdown Bay race track yesterday. Two men were arrested in the apartment.

The fact that the race track managers withheld racing news for a stated period in order to make it of little value to pool rooms, has led to many ingenious schemes to get the coveted information. The wireless method was the latest. A cottage overlooking the track was hired, and experts, with the aid of a powerful telescope, collected such information as was desired. It will be completely lighted by electricity and will possess a small railroad running along its side.

TO HAVE ONE OWNERSHIP

New York, Sept. 3.—The stockholders of the Great Northern Railway company at the annual meeting to be held in this city, on Oct. 1, will be asked to vote on a proposition that the Great Northern shall acquire, subject to existing liens, all the properties of the subsidiary companies. In a letter to stockholders, Chairman J. J. Hill of the board of directors, says the directors consider the change desirable, as it will consolidate the ownership of the property and simplify the management of the system. "The Great Northern Railway company now controls the various companies constituting its railway system through the ownership of their stock," says Mr. Hill's letter. "The proposition to be submitted for your action at the annual meeting for the purpose of acquiring the railways and properties of these subsidiary companies as outlined in the formal notice of the meeting sent you herewith, is to substitute for the present form of ownership of their stocks a direct ownership of the railways and properties by the Great Northern Railway company."

The proposition is to wipe out the corporate existence of the small lines and merge them with the operating company. Some of these lines are: The St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba; Eastern Railway of Minnesota; Willmar and Sioux Falls railway; Park Rapids & Leech Lake railway; Minneapolis & Great Northern railway; Duluth, Watertown & Pacific railway; Dakota & Great Northern railway;

TURNER DIES OF INJURIES

Charles Turner, who was committed to the insane asylum for this county about ten days ago, and who leaped from a moving train while en route, died of his injuries in St. Joseph's hospital at Brainerd, Minn., Saturday morning.

Turner, who in recent years made his home in West Duluth, was a character pretty well known to the authorities of St. Louis and St. Paul. He was a heavy drinker, and on numerous occasions was taken in charge by the authorities of the two counties on convictions for drunkenness. His habits finally caused his mind to give way, and he was ordered to the asylum at Fergus Falls.

While on the train, near Aitkin, Turner jumped through the car window. The train was stopped immediately and the injured man was taken to the hospital. He lived about a week.

It is not known yet what disposition will be made of his remains.

Charges Husband With Abusing Her When Drunk.

Mrs. Anna Nygaard appeared at the West Duluth police station this morning and swore out a complaint before Justice Plack against her husband, William Nygaard, whom she charges with drunkenness and cruelty to her.

She said she feared that some time, in a drunken frenzy, he would kill her, and she asked that she be given protection.

START ON RAMSEY.

Contractor Patrick McDonnell has made a start on Ramsey street. People living along the district to be paved were well pleased this morning when three or four men began to dig a furrow in the surface and prepare for the larger force to come later. After long waiting, discussions and delays, they see the possibility of the street being paved this year.

The telephone companies have also recognized the need for action, and they have begun to move their poles back off the street and behind the curb line. The hydrants are being moved, and the curb stone is on a side track ready for use. Contractor McDonnell says he will have a big force at work within a few days, and he will have the pavement completed within the time allotted to him.

BIG DOSE OF MORPHINE

Nearly Ended the Life of Mrs. Eugene Fiskett.

Tired of life and despondent because she had been suffering for several weeks from a seemingly incurable cold and throat trouble, Mrs. Eugene Fiskett, 322 West Fifth street, attempted suicide by taking morphine at the Union depot, yesterday.

She was discovered, however, before the deadly drug had taken effect, and after a physician was summoned, and a stomach pump used upon the woman, she was soon able to proceed to her home little the worse for her adventure.

Mrs. Fiskett is the wife of Eugene Fiskett, formerly leader of the Newsboys' Marine band, who now keeps a small confectionery store at 507½ West Superior street. For the past three or four weeks Mrs. Fiskett has been ill with a bad cold and throat trouble, and could not eat much. She had appeared moody and despondent, but her husband did not think she would do anything desperate.

According to Mr. Fiskett's story his wife visited him at his store yesterday afternoon, and at about 2 o'clock she said that she was going away. She left the store and had not been gone long before Mr. Fiskett began to fear something was wrong, and followed her.

He went immediately to the Union depot, as his wife had often gone there with the intention of leaving town. He found her there, and she returned with him to the store, where she wrote a letter and then went out again.

Then she again went back to the depot, and went into the lavatory, where she remained about five minutes. She soon came out and was met by her husband, to whom she said she had taken morphine, because she wanted to die easily, as she was tired of life.

A doctor was immediately summoned, and by means of a stomach pump the poisonous drug was extracted before it had taken effect. She was soon taken home, and rested quietly last night and was none the worse for the adventure this morning.

The letter which she had written while at the store was addressed to her father, L. Massucci, at Eveleth, Minn., and told him why she was killing herself.

When seen this morning, Mrs. Fiskett said that she was tired of hav-

Autumn Fashions for 1907

Promenading Fifth Avenue, Chestnut or State Street, you would drink in with eagerness the stunning creations that have made those busy thoroughfares the watchword of Fashion. Mentally, perhaps, you would add—why can't I get such lovely things at home?

Bless you, they are all here at Silberstein's. This Duluth Store portrays the dictum of Paris as faithfully as the smartest shop on Fifth avenue.

It is already filling up with Paris-endorsed Fashions for 1907.

Take the NEW SUITS for instance. They transform the cases in which they live into a natural autumn color.

The charm of simplicity was never exemplified to better advantage than in these new tailored beauties for Fall. Rich stuffs of every hue faultlessly tailored in plain fashion that rounds out the curves of the figure and heightens individuality. There is a splendid little suit of lustrous black broadcloth at $37.50 which somebody will miss. It is regally plain and as conservative as any Duluthian could wish.

PRINCESS DRESSES too.

Quite a few little "Princesses" have already made themselves comfortable in their new home—evacuated by their dethroned summer cousins. A bare mention of the new GOWNS, OPERA COATS, DRESSES, SKIRTS and other new things would be an injustice they do not deserve. It won't help matters much maybe to say they are delightfully different from previous conceptions, but veracity sanctions the assertion.

If you would see them at their best, interview them in their fashionable quarters on our second floor—any time this week.

The Alteration Rooms

are transformed into a cosmopolitan tailor shop. It now occupies twice its former floor space. A growing business made this enlargement imperative. With the greater facilities that larger quarters and additional trained needleworkers give we can serve the public better than ever before.

Patrons may expect prompt and efficient service—eliminating disappointment and vexatious delays.

Fittings as heretofore will measure up to that high standard that has lifted up this growing Women's Store to its present impregnable position—being under the critical supervision of tailoresses of unquestioned ability.

wife visited him at his store yesterday afternoon, and at about 2 o'clock she said that she was going away. She left the store and had not been gone long before Mr. Fiskett began to fear something was wrong, and followed her.

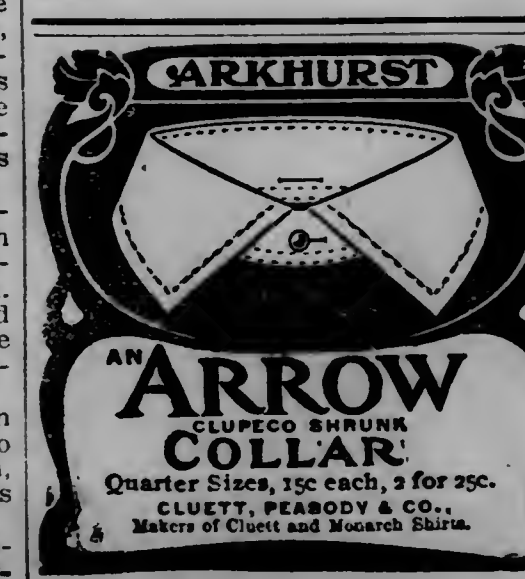

He went immediately to the Union depot, as his wife had often gone there with the intention of leaving town. He found her there, and she returned with him to the store, where she wrote a letter and then went out again.

Then she again went back to the depot, and went into the lavatory, where she remained about five minutes. She soon came out and was met by her husband, to whom she said she had taken morphine, because she wanted to die easily, as she was tired of life.

A doctor was immediately summoned, and by means of a stomach pump the poisonous drug was extracted before it had taken effect. She was soon taken home, and rested quietly last night and was none the worse for the adventure this morning.

The letter which she had written while at the store was addressed to her father, L. Massucci, at Eveleth, Minn., and told him why she was killing herself.

When seen this morning, Mrs. Fiskett said that she was tired of hav-

ALTON MEN NOT READY

"In compliance with the suggestion of the court made at the time of the convening of the present grand jury, the facts and circumstances in connection with the matter under investigation had been submitted to the department and I had expected to be able to report to the court this morning its views and findings. Very recently, however, a situation has arisen, which in my judgment, makes it highly desirable that I have time to submit to the department certain facts and circumstances in addition to those already submitted.

"For these reasons I request that further action in the matter be postponed for three or four weeks. I regret the necessity for asking the court for this postponement, but it seems to me, in view of what I know in connection with the case, to be unavoidable.

"Is the grand jury present?" asked Judge Landis.

"Not now, your honor."

"How much time do you want?"

"I think not less than three weeks. It seems to me highly desirable that when the matter is again called that we be able to take definite action on

MARINE NEWS

NOT COMING AS RAPIDLY ALL QUIET IN HARBOR

Coal Receipts During Labor Day Was Generally Observed by Marine Men.

Customs House Books Big Fleet Expected to Show Total of 230,411 Tons. Arrive Here During the Day.

Coal has not been coming forward from the lower lakes quite as rapidly during the past month as during the previous months of the season, according to the figures given in the books at the Duluth customs house. The total for August was about 20,000 tons less than that for July.

These figures are merely the estimates of the captain as to the amount of the cargo they bring up, but a good idea of the traffic can be obtained from them. According to the figures, the month of May was the heaviest as regards coal receipts, while July, during which month the strike on the ore docks occurred, comes next.

The total amount of coal received at Duluth, according to the customs house figures, for August, was 20,111 tons, compared with 25,599 tons received at the local port during the previous month. During July, however, many of the boats could not get ore cargoes, and were compelled to enter the coal trade to kill time, but since the strike this has been less a reason, and more a necessity, shows up very well considering.

During the month a total of 37,772 tons was brought to Duluth from the lower lakes, which will probably hold as the record for the year. In June and July, this fall, as the dealers are anxious to have a big supply on hand for the Northwestern states. It is said the coal shipments out of Duluth and Superior have been very heavy also the last few weeks.

INDIANA HARBOR CHANNEL.

Capt. Benham Tells How It Should be Navigated.

Capt. C. E. Benham, while at Indiana Harbor with the wrecked steamer Hiram, took soundings at the new ore receiving port. Capt. Benham says that steamers bound for that harbor should pass up the shore about two miles out from the steel plant and pass and then run with a range on the two big iron smokestacks on the water side. Masters should then get the stacks to bear S. W. by W. and run on that course until the channel then head between the breakwater and the pier and they will be heading down the river. The channel is not less than twenty-one feet of water.

The dredged channel in the harbor is only eighty feet wide and boats, after clearing the breakwater, should head for the furnace dock and then the mouth of the harbor. There is a red buoy off the end of the breakwater when the current is from the northwest the buoy lies in that direction.

MORE MEN WANTED.

Several Boats Bunched at Salt and Cement Docks.

Nearly half a dozen boats were bunched up around the D. G. Cutler salt, lime and cement dock at Eighth avenue west yesterday and this morning. A hurry call was received at one of the local employment bureaus for thirty additional men to assist in unloading them.

The two days of idleness on the docks caused considerable damage to the unloading of the boats was the result. It is rather unusual for so many boats with salt and limestone to arrive so near together.

DROWNED WHILE SHOOTING DUCKS

Robert Barnett Third Member of Family to Meet Violent Death.

News was received in Duluth yesterday of the death at Deer River of Robert Barnett, formerly a resident of Duluth, but recently of Deer River, where he was engaged in the general mercantile business.

While hunting ducks with some companions, Barnett arose in the boat to take a shot and in doing so capsized the boat. The other men with him, Al Kraemer and Will Wright, succeeded in climbing onto a raft of logs and made their escape. Barnett never appeared on the surface, and his body was still being sought for when the news reached his sister, Miss Grace Barnett, of this city yesterday.

The family has been visited by three violent deaths. One son met death from the kick of a cow, another was murdered, and the victim of the Deer River tragedy was the third.

The sister is expecting details of the unhappy affair today when the disposition of the remains will be decided upon.

UNDER QUARANTINE.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The home of Fred Wooster on Eighth avenue has been quarantined on account of his daughter, Ruth, being ill with smallpox. Another family near is under surveillance, and will probably be quarantined, as some of the children are ill with what is thought is the same disease. All the cases are traceable from the family of J. A. Hall, whose children first caught smallpox in some unknown way, and the house was not quarantined and the disease did not become known until Mrs. Hall was taken with it. It is probable that extra precautions will be taken to prevent any spread. The disease is of a mild form.

CAR TRACER SHOT.

Fired on by Unknown Assailant and Slightly Wounded.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—While passing along Maple street late Sunday night, C. R. Higbee, employed by the Iron Range road, was shot through the chest by the left arm, receiving a slight wound from a 22-caliber weapon that is not expected to prove serious.

The bullet was fired by an unknown person. This is the second time Higbee claims to have been shot while passing along the same place of late. He is at a loss to account for the shooting.

CLAIMS HE GOT WORST OF DEAL

The civil action brought by David Graham against the fishing franchise company to recover $100 paid by the plaintiff in a horse trade has been filed in the district court. The case is now in the hands of the municipal court at Hibbing.

Mr. Graham, in his complaint, alleges that he was duped in a horse trade for a horse which he claims was warranted to him to be perfectly sound in every way and was not. He claims that the facts were misrepresented at the time of the trade and that the animal was suffering from chronic founder of both front feet, splint on both front legs and sore shins of the hindquarters of the right shoulder, that is not a good roaster and is worthless.

Mr. Graham wanted in damages the amount of money he paid for the horse, $100, and the expenses of the suit, amounting to $35, were assessed against the produce company.

Mr. Graham is represented by Victor L. Power and the produce company is represented by Hughes, Bannan & Cranley.

FRESH AT NIGHT

If One Uses the Right Kind of Food.

It by proper selection of food one can feel strong and fresh at the end of a day's work, it is worth while to know the kind of food that will produce this result.

A school teacher of Media, Kan., says in this connection: "I commenced the use of Grape-Nuts food five months ago. At that time my health was so poor that I thought I would have to give up my work altogether. I was rapidly losing weight, had little appetite, was nervous and sleepless and experienced, almost constantly, a feeling of exhaustion. I tried various remedies without good results, then I determined to give particular attention to my food, and have learned something of the properties of Grape-Nuts for rebuilding the brain and nerve centers."

"I commenced using that food and have since made a constant and rapid improvement in health in spite of the fact that all this time I have been engaged in the most strenuous and exacting work."

"I gained twelve pounds in weight and have a good appetite, my nerves are strong and I sleep sound. I have such strength and reserve force that I feel almost as strong and fresh at the close of a day's work as I do at the beginning."

"Before using Grape-Nuts I was troubled much with weak eyes but as my vitality increased my eyes became stronger. I never heard of any other food as nutritious and economical as Grape-Nuts."—Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Labor Day Drunks Were Few and Far Between.

The City Celebrated in a Sane and Orderly Manner.

Either the public observed Labor day in a sane and quiet manner, or the police were decidedly charitable in their recognition of offenses against the dignity of the city, for, barring the tragedy which occurred at Garfield avenue, in which one man met a violent death, there was little doing, and the array in police court this morning was a small one.

Most of the cases were those of individuals who, imbued with an overabundance of appreciation of the day and its pleasures, took on an oversupply of wet goods and fell by the wayside. Seven or eight such unhappy ones appeared in court and drew the customary $1 and costs, or three days for such offenses.

John Allen forgot that his liberties on a holiday did not extend to permitting him to interfere with an officer in the discharge of his duties, and when he attempted to pull a policeman away from his friend, who was drunk, he was arrested and arraigned on the charge of interfering with an officer. He was given the option between $5 and costs, or seven days.

Louis Reed came in to celebrate, and succeeded. He finally lapsed into a state of mental inertia, and when picked up by the police, was coming out of it. "Or all the life of life," he exclaimed. "The officer deemed it best that Louis take a sleigh, and this he did, drawing three days for his little overnight stop at the city police station."

Andrew Johnson was unable to explain to the court's satisfaction the whys and wherefores connected with his drunken attempt to settle himself for the night in a box car behind a feed store, but the court was lenient and Andrew drew but three days.

Jack Walton, his face bearing the appearance of having come in contact with a ripe saw or meat chopper, declared emphatically that he was not drunk last night, and his case will be heard this afternoon.

Ed Rehnardt had been through the experience where the "side walk comes up and strikes you," his eye being badly gashed and face bearing sundry manifestations of alcohol forces at work upon it. He was given three days.

Although John Howe is almost totally blind, he does not need to wear a sign "help the blind," if the testimony of Felix Trusty, a Finn, counts for anything. John can help himself when it comes to self protection, and demonstrated this yesterday, for with the aid of his good, strong cane, which he wielded like an Irishman would a good black thorn, he laid Trusty low with one blow.

According to the story, Howe was groping his way along Lake avenue south when he struck the Finn a blow on the shins with his cane. The Finn remonstrated and Howe, it is alleged, brought down the cane on top of Trusty's cranium, breaking the scalp. Patrolman Peters made a sprint after the fleeing Finn and overtaking him was told the story of the assault. Howe was arrested and taken to the city jail where he was arraigned this morning on the charge of assault. He entered a plea of not guilty, and the hearing was set for this afternoon.

Are YOU
Satisfied With Your Work and Income?

Are you a worker and willing to work for an income? If so, it might pay you to read on. No one will deny that there are a good many men who are making good salaries selling life insurance. They did not, however, become capable all at once. They just took hold, hung on, worked hard, and now have lucrative positions. The demand for life insurance is certain to increase. It is a common sense proposition and only needs to be put to common sense people in a common sense way. The recent changes in this business will only serve to make it more popular when they are understood. This spells opportunity for someone.

Just now there is an opening for the right man to represent a great insurance company. A liberal contract will be made for work in this section or elsewhere. It is not desired to attract those who are looking for a snap, or who have no persistence. If this work could be done without effort and by everybody, it would pay no one to do it. The fact that it is not dead easy is the reason it pays those who can do it so well.

If you are interested drop a line at once to the undersigned, give your references, and tell him something about yourself. Don't simply send your address—that alone will not fill the bill. All letters treated in strict confidence.

WEST END ALUMNI ARE IN CHARGE

Former Students of Northwestern Theological Seminary Meet.

Will Hold Preliminary Session at Swedish
M. E. Conference.

The alumni of the theological seminary of Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., will have charge of the preliminary meeting of the conference of the Swedish Methodist Episcopal churches for the northern district this evening.

Many of the ministerial delegates to the conference sessions are alumni of the Northwestern seminary, and they have an auxiliary organization which meets in connection with every conference session. Their meeting will be held today, and the program at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, tonight, will be under their auspices.

Delegates to the conference sessions began arriving on the afternoon train today. It is expected that fully eighty delegates from outside the city will be present. Most of them are ministerial delegates, although there are some lay delegates. This northern district of the conference takes in all of the state of Minnesota, Superior, Ashland, Marquette and Cumberland, Wis., and Upper Michigan, as far as Ishpeming.

As many delegates as possible will be entertained by families in the First Swedish M. E. church, and the rest will be taken care of by Norwegian-Danish M. E. families and by the Lutheran families.

Sort of reciprocity, as the Swedish Methodists have opened their homes in the past to accommodate members of other churches.

Tomorrow the board of examiners of the conference will conduct its work, and the conference session will be formally opened tomorrow evening with the entertaining program arranged by Rev. J. A. Anderson, pastor of the First Swedish M. E. church. The examining board gives the different four years' degrees to the newcomers in the conference.

After a probationary clergyman has passed two examinations, he is a member of the conference in full connection, and if he passes the third and fourth examinations, he is an ordained elder.

Last Business Meeting.

The congregation of the First Swedish M. E. church held the final meeting of the conference year in the pastor's study last evening. All of the year's business of the church was cleared out of the way, and reports turned in.

Taking Range Trip.

Right Rev. E. Borge of Red Wing, Minn., president of the conference, and Lutheran synod for this district, in the western part of the state, are taking a trip over the range. They will visit Hibbing and the towns on the western Mesabi before returning, at the week end. Rev. M. Borge made his official visit to the Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, Sunday.

West End Shortfalls.

Miss Sophia Dahlgren, who has been visiting in the West end for the past month, has returned to her home at Cando, N. D.

P. J. Timmer of Brainerd, Minn., spent Sunday and Labor day with friends in the West end.

Dean Coventry has gone to St. Paul where he will attend the State fair and visit friends for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Pokalski of West Michigan street leave today for Marquette, Mich., where they will make their home in the future.

J. C. Ekman, S. Eckman, Frank Ekman, G. A. Oredson and Dr. Osterberg have gone to Cook county, where they are looking over mining and timber lands upon which they have options. They are expected back this afternoon.

Miss Bertha Wiley and Robert Wiley, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Smith of North Twenty-sixth avenue west, have returned to their home at Chippewa Falls, Wis.

A. D. McFarland, Al Benis and George Flynn were down from Hibbing yesterday and spent the day with friends in the West end.

Rev. Albert M. Johanson, now of Moline, Ill., but formerly pastor of the Swedish Mission church, will speak there Thursday evening. Mrs. Johanson will be here with him and will sing.

It is not a musical comedy. The authors say it isn't and they ought to know. It is a play with a musical setting, but if one begins to consider it as a play some of the "situations" are rather startling. It is the least. It comes very close to the line of musical comedy, but with this difference—some great matter seems to have been utilized in putting the "lines" together, and the actors have something "Thursday's My Jolly Day." "The Waning Honeymoon." "It's a Lonesome Town" and several others.

Harry Short is, of course, the main-spring of the present company. He accomplished the difficult and thankless task of accepting the duties of a famous comedian in the part in which the lady made his reputation, following Raymond Hitchcock in "The Yankee Consul." He more than made good, and now William Hough and Frank Adams have supplied him with a part that fits him like a glove. As "Honey" Johnny Hicks, the professional gambler, he has a fine line of fresh and original slang, and rolls it out with the accompaniment of his interminably funny features. It is no effort to appreciate his work. He is simply and naturally funny.

Working opposite him is another "vase best bet" in the words of Johnny Hicks himself. It's not hard to admire Elizabeth Goodall as Molly Kelly, the head nurse. In fact it is quite the natural thing to do. She is a born comedian, and her comedy is of the weather and sound interesting. Supplied with the lines she has, she is irresistible.

C. M. Gibe is Tom Cunningham and Miss Jessie Hutton is "The Girls' share the honors with Mr. Short and Miss Goodall. "Naive" is the word that best describes Miss Hutton, who has a clever, quick, looking young man who acquires himself very creditably.

A. Jensen with his clear cut, classic features, makes a hit with her dancing, and the other members of the company are quite acceptable.

One more performance will be given in Duluth, this evening.

BIJOU BILL FINDS FAVOR.

The bill at the Bijou this week has certainly found favor with the patrons of that popular amusement place.

Jolly and Wild have an amusing comedy act called "The Mask Teacher."

John Zouboulakis is not a European acrobat, as vaudeville patrons would be led to believe, nor is he a Russian samurai, he is a musical plastic artist and he makes good with his stunts.

The "Three Millions" act, "Willie Green's Visit," is well crammed with comedy and Nick Conway as "Laughing Casey" perpetrates some good gags.

Rowley and Von Kaufman in "That Much Act" present a 10-minute laugh and music, the troupe, has a clever contribution act.

Herbert Parkhurst, a local singer, is giving the illustrated song, in the place of Herman LeFleur, who has left for La Crosse. Mr. Parkhurst has a pleasing baritone voice and his rendition of "Any Old Time At All" was well received yesterday.

The moving pictures are good and so are the orchestra selections.

"The Squaw Man." William Faversham comes to the Lyceum theater Friday and Saturday, Sept. 6 and 7, with "The Squaw Man." The story of the play briefly told is that of a young Englishman, who, to save the head of a noble family from punishment for embezzlement and a woman he loves from disgrace, takes the crime upon his own shoulders and makes off to America, where he becomes a cattle ranchman in a Western state. There he marries an Indian girl, who saves his life. The Indian wife eventually commits suicide. When her husband attempts to take her son away from her and send him back to England to be educated for the title which he has himself inherited, but which she renounced in the child's favor. Presided by the death of his wife, the Englishman determines to return and claim his inheritance for himself.

Through an error in Saturday's advertisement in The Herald, the prices were announced as from 50 cents to $1, instead of from 50 cents to $2, the regular prices at which Mr. Faversham plays.

Was Solist With Sousa. Nina Collins, the pretty prima donna soprano with the Lady Birds company at the Metropolitan this week, was soprano solist with Sousa's band for several seasons. Mr. Sousa paid her a high compliment at the conclusion of her engagement with his organization, saying that her voice had remarkably sweet qualities and that its owner knew how to use it effectively. Mr. Herrington engaged her especially for the leading feminine role in "The Isle of Smeath," which the Lady Birds are giving this season.

DARING HOLD-UP. Two Robbers Stop Dan Jerome and Take His Valuables.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—About as daring a hold-up as has been reported lately in this section took place Friday evening, between the hours of 10 and 11, when Dan Jerome, a driver in the employ of Bjorn & Carlson, who was returning from Red Lake Falls in a rig was stopped near Perault station and robbed of a gold watch and $7.

The two robbers were concealed in the underbrush near the road, and just as soon as the rig reached the spot where they were they simultaneously sprung from their ambush, one catching the reins of the horses and bringing the buggy to a stop, while the other, covered Jerome with a revolver. The latter could offer no resistance, and allowed the robbers to take whatever they wanted.

After the highwaymen disappeared in the darkness with their booty, Jerome drove hastily back to Red Lake Falls, where he informed the authorities of what had taken place. Although a vigilant search is being made, no clues have been obtained yet as to the whereabouts of the robbers.

DIDN'T PASTEURIZE MILK. Sauk Rapids, Minn., Sept. 2.—Benj. Freiler, proprietor of the New Munich creamery, has been arrested on complaint of Inspector Lindberg of the state food and dairy commission, charged with failing to pasteurize the product of his creamery. The defendant was subsequently arraigned before Justice Zink, before whom he entered a plea of not guilty. The hearing was then set for Sept. 17 before the same court. Freiler has retained counsel to defend him.

AUTOMOBILE UPSETS; NORTH DAKOTAN HURT. Ashby, Minn., Sept. 3.—George P. Clifford of Grand Forks, N. D., was probably fatally injured, four miles west of Ashby, Monday, afternoon, by the overturning of an automobile in which he and his wife were touring to St. Paul.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May be Sappling Your Life Away--Duluth People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells, looks unwell, and generally, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Duluth testimony to prove it.

J. H. Tomlin, lather and contractor, of 112 West Palmetto street, Duluth Heights, says: "What I said in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, six years ago, was not only true, but the cure I described at that time has been permanent, and I am pleased to inform other sufferers of this fact. My case was a severe one, and it clung to me persistently for two years. The backache finally got so bad that I was obliged to lay off from work for days at a time, and I suffered such pain that it hurt to bring the slightest strain on the muscles of the back and joints. The kidney secretions were irregular, and I was unable to rest well at night. All these irregularities yielded promptly to the treatment, and the result was a permanent cure. For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name--Doan's--and take no other."

ERRING WOMAN RETURNS.

Persuaded by Husband to Go Back to Her Minnesota Home.

Larimore, N. D., Sept. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. M. Aldrich of Verdala, Minn., arrived in Larimore a few mornings ago looking for his wife who is said to have run away with a man named Bowen, sometimes giving his name Brown. The woman was found working at the Buckeye rooming house where Chief Fadden interviewed her with the result that a reconciliation was effected and the couple left the same evening for their home.

WILL BEGIN WEDNESDAY

September Term of District Court Will be Opened.

Jury Trials Will Not be Started Until Monday.

The September term of the district court will begin tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, at which time the calendar will be called. Judge Dibel will preside over the calendar at the coming term.

While it cannot be definitely stated how many of the civil cases noticed for trial will actually come to trial during the September term, it is not probable that very many of the cases will be continued, or stricken.

The grand jury will assemble at 11 o'clock in the morning to receive the court's charge and to organize. Judging from the number of people who are being held under warrants at the county jail, and others who are out on bail, the grand jury will have considerable work to attend to this week. It is probable that the criminal calendar, which cannot be made up until the grand jury completes its work, will contain from thirty to forty cases, three or four of which will be tried next Monday. The three judges will begin hearing the divorce cases, of which there are thirty-six on the calendar, next Thursday morning. There are few, if any, contests, and that class of cases does not, as a rule, take a great deal of time to present all the evidence for a ruling by the court.

The petit jurors have been summoned to appear for duty next Monday morning, at 9:30 o'clock, at which time the trial of the civil cases will begin. As soon as the grand jury completes its work, and the county attorney arranges his cases, the trial of the criminal actions will begin before the presiding judge, in courtroom No. 1.

Two cases that were expected to go to the grand jury will probably be disposed of in court this week. Gustave Gill, who is accused of assaulting the town marshal of Biwabik, and Mike Sugina, who is accused of larceny, have signed their desire to plead guilty on the information of the county attorney. Under the law there are certain offenses under which persons accused of crime may plead guilty on information, and may be meted out their punishment without waiting for the grand jury to act.

It is believed that the action of the district court judges in providing for terms of the court at Virginia and Hibbing in October, and the early part of November, each year, will do much in the future to relieve some of the strain of business of the court here. At every term of the district court there is a large percentage of range cases for trial, either by the court or by jury. The change will not be noticed, perhaps, so much this year as it will be hereafter, for the reason that the new term on the ranges was not established until after most of the cases noted for trial at the September term had been filed with the clerk of court.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hare's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally and does from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials.

Body of Noted Actor Laid in Grave Near Summer Home.

New London, Conn., Sept. 3.—All that was mortal of Richard Mansfield, was lowered into a grave in the little Gardner cemetery within a few rods of Seven Oaks, his summer home, yesterday.

The ceremony was simple, but impressive, and was attended by many friends and acquaintances of the late actor. By request of the family, the services at the house were simple. The committal of the body to the grave was a solemn moment. With bowed heads, the mourners listened to the impressive words of the Episcopal church ritual.

Members of the theatrical profession sent telegrams of condolence, and beautiful floral tributes, but only a few were able to attend the services on account of engagements. Many literary persons testified their respect by coming from a distance.

Telephone Operators Come to the Rescue of Strike Breakers.

Steuenville, Ohio, Sept. 3.—A Labor day riot that his fair to end in a tragedy had it not been for the bravery of two young women employed in the telephone exchange, occurred here yesterday afternoon. The victims of the crowd's rage were Joseph Harrison, who received a fractured skull, and John Mattson, who was cut and bruised. While shielding the men, Mary Magee and Eula Poole received cuts and bruises about the head and body, and are in a serious condition. Harrison and Mattson came here from St. Louis to work in a mine where a strike is in progress. Yesterday as they left the telephone office they were set upon by a crowd and were being badly beaten when the girls rushed into the thick of the fight and frantically pushing and shoving their way through the mob, reached the two victims whom they were endeavoring to save. The girls threw themselves on the prostrate men, protecting their head and receiving on their bodies the

The exercises passed off without a hitch, according to the program and program. It was a noisy crowd which assembled in the big pavilion, and it took chairman S. M. Kieley some time to quiet the people in order that the speakers might be heard.

Mr. Kieley gave a short introductory speech, telling of the great advancement made by the cause of labor during the past twelve months, and said that all should be thankful for the favorable turn in events.

He then introduced William J. Norton, the speaker of the day, was then introduced by Mr. Hunt, and delivered his address as was given in yesterday's edition of The Herald.

The program of sports and athletic contests was pulled off a little after 4 o'clock, the rain having interfered in the events earlier in the afternoon. The track was in rather poor condition after the rain, but the contests were interesting nevertheless.

The first event for boys under 16 years old was won by George Beedy, with F. Page second. The second race was for girls under 16, and was won by Notha Brown, labor day enthusiasts who attended the exercises and celebration at Fairmount park, yesterday afternoon and evening, are complaining bitterly about the miserable street car service furnished them during the day. Cars going to, and from the park were jammed to the utmost all day long.

At the park there was an immense crowd, which increased in size steadily all the afternoon and until well along in the evening. When it commenced to rain in the afternoon, numbers of the celebrators started to return to the city, and then more than ever the street cars were found to be wholly inadequate to accommodate the people.

SOME FAMILIAR METHODS.

The dispatch from Wallace, Idaho, in The Herald last night, charging that there is a Weyerhaeuser-Hill conspiracy to gobble up the remaining timber lands of the West by methods that bear a strong resemblance to those that created some of the oppressive conditions that exist in the control of other necessities of life, is something that is worth the attention of the federal authorities, and they should investigate it thoroughly.

If it is impossible to control the existing monopolies—which nobody is yet ready to admit—it certainly should be possible to prevent the formation of new ones.

The Weyerhaeuser interests have been quietly gathering in all the loose pine remaining out of doors. Today their holdings are enormous, and the step from their present situation to the possession of a complete monopoly is not so long a step as many might imagine. Possibly the Weyerhaeuser consider this their exclusive business, but it is time the public was making it its own business, and doing something to prevent the formation of a monopoly of such a vitally necessary commodity as timber.

The charge that comes from Idaho is that the Weyerhaeuser interests have their eyes on the pine in the Western states, and that in their effort to get it they are being assisted by an increase of 20 per cent in freight rates, which is likely to crush out the small competitors. This would make it possible to buy the remaining timber at about what the Weyerhaeuser want to pay for it. This is exactly the form of pillage and oppression that has created a dangerous social unrest that points the way to perilous revolt.

If this growing timber trust cannot be forced to keep its hands off some of the remaining stores of timber, the authorities can at least pay some attention to the manner in which the timber is being acquired.

For instance, the dispatch referred to reminds us of the purchase by the Weyerhaeuser syndicate of the Northern Pacific timber holdings.

Stockholders in the Northern Pacific system must be doing a little thinking nowadays, when they remember that pine said to be now worth at least $125,000,000 was sold by the railroad to the Weyerhaeuser for a paltry million dollars.

It was by secret combinations with the railroads that the great monopolies were built up.

It is charged that a secret combination with the railroads is back of the increase in freight rates, which threatens the very existence of the small independent timber and lumber merchants of the West.

It is pointed out in the article published last night that though the Weyerhaeuser agents pretend to be indignant about the increase in the freight rates, the head of the Weyerhaeuser syndicate sits upon the board of directors of the Great Northern, and that he should have had power to prevent the raise if he really wished to.

Steps should be taken to have the federal authorities look into this incident; they might find something as worthy of their attention as the operations of the oil trust.

AN AMERICAN MONTE CARLO.

When an economical person discovers a waste in his expenditures, he promptly cuts it off, and has that much more money for useful purposes.

That is the way society and government ought to act, and in a general way that is their aim.

Well, for instance, there is Wall street, typical of a lesser brood of similar institutions. A writer in Appleton's Magazine furnishes some figures showing that Wall street is costing the people of this country a great deal of money, and the expenditure is pretty nearly pure waste, because about all the people get out of it is discomfort, scandals, panics, alarms and disturbances of business.

The New York stock exchange has a membership of 1,100 and seats now cost $95,000 each, making a total valuation of $104,500,000. The value of these seats is what they will earn for their owners. Allowing to percent, the earnings must be $104,500,000 at least for the entire membership. As a matter of fact, however, they are much greater than this, and it is estimated that in commissions and interest the stock exchange takes in at least $60,000,000 a year. As the Appleton's Magazine writer says, "this vast sum is paid purely for the purpose of playing in a game where the chances are heavily against the player." This writer, not inappreciably, compares the earnings of the stock exchange to the "kitty" in a poker game where there is a "rake-off" on every pot played.

"I may be permitted to assume that a large number of my readers," says this writer, and The Herald can do no less than extend the same compliment to its readers, "will understand this illustration better if accentuated by the further explanation that such a 'rake-off' is almost confiscatory, and that six men engaging in such a game with $100 each will all get 'broke' at the end of a sitting of moderate duration."

In other words, Wall street is simply a national gaming place, where the only real and enduring profit is in the "kitty," which is enriched by the "rake-offs" of commission and interest. Speculators come and go. The Wall street life of a speculator is said to be about three years on the average. In that time, unless he loses his store in a lump, the "kitty" takes it all.

Besides the $60,000,000 annual contribution to the kitty, it is estimated that $60,000,000 to $100,000,000 more is lost every year in the periodical shake-ups, with $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 more chargeable to bad judgment and "freeze-outs," all of which together makes about $250,000,000 a year that the American people contribute to an institution that demoralizes business, reaps an annual harvest of ruined lives, and that causes innumerable peculations by trusted employees that are followed by disgrace, suicide or state's prison.

Clearly, this looks like a wasteful expenditure. If an individual of good sense found such a leak in his finances, he would stop it up, and save his money for better uses.

Will the nation act so sensibly?

A FAILURE OF LIBERTY.

Folks of an altruistic turn of mind, given to day dreaming, have often amused themselves by speculating about how, if they were a despot over a benighted people, they would bring about a different order of things, and cause the light of liberty and free government to shine in the dark places of their kingdom.

Such people ought to have a talk with Nicholas, ruler of the turbulent principality of Montenegro, who had a chance to do this very thing, who did it, and who is now sorry for it.

Montenegro, as of course you know, is one of those uneasy independent states in that tossing sea of trouble, the Balkans. Nicholas, ruler of Montenegro, conceived the idea of extending a diluted form of democracy to his people, so in October, 1905, he gave them a constitution conveying some measure of political freedom, and in his proclamation he declared that he did so because of his earnest conviction that "every man belonging to a civilized society should be a free citizen."

His 200,000 subjects took the constitution gingerly, as some strange dose of whose virtue they had exceeding doubts, and undertook to adjust themselves to it.

But it didn't fit. Ever since that constitution was adopted there has been nothing but trouble in the land. There was trouble before, but it was nothing like that which the constitution created.

Nicholas stood it as long as he could, and then he took his gift back again, and the people are under the same iron rule that they had before their premature dose of liberty was accorded. In doing this he had before him the notable example of another Nicholas, the one who is czar of all the Russias and heir to more political trouble than any man on earth, not even excepting Theodore Roosevelt.

The excuse offered by Nicholas for his role of "Injun giver" is that the Montenegrins are not yet fitted for self-government. However, that is as it may be. If they are not, Nicholas ought to have known it before he tried the experiment, and in that case the proper thing for him to do was to set on foot some educational movement that would have fitted them for their advance in the school of government.

Again, the incident is no argument against liberty and free government, because not very many details about the particular form of liberty Nicholas offered have drifted into the world, and it is entirely probable that it was at fault more than the people.

At any rate, Nicholas is nursing his disappointment over the failure of his experiment, and he is not at all likely to try anything of that sort again right away. However, that need restrain nobody from imagining that they could have done it better, and that if they had had the chance they would have provided a system of government that would have worked.

DOWNWARD COMPETITION.

In an uncommonly lucid and stimulating article in the September Atlantic Monthly Edward Alsworth Ross, professor of sociology in the University of Wisconsin, shows the need of public regulation of industry in a remarkably vivid manner.

The trouble with us, he finds, is that our competition tends downward, not upward. There is nothing wrong with the right sort of competition, but there is everything wrong with the sort of competition by which manufacturers compete to see who can furnish the most cleverly adulterated goods. If business men competed to see who could furnish the best and purest goods and who could best serve the public, it would be very fine. But instead most of them compete to see who can best serve himself, and who can get the most out of the public for the least service.

"Those in the same line must move in lockstep," says Prof. Ross, "and the pace is set by the meanest man who is allowed to continue in the business. The department store that pays its girls living wages and closes at 6 o'clock can hardly live in the same town with one that pays $4 a week and closes at 9 o'clock. If the price of glass jars is fixed by the manufacturer who overrides little boys, every competitor must, unless he possess some off-setting advantage, conform to this practice. Leave the business he may; change it he cannot. If one dealer in foods successfully adulterates, his fellows must follow suit or seek their patrons among the few who prefer a brand because it is dear. The one shipper who extorts an illegal rate obliges all other shippers in his line to break the law or be snuffed out. So long as there are able attorneys to handle the corporation work just as it comes, clean or dirty, the lawyer who insists on picking and choosing must milddew in the basement of his profession. If the lavish use of money is countenanced in politics, no poor man can win without trucking to the contributors of campaign funds." And that means that he must serve the wishes of these interests rather than those of the people that elected him.

This thinker would not abolish the competitive system because of these conditions, though they are unquestionably the fruits of competition. "This," he says, "would be pouring out the baby with the bath."

He holds that competition may pursue an upward path or a downward path. When makers adulterate or lygally adulterate, or overdrive their help, or replace men with children, they follow the downward path. When they eliminate waste, improve their processes, utilize by-products, install better machines, they are following the upward path.

The remedy is to fence off the downward path, and leave competition "free to spur rivals into the upward path." That remedy is the way of public regulation, and conditions of today are a crushing answer to those who seek to protect downward competitive methods by prating about the best government being the one that governs least.

THE PASSING SHOW.

Part of the peace temple at The Hague has collapsed. A very appropriate accident.

The London Gentlewoman asks: "Why are men better looking than women?" This is so sudden.

George Bernard Shaw says three meals a day are excessive. Also, if anybody should ask, they cost money these days.

Wall street will yet become used to the fact that prosperity keeps right on at the old stand without paying attention to stock market prices.

Says the Chicago News: "When a woman hasn't anything to tell she is willing to let a man talk." Perhaps because she hopes to hear something she will be able to tell.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"For several seasons past there has been fairly good chicken hunting in the vicinity of Sandstone, but this year there seems to be no birds at all," said M. M. Arthur of Sandstone, Minn., the expert. "I was out in the field the opening day, and tramped around all day, but did not succeed in flushing a single bird. In the same district last year I shot thirteen chickens on the opening day, and the preceding season I also had good luck."

"I don't know just how to explain the shortage in the chicken crop this year, unless by saying that the late spring proved too much for the young birds. I rather thought, however, that because of the coldness of the early spring there would be no nesting until later than usual. When the weather did clear up we had a fine spring and early summer, and this led me to believe that chickens would nest early. In the early summer there was not enough rain to interfere with nesting."

Another explanation is that the birds were virtually all killed off last fall. I know they were hunted very extensively, and some of them were killed off to such an extent that there were none to even try to nest last spring. But that is a very probable reason. Regard other stations between here and Sandstone, however, and it is not so clear. There are much to the same effect. The birds are rather scarce all along the line, and some of the hunters are in West-ern Minnesota and the Dakotas in search of birds. Some of the hunters are in the region of the Great Lakes, and are looking for birds. The hunters are in the region of the Great Lakes, and are looking for birds. "The feeling at the Canadian Head of the Lakes is that a very good wheat crop will be harvested in the Canadian Northwest, and the people there are very optimistic over the outlook," said E. H. Flaherty of Port Arthur, Ont., at the St. Louis.

The plant of the Altkonk Iron company is turning out 100 to 120 tons of No. 1 and No. 2 foundry pig, which finds a ready market with the Canadian Northwest, and the people there are very optimistic over the outlook," said E. H. Flaherty of Port Arthur, Ont., at the St. Louis.

"To me it looks like much higher prices for wheat and wheat products," said David Rombold, general manager of the Minneapolis Flouring Company, at Philadelphia, at the Spaulding. "The foreign countries are looking for wheat, and the prices are going to be considerable. I have changed my views on the subject since arriving here from the fact that I can see a bear and now I am a bull on flour and wheat prices as a result of what I have learned of the situation here and the wheat producing region of the Northwest."

"What one might call a poor crop by any means, but it will not be so large as last year in the Northwest," said E. H. Flaherty of Port Arthur, Ont., at the St. Louis. ## THE WEATHER.

Clouds, a cool wind and intermittent showers of rain followed the delights of Labor day, which were marred only by the showers of the afternoon, which damped enthusiasm. ## TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1887.

George C. Milton, the preacher, is a brother-in-law of John J. Shotwell, the lumber dealer of Duluth.

The West end addition has been added to Duluth. It is owned by C. E. Dickerman of St. Paul.

The public school library now has over 1,000 volumes.

It is believed by railroad men in Duluth that General Manager T. F. Oakes will be elected president of the Northern Pacific railroad.

The Wisconsin Central is negotiating for the control of the Northern Pacific's Ashland division, and in return will grant the latter road concessions in the way of through freight. If the Central fails to secure the road it intends to build a line of its own into Duluth.

It is only a question of time when the Minnesota & Northwestern road will be running into Duluth from St. Paul. The line will be 125 miles in length and options in the right of way are now being secured.

The public schools will open on Monday next. There will be about twenty pupils admitted to the high school. Miss Cullyford will have charge.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Madison Independent Press: If the people are satisfied with Taft's position on the tariff, all will be well, but when the Democrats cut loose with their slogan of reduction they'll make a revolution like a pretty sick kitten. Immediate reduction makes a much better noise than future revision. In fact revision doesn't mean anything.

Princeton Union: The Albert Lea Standard advises every citizen to take a hand in politics. Let's wait until the crops are garnered.

Mr. Scott continued to work about the garden till about 2 o'clock, at which time he received a call for the meal, he went in the house to investigate.

DENOUNCED BY GOMPERS

Labor Leader Alleges Discrimination by Courts Against Workingmen.

W. R. Hearst Declaims Against the Existence of Class Hatred.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 3.—William R. Hearst of New York, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, were the principal speakers at yesterday's celebration of Labor day at the Jamestown exposition. Mr. Hearst arrived in the morning from San Francisco, accompanied by Mrs. Hearst, Max F. Hensen, president of the Hearst Independent League, and Charles A. Walsh, former Democratic national committee man from Iowa. He was greeted by a large delegation from the labor and trade union organizations of this section of Virginia, and was given a notable welcome. Mr. and Mrs. Hearst were subsequently joined by Mr. and Mrs. Gompers, the entire party proceeding in a special car to the exposition grounds.

Following an address of welcome by President Harry St. George Tucker of the exposition, Mr. Gompers was introduced. He made a strong protest against the "discrimination of the courts against the laboring men of the country, which deprived them of their constitutional guarantee of equality before the law" as he termed it. "The injunctions as issued against workmen are never used or issued against any other citizens of our country," declared Mr. Gompers. Continuing he said: "It is an attempt to deprive citizens of our country, when these citizens are workmen, of the right of trial by jury. It is an effort to fasten an offense against them when they are innocent of any wrongdoing. It is an indirect assertion of a property right in men when these men are workmen engaged in a lawful effort to protect or advance their lawful rights and interests."

Mr. Hearst said, in part: "In a country where all men are workingmen there should be greater community of interest, better mutual understanding and sympathy. It is in behalf of this better understanding that I speak today. I have no patience with the prejudice which exists between alleged classes when the classes themselves do not really exist. There is no reason for hostility between employer and employee, between capitalist and wage-earner. Capital is but the accumulation of wealth which employer and employee create together. Wages are but the division of profits. Both employer and employee are entitled to their share of the profits, and as long as the division is just and equitable there is no occasion for conflict. If the division is not just, it can always be made so by arbitration, and there is still no occasion for conflict."

Let us all regard one another as fellow workmen and treat one another with consideration and tolerance. Let us all labor harmoniously to create wealth in order that there may be the greatest possible amount to be justly divided. A condition of class hatred such as has developed in Colorado is a curse to this country, and is valuable only as a hideous example of a mistaken course, to be forever avoided. There should be no prejudice entertained by the capitalist toward the laborer, and there should be no prejudice by the laborer toward the capitalist. There should be an appreciation of the creation of wealth. The workingman is worthy of his hire, the business man of his profit. The man who digs the precious metal from the earth is worth his wage. The man who tells him where to find the gold deserves his profit too. The great financial promoters, organizers, executives of America are worthy of recognition and reward. They work hard as any of us, and their work is absolutely necessary to the full production of the riches out of which are paid here in America the highest wages in the world. There is no greater traitor to this nation than the man who has made his money under the liberal institutions of this government and who uses his money to undermine these institutions and debauch the government.

Let us recognize and reward the good which honest corporations accomplish, but let us with equal justice condemn and punish the evil which corrupt corporations spread. Let us govern our corporations as we do our individual citizens. Let us make laws impartially for all, and then make all impartially obedient to the laws. Let us give every opportunity to legitimate enterprise, but let us enforce the prison penalty against powerful criminals who do against the weak and helpless.

BIG STATE FAIR BEGINS IN BLAZE

The Opening Day Witnessed Record-Breaking Attendance.

St. Paul, Sept. 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The opening day of the Minnesota state fair yesterday was certainly a hummer in attendance and general interest in the big six-day event that every year becomes larger. The attendance passed the 100,000 mark compared with about 93,000 the first day last year. Everything connected with the opening day beginning with the dedication or opening address by President Cyrus Northrop of the state university, delivered in the big livestock amphitheater at 11 a. m. to a tremendous throng, to the concluding events in the evening, the pyrotechnic display, "The Siege of Jericho," moved along smoothly.

The beautiful prosperity of the Northwest is reflected in every nook and corner of the great exposition grounds. Every exhibition in place, every attraction was on hand ready for the inspection of the crowds that swarmed through the gates. The addition to the grounds, beginning the march to the north around the race track enclosure, the substantial new poultry and dairy buildings and miles of new roads and stone sidewalks, impressed the sight-seer with the steady growth of what has become the Northwest's annual industrial and agricultural exposition. The number of out of town visitors appeared as large as usual despite the lack of special rates.

RAINFALL OF SMALL TOADS

Whence They Came and Whither They Went is Mystery.

Lewiston, Idaho, Sept. 3.—Like the mythical city in the fairy story which was visited by showers of strange horned toads, Lewiston was visited by a rain of small toads during the recent rain. Before the storm not a toad was to be found, but after the rain ceased the walks were covered with the tiny amphibians. All over the city, on the business streets and up the hill in the residential sections, they hopped and peeped. Sidewalks in the business district were so covered by them that it was impossible to walk without treading upon the little animals, and rather than to dodge them many persons remained indoors. Attempts to sweep them from the sidewalks were dismal failures for as fast as they were swept into the street they would hop back, apparently preferring the smooth, wet surface of the concrete.

Where they came from and whither they went is a mystery, but many theories are offered as to their arrival. It is generally accepted that they were swept from the plateau north of the city by the high winds and carried until the rain fell, when they were dashed to the ground. Color is given to this theory for many of the toads were seen dead upon the streets. The toads disappeared after the rain as mysteriously as they came, and forty-eight hours later not one could be found.

The theory of their having rained down upon the city is upheld by the superintendent of the state fish hatchery, who says he has witnessed similar occurrences, where minnows were carried in the clouds for miles.

Tuberculosis Makes Inroads Into Stravosky Family.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Emil Stravosky, whose death occurred Sunday, of consumption, will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the English Lutheran church, Lake avenue and Third streets. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

The Stravosky family is not only saddened by the death of the mother, but by the probably fatal illness of her son, Charles, which is expected to result in his death in the near future, the young man being afflicted with the same dreaded disease as that which took his mother from him. Emil Stravosky, the father, is employed as shipping clerk for the F. A. Patrick company, and he is about worn out with his weary watch at the bedside of his loved ones. He contracted the disease about a year ago, and his death is anticipated within a brief time.

Council Meeting.

The council will meet tonight, the most important matter to come before that body being the report of the committee appointed to go over the work of the conference committee.

At the last meeting Alderman Jordan asked that a report as to the progress of the work of installing the Lake-side and hillside water and gas systems be furnished the council, and this will be received tonight. The monthly pay roll will be presented and passed.

GLAD TO GET BACK AGAIN

A. M. Chisholm is Home From a Visit Abroad.

Scores Americans Who Are Ashamed of Their Country.

A. M. Chisholm, the well known mining man, is home again after an absence of three months, spent abroad. Mr. Chisholm made the trip alone, mostly for his health, as he had been working very hard and felt the need of a change and something of a rest. He visited Germany and took the baths there, spent some time in the Hague—scene of the peace conference—and visited in England and Scotland.

Bitter Root Land

Five acres pay $5 per day. Ten acres pay $10 per day. Particulars apply to Bitter Root Land Co., 220 West Michigan Street.

In Scotland he had a very enjoyable visit with his uncle. He says, though, that he is glad to get back and there is no country like America.

"Europe may be all right, but the little old United States of America are good enough for me," said Mr. Chisholm today. "I have been boasting this country ever since I left. I have no time for these Americans who go abroad and are ashamed of their country and side in with those ignorant persons who sneer at us and our methods. They may talk about our 'grit' and all that, but that is not going to hurt us. Good results are to come of these exposures and investigations, and the country will lose nothing in the long run. We are getting along pretty well as it is, and that is what I told our friends across the pond."

"And another thing that disgusted me while I was abroad, was the number of Americans who registered from New York. These fellows think that they will create an impression that they are somebody if they say they come from New York. I finally said to a friend, 'Are there no Western Americans at all in Europe?' Occasionally, people from Minnesota, Montana, California, or some other Western state gave their real residences, but a majority of the Americans over here claiming 'New York'! The idea of being ashamed of the state and city they come from! We have the resources, the money and everything out West. What would New York amount to if it were not for the West?"

"The English financiers find fault with us because, they say, we borrow too much money. I was talking to one of them about it. I told him we had to borrow money, because we had such a great country to develop. 'Why,' I said, 'we have states larger than your entire country, and what would we do if we did not borrow money?'"

"We are away ahead of them over there in almost everything. There is one thing they know how to do better than we, and that is to live. They do not ashamed of their country, they drop in the harness. Lots of us here do not like that very much, but we have to keep up with the procession. All the other fellows in this country are doing it, and if you want to keep up, you have to do it too."

Regarding the dispatch from New York while ago, which was printed in The Herald, stating that J. S. Burton, an American resident of London, was obliged to make the trip across the Atlantic from Cherbourg because he lingered too long on the steamer to say good-bye to his old friend, A. M. Chisholm of Duluth, Minn., Mr. Chisholm says that while the man was an involuntary passenger on the boat and that he was obliged to make the trip because he did not get off in time. It was not because he was saying good-bye to him. Mr. Chisholm did not know him, and did not meet him until the boat was two days out.

Mr. Chisholm looks very well and says he enjoyed his trip immensely. Members of his family were ill with knew nothing of it until he reached Chicago. As long as there was no danger, they kept him in ignorance of it, as they did not want to spoil his trip.

TELLS LOVE IN RHYME

Local Applicant for the Widow Woos the Gentle Nurse.

Alliance Would Bring Cleveland and Duluth Cities Together.

Among the latest aspirants for the heart and hand of the now famous Cleveland widow, is one John Doe, probably a fictitious name, who was the gentle muse in his application, which was received at the mayor's office today and reads as follows:

"Mayor Cullum: 'Will you please accept a blither for the famous Cleveland widow. Not handsome, chink or black. But I've many pretty ways. Will you please write and tell her, that I'm just the proper fellow. Such alliance will forthwith bring Cleveland woman to Duluth. JOHN DOE.'"

There are several other applications now on file and to give them in detail would require space and time. The majority seem to be in earnest in the matter and that there is such a supply of masculine hearts in Northern Minnesota pining for love and companionship is a surprise to those who are reluctantly conducting this novel matrimonial bazaar.

Secretary McCallum was gingerly approached on Labor day by a mild voiced little man, who was evidently well informed of the famous widow case, and desired to apply, but preferred an interview with the powers that be in the case.

Hesitatingly he brought up the subject, allowing that he would be pleased to be considered as an entry in the race. "I am only about 45 years and a man of good habits, yes, excellent habits," he stated to Mr. McCallum, who was juggling himself into a fancied security of being for a time free from applications from lovers of widows. "Could you please give me the lady's address?"

"Call at the office, I have enough of that, widow business and this is a holiday," snapped "Mac" and the little, nervous man jumped back at the short rejoinder. "Yes, yes, certainly, of course—no offense," remarked the timid one as he departed hastily to dream perchance of Cleveland widows and plan for future conquest.

A photograph of the widow is expected soon and love-lorn swains may then have an opportunity to see what the object of their fancy looks like.

It pays to advertise in The Herald. Ask the Oak Hall.

LAST TRIP OF SUMMER

Steamer North West About to Close a Record Season.

Has Made Small Fortune for Owners This Year.

The steamship North West will arrive in the city this evening on her last trip of the season. Her arrival at Buffalo on the down trip will close the most successful season in the history of the big boat. Her earnings have been $50 to 100 per cent greater this year than during any previous season, and she has made a small fortune for her owners during the few weeks she has been running this summer.

Passenger traffic on the lakes is not very heavy after the first of September, and the owners of the North West and pay to keep their boats in commission much after that date. Conditions for traveling are apt to be rather unpleasant after August, and the possibility of bad storms makes the all-rail route appear more attractive to the average person than the trip by lake. Anyway, the tourist travel to and from the West practically comes to an end early in September.

The big boat will take out a fairly large list of passengers this evening. Following is a partial list of the more prominent of them. A. Lyle, Pittsburgh; W. B. Curtis, Washington; Mrs. Mary Brown and daughter, Toronto; L. F. Martin and party, Cleveland; W. L. Lacey, J. H. Lacey and party, Kingston, Ont.; H. C. Timmonds, Kansas City; F. A. Hubbard, R. M. Bennett, Chicago; Mrs. Davis, Cleveland; W. T. Sheppard, Minneapolis; P. Kutzner, San Francisco; J. L. McDonald, Chicago; Hannah F. Briggs, West-raid; Mr. and Mrs. Hides, Philadelphia.

EIGHT DROWNED. Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 2.—News has just reached here that Mrs. Louisa Hill Carrabial, wife of a farmer, and seven children were drowned in a flood resulting from heavy rains, in Almo creek, Sierra county, last Friday night. The flood caused damage estimated at $60,000.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

A meeting of the public-spirited men and women of the city will be held this evening at the First Unitarian church, at the corner of Eighth avenue east and First street, for the organization of the Unitary club of this city. The membership of the club is not limited in any way, any one interested being invited to attend this meeting and become a member of the club. It is planned to have several sections for the study and consideration of the various lines of general and public interest. One section will devote its attention to the study and consideration of municipal affairs; another division will consider scientific subjects, educational problems will be the subject of study for another section of the society. An Emerson club, which was organized in the spring, will continue its study as a department of this society. There will be general club meetings throughout the winter at which the public will be invited.

One of the departments of the club will be in charge of the evening and a subject of general interest will be discussed at a lecture on a timely topic delivered.

The meeting this evening will be held at 8 o'clock. Rev. Kirby S. Miller, pastor of the church, in speaking of the work which the club aims to do, said today: "There is in this city a field for a club of this kind, wherein the membership is not limited to men or women. We will add departments as the need arises and people of minds who are interested in one line of study may continue their work and study with others of like interests. The work planned will keep the members well informed on civic and educational matters and other features will be planned as the work advances. Any interested are cordially invited to meet with us this evening."

FIRST FALL DAYS

Find Many Parties at River Branch of Boat Club.

Week end parties at the Spirit Lake branch of the Boat Club were most popular and a large number of members were hosts at dinner there yesterday on Labor's holiday. The delightful location of the river branch of the club is even more attractive and beautiful in these first days of the fall, and the next twelve weeks will probably see an even greater increase in the popularity of this beautiful retreat. Even now some of the members are enthusiastically planning Thanksgiving day dinners at the river club house, the beauties of the late fall appealing to them in conjunction with a roaring chimney fire and roasted turkey. Among the hosts at dinner there yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Mahon, who entertained nine guests; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. O'Donnell, who were hosts at a dinner of twelve covers; Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Eide, who entertained ten guests; Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Palford, who had eight guests with them; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Brock, who had five guests at the branch for the day. Among other members who were hosts, were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Brown, R. B. O'Dell, A. R. De Voin, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ketchum and C. E. Wales. Nature is wonderful. Time cannot wither her nor custom stale her infinite variety, as Shakespeare once remarked about another lady. The things she does are almost beyond belief. That is, the things nature does. In fact they are entirely out of the bounds of credulity. If one should be told of the things that nature does, without seeing them, one would never believe. That anyone can be filled with ennui.

and go about with a weariness of life while nature is still doing business is a divine mystery.

Enough of abstract musings. The required space is almost filled, anyhow. But one of the most awe-inspiring of nature's triumphs is where she wraps a little bit of orange colored cotton batting into a tan colored covering and calls the result grass.

These little vegetables, or fruit, or whatever, are so nicely done up that year after year one feels that they must taste well, and one puts one into one's mouth, and then all the flatness of a Dakota farm as rising mountains as compared to the taste of that little so called cherry.

They are in the market. So are oysters.

FIGHT ON HARRIMAN

To be Considered Upon President's Return to Capital.

Question Said to be Not One Easy of Solution.

Washington, Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt upon his return to Washington in October will, according to present plans, confer with other high officials and decide whether E. H. Harriman and the Union Pacific Railroad company shall be prosecuted for violating the Sherman act by the purchase and control of the Southern Pacific, a competing line.

While the construction of the Sherman act, the president, in his speech, favored an arrangement under which railroads could agree upon rates, should congress amend the laws so as to permit pooling, the railroad will claim that consistency requires that amendment of the Sherman act so as to permit such control as exists between the Union and Southern Pacific.

The interstate commerce commission, in its report, commends Harriman for the improvement of the physical condition of the railroads brought under his control. A strong argument will be built up by the Union Pacific in its utilization of its commendation to prove that the Harriman policies are constructive and not destructive, and that the question to be considered is whether the arrangement has had an injurious effect upon interstate commerce. A decision of the Supreme Court will be asked by the railroads to sustain the argument that control of competing lines is not in violation of the law when such combinations benefit interstate traffic.

man act by the supreme court of the United States in connection with the report of the interstate commerce commission upon the Union Pacific-Harriman investigation seems to warrant the bringing of proceedings, the question which has been presented to the administration is not one easy of solution.

In the case of Harriman vs. Northern Securities company, the supreme court held that the control of the Northern Pacific and the Burlington by the Union Pacific was in violation of the Sherman act, and that the control of the Union Pacific by the Union Pacific was in violation of the Sherman act.

In its report the interstate commerce commission says that "immediately upon the purchase of the Southern Pacific company's stock the Union Pacific began the unification of the two organizations and the exercise of a control over the Southern Pacific which has effected a substantial elimination of competition between the two lines."

Proceeding, it adds: "For all this traffic there exists at present no actual competition between the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific lines."

By reviewing the history of the two companies the commission shows in the transportation of freight and passengers that there was competition and the arrangements were directed to remove it. The Union Pacific gives as its principal reason for acquiring the Southern Pacific the acquisition of the Central Pacific. The commission refuses to accept this as sufficient excuse for the violation of the Sherman act.

When the president returns to Washington in October he will have before him the recommendations of the attorney general, who is now digesting the report of the interstate commerce commission. At Indianapolis, the president, in his speech, favored an arrangement under which railroads could agree upon rates, should congress amend the laws so as to permit pooling, the railroad will claim that consistency requires that amendment of the Sherman act so as to permit such control as exists between the Union and Southern Pacific.

haps, he would prefer the county jail. For disturbing Salvation Army exercises he was sentenced last week by Police Magistrate J. S. Boyer to sit through the services conducted by the red-coated "Soldiers of the Lord" the following three Sunday evenings. For fear Hulteen might escape the penalty by remaining away, Justice Boyer went to the meeting with him. Hulteen declined to join in the singing or rise and give "testimony." He even grinned at certain stages of the proceedings. Judging from his demeanor his regeneration was not accomplished. Still, after it was all over, Justice Boyer was inclined to think that he had been a trifle severe on Hulteen. "Maybe it would have been better to send him to jail," he said. "At any rate, I shall not accompany him again. The next two services I will send a policeman with him."

AN ALBATROSS EGG.

Unique Gift Received by Michigan Militiaman From Pacific.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 3.—(Special to The Herald).—E. G. Heckel, until recently captain of Company G, Houghton Light Infantry, but who is now major of the Third regiment, has just received a unique curiosity in the shape of an albatross egg from the Northern Pacific ocean. The sender was Alfred Storm, formerly a private in the local company. Mr. Storm, in company with Ed. Williams also a former militia man left Houghton over two years ago and enlisted as marines in Uncle Sam's naval service, having recruited at the Milwaukee station.

They are now aboard a man-of-war in Pacific waters and it was while there they conceived the idea of remembering their old time chief. The albatross is well known to seafaring men and a powerful bird of the ocean. The egg is probably five inches in length and almost as many inches broad. The contents had been carefully moved through a small hole in one end.

but within a very few moments after the news of the affair had spread, Chief Trooper, Acting Captain Fiskett, Sergeant Gillon and Detective Irvin and Jerry were on the scene, arriving in an automobile, and Conway was apprehended. He made no resistance and accompanied the officers quietly to the city jail.

One of the saddest features of the affair is the fact that the dead man was the support of his aged mother with whom he lived at 1924 Garfield avenue, and she, learning of the tragedy, tottered to the scene, moaning and wringing her hands in a pitiful manner. Acting Captain Fiskett, seeing the unhappy parent approaching where the dead body of her son lay on the ground, gently led her away from the harrowing scene.

A morbid crowd gathered as is the custom in such cases, but the sight of the bloody face of the dead man was unnerving, several women fainting as they gazed upon it. Conway takes the affair very much to heart and stated at the police station that Maher had been sponging drinks from him and that he told him to leave him alone and keep away from him, and that he had no intention of injuring him seriously when he struck him. Conway has always borne a good reputation and has never been in trouble here before, according to the police. He is married and his family lives in Pittsburg, he having been here about a year.

When the germs of Malaria get into the blood they destroy the rich, nutritive qualities of this vital fluid and reduce it to such a weak, watery condition that it is unable to furnish the system with the nourishment and strength necessary to keep it robust and healthy. The complexion grows pale and sallow, the appetite fails, digestion is deranged, a bilious condition of the system is set up, and often chills and fever make life miserable for the person in whose blood this insidious poison has taken root. There is no way to destroy the system of germs and that is the only way to cure of the germs of the disease, and S. S. S. is the remedy to accomplish this. It goes down into the circulation, destroys the germs, purifies and strengthens the weak, watery blood, making it a rich health-giving and health-sustaining stream, and makes a lasting cure of Malaria. Malarial persons will find S. S. S. not only a prompt remedy but a pleasant acting one, as well as certain cure for this debilitating disease. Besides removing the cause of Malaria S. S. S. builds up every part of the system by its fine tonic effects. Book on the blood containing information about Malaria, and any medical advice desired, free.

At Orangeville the engine filled with water and was standing in the aisles. All in these cars were jammed together in the engine house. The cars were injured, many of them fatally, and six were killed outright.

By explanation of the disaster so far is that the engineer was trying to make up time, and was taking the Horseshoe curve at a high rate of speed.

COLD AUGUST

According to the monthly data compiled in the Duluth weather bureau which covers a period of thirty-seven years, the month just past was one of the coldest Augusts since the weather station was established at this point. With a mean average temperature of 66 degrees, the record was almost broken, which has been but one other August with so low an average. August of 1903 had an average temperature of 66 degrees, and the August of 1900 was 65 degrees. August of 1902 averaged 62 degrees.

BOY FORCED TO CHOOSE BETWEEN SAVING LIFE OF FATHER OR BROTHER

Upset in Launch, He Has to Make a Quick Decision.

Unable to Save Both, He Rescues Younger Brother.

Father Taken Out Shortly
But Proves to be Dead.

New York, Sept. 4.—William Hirsch, Jr., 22 years old, of East New York, had to decide one terrible moment whether he would save his father or his younger brother, Edward, both of whom were drowning before his eyes in Old Mill creek, near Jamaica bay. He saved his brother, who is 18 years old.

The father, 47 years old, sank and when taken from the water fifteen minutes later, was dead.

Mr. Hirsch had taken his two boys for a trip in a launch, and they had cruised around Jamaica bay all the afternoon. They arrived in Old Mill creek at 7 o'clock, and it was the intention of Mr. Hirsch to tie up at the dock in front of Van Winkle's Old Mill hotel.

The engine suddenly went wrong. The launch ran wild and they could not stop it. The father was obliged to leave the steering wheel to try to adjust the machinery.

The launch, which was built on racing lines, jumped about like a live thing, struck the dock and was overturned. The father and both his sons were thrown into the tide, which at that point in the creek is a mill race.

William, Jr., who is a strong swimmer, knew that his father and brother could not swim. The latter was caught by an eddy and carried out into the stream. Edward was floundering nearby.

William's decision was quickly made. Several strong strokes brought him to the side of his brother, who was sinking for the last time. He dived down for the boy, who had disappeared, and bringing him to the surface, fought his way to the shore, where, with the assistance of two men, who threw him a rope, he landed.

Then, despite the urgent pleas of those who were looking on, he turned about in an effort to save the life of his father. He swam to where his father had last been seen and dove repeatedly, but exhaustion caused him at last to give up, and he was dragged into a rowboat.

Afterward the body of the man was found down the stream in a bend of the creek.

ELEPHANT ON AN ICE CREAM 'TOOT'

Big Gunda Spends Pennies and Wrecks the Establishment.

New York, Sept. 4.—Keeper Walter Thurman took Gunda, the big Indian elephant in the Bronx Zoo for a stroll yesterday.

Gunda deposits every penny he gets in a bank and registers it by ringing a small bell at the top of his cage. Almost every visitor gives the elephant a coin to see him "ring it up."

This money he has hoarded, and several times he has attacked keepers who got too near his cash box.

According to Thurman, Gunda had concealed in his trunk a number of coins from his reserve. When they reached the ice cream and soda water stand, near the picnic house, kept by "Joey" Stanley, Gunda dropped a dozen coins on the counter. Stanley picked up the coins and Gunda's keeper tried to get him away from the place, but Gunda refused to move, and upset the cash register and many bottles and cans with his trunk.

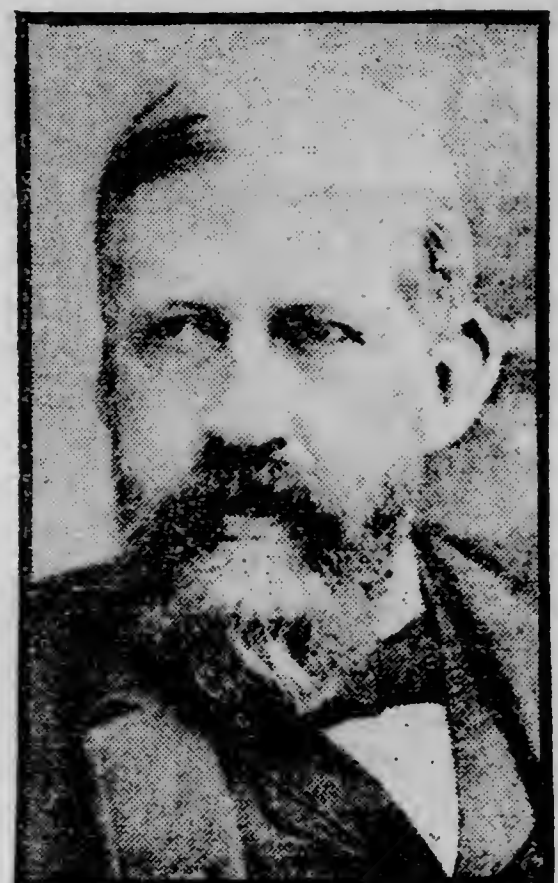

Finally it dawned on the attendants that the elephant expected ice cream for his money, so Stanley dashed out enough ice cream for a troop of children. The elephant became quiet and began to eat the ice cream.

When he had finished, Thurman tried to get Gunda to move on, but Gunda would not move as long as there was ice cream in sight. Three more elephant portions were given. Still he was unsatisfied, and called for more.

By this time the crowd around the stand had grown so that several policemen had to be called to get them away. Several keepers went to Thurman's aid. Finally, after much forcible persuasion and diligent use of the hook, Gunda was convinced that he had exhausted the supply of ice cream, and he went back to his quarters and his tank of collecting pennies for his next excursion.

PRINCE SAW THE FALLS.
Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Prince Wilhelm of Sweden left here at 10 o'clock today for New York. His chamberlain, Xagana Falls yesterday, incoincidentally, viewed the falls and other points of interest, and dined privately at the O'Brien house on the Canadian side, returning to Buffalo at a late hour.

FARMER IS MISSING.
Hinkley, Minn., Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A farmer who lives about half a mile from here, has been missing since last Saturday night, and his relatives and friends are worried about him. There seems to be no plausible explanation for his action.

FORECASTS PROSPERITY

Crop Reports of New York Central Indicate Big Business.

Wheat Generally Over
Average; Corn Good,
But Late.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—General reports of the agents of the New York Central lines from Buffalo west to the Pacific coast and south to the Gulf of Mexico breathe prosperity in every line and forecast its continuance for the next year. Every summer the traffic departments of the New York Central and other big trunk lines gather information of the business outlook for the purpose of preparing for the movement in the fall and winter.

The outlook, without exception, is reported as bright. Fall orders already booked by merchants and manufacturers indicate a heavy merchandise movement. The steel industry presents gratifying conditions with large tonnage already booked, and a feeling that a good crop is assured in many sections.

Manufacturers generally feel that factories will be open all winter. There is some doubt as to the last six months of 1908 on account of the election. Fear of short crops in the West, Northwest and Southwest has been removed by favorable weather of the last few weeks and the improvement has put a healthy tone into the business outlook in the agricultural states. Wheat crops in Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, and Oklahoma have been harvested and enough threshed to form a fairly accurate estimate of the yield. In Kansas returns indicate a crop of 65,000,000 as against 90,000,000 bushels last year, but it compares favorably with the average of 55,000,000 bushels for the last ten years. The Oklahoma wheat crop was reduced 30 per cent by bad weather. Nebraska and Missouri both have good average crops.

Reports from the spring wheat states, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa and Nebraska indicate a 10 per cent reduction as compared with last year.

COMPOSER GRIEG HAS PASSED AWAY

He Was the Author of
Gynt."

Bergen, Norway, Sept. 4.—Edward Hagerup Grieg, the composer, died here this morning. He intended sailing for Christiania yesterday, and his baggage was already on board a steamer, when he complained of feeling ill and the symptoms appearing serious, he was removed to a hospital, where he died.

Dr. Grieg was born at Bergen in 1843, of Scotch ancestry, and received his musical education at Leipzig and Copenhagen.

Grieg had been growing weaker for some years, necessitating the greatest care of his health. He leaves a widow, who was well known as an interpreter of his works, but no children. Among his works was "Peer Gynt," an opera on which the play of that name produced by the late Richard Mansfield in March last, was founded. He was distinctly a Scandinavian composer and his style and coloring in his compositions is considered here to be a national loss.

SMITHS IN THE LEAD

Thirty-Seven Columns of That Name in Manhattan Directory.

Browns Lead the Color
List by a Comfortable Majority.

New York, Sept. 4.—Every member of the Smith family will be gratified with the showing it has made in the one hundred and twenty-first volume of the general directory of Manhattan and the Bronx, now being distributed, for it is holding by a safe margin the lead in numbers over the other families. There are thirty-seven columns of the new directory devoted to the Smith family. Jacques A. is the first person whose name appears in the list, and the last one is Louis Zysa. Between these two are strange and original names. There is one representative of the Bykozyzsky family and also a Wucherperling.

In the colors the Browns and Browns and by a comfortable margin. There are twenty columns of these and the Whites come next, with ten and one-half columns. There are eight columns of Greens and Greens, while the Blacks and Grays break even with three columns.

There are approximately 500,000 names in the book, which would indicate a population of 2,500,000 in Manhattan and the Bronx, two of the five boroughs of Greater New York.

Portland, Me., Sept. 4.—The Mackerel fleet of sixty-five saibs, composed mostly of craft from this port, is now in the water, and the season is port, nearing the close of the summer season, and report that in the month of August the fleet has landed 250,000 worth of fish. The Greyling, Capt. Joseph Smith, of Gloucester, caught and sold $25,000 worth of mackerel. Each man of the crew earns $607 as his share of four months' work. Capt. Smith is 74, and the oldest skipper in the fleet.

POSTMASTERS OBJECT TO BEING POLITICAL ASSETS.

St. Paul, Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota State League of Postmasters of the Fourth class, at a meeting yesterday, united in expressing the opinion that they ought not to be political assets. A resolution to that effect was adopted unanimously. Civil service regulations were what they desired.

The meeting was addressed by J. T. McGeary, former member of congress and now second assistant postmaster general, who was in agreement with most of the views expressed by the delegates. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. D. Kraus, Norwood, Minn.; vice president, C. R. Larson, Ramsey, Minn.; secretary, O. J. Kuntz, Waconia, Minn.; treasurer, S. E. Thompson, Byron, Minn.

THE PUBLIC IS SHOCKED

By the Sanguinary Engagement With Moors
at Casablanca.

Feels That Moroccan
Situation is Growing Steadily Worse.

Paris, Sept. 4.—The news of Monday's sanguinary engagement, near Casablanca, has shocked as well as disturbed the public. The Moroccan situation is steadily growing worse, and that although France is constantly victorious, the dogged, fanatical resistance of the Moors, who appear to be mobilizing in large numbers, may necessitate a distinct enlargement of the allied forces in order to bring the fighting to an end. The fierce assaults of the enemy are believed to be due to France's failure to annihilate the Moors during the last stages of the expedition, a result which France was unable to accomplish, on account of the restrictions imposed on her by the Algeiras treaty. M. Bogaud, the French minister at Tangier, left Paris today for Spain, where he will confer with the Spanish officials on the subject of the enlargement of the action and co-operation of Spain and France. Premier Clemenceau today conferred with War Minister Piquart on the developments in Morocco.

KING ALFONSO CALLED DOWN

By His Ministers for the Fast Driving of Automobile.

London, Sept. 4.—King Alfonso of Spain, according to a story published in Truth, has been lectured by his ministers against personally driving the royal motor car at excessive and dangerous speed. His secret motor expeditions into France have also been condemned by them.

The king recently took a trip from Madrid to Bordeaux, without the knowledge of the Spanish or French authorities, and this cause French police to protest that they could not be held responsible for the king's safety unless they had notice of his intention to visit France.

WOMAN VISITS A MONASTERY

Dons Male Attire and Succeeds in Getting In.

Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 4.—Miss Mary Channing of Pittsburg is the first woman to set foot within the monastery of the Trappist Monks, which stands about twelve miles from this city. In entering the monastery she defied an iron-clad rule of the order. Every summer hundreds of Dubuque residents and visitors, who come to the city, go to the monastery grounds to while away a day in the shadowed retreat. While men and women are admitted to the main grounds, men only are admitted to the abbey.

Miss Channing is a literary woman. Visiting the monastery grounds, she asked permission to go inside the abbey. Firmly she was refused.

"I decided then and there that I should get inside the abbey," she said. "There was but one way to do it, and that was to don men's clothes and pretend I was a man. I suppose it was a wicked thing to do, but my curiosity got the best of me. A good old monk offered to show me around. He never dreamed that underneath the soft funnel coat I wore, the heart of a girl was beating."

"We went on past the abbey, down the long silent halls and into the apartment where the monks sleep at night. Hard little bunks were arranged in long rows. Then we went on through the dining room, with its tables void of covering and its coarse utensils, and finally out into the grounds. The monk bade me a friendly adieu as I left and begged me to return."

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.
New Orleans, Sept. 4.—At the height of a storm on Lake Ponchartraine last night, the oyster patrol boat Majestic was struck by lightning and set on fire, being destroyed. The crew had narrow escapes getting away in lifeboats in the heavy seas. They were picked up by another vessel. The Majestic was owned by the state and used to regulate the oyster industry.

AMERICAN YACHT WINS THE FIRST RACE IN SPAIN.

Pilbao, Spain, Sept. 4.—The American yacht Chevincin VIII won the first race today in the international contest for the Maria Churruarri cup, distance 74 miles, 2 hours 14 minutes 11 seconds. The American yacht Marlborough was second and the Spanish yacht Dorica was third. The American yacht Spokane I finished seventh.

King Alfonso witnessed the start but did not follow the race, on account of a portion of the racing of the royal yacht having been carried away. His majesty congratulated the winner and the health of the Americans in the clubhouse, which rang with cheers for the victorious American yacht.

STARTS FOR NEW YORK.
St. Petersburg, Sept. 4.—The Most Rev. Dr. Platon, the recently appointed archbishop of the Orthodox Russian church in the United States, in succession to the Rev. Dr. Mikon, has started for New York.

BENEATH THE ALTAR

The Mortal Remains of Archbishop Are Placed in Crypt.

Cardinal Gibbons and Other Dignitaries Attend Ceremonies.

Boston, Sept. 4.—Honored by a prince of the church, the cardinal archbishop of Baltimore, his intimate friend for upwards of half a century, by a host of prelates and priests, by the commonwealth of Massachusetts and city of Boston, where he was born, the body of Most Rev. John Joseph Williams, archbishop of Boston and dean of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in the United States, was today placed in the crypt beneath the high altar of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, which stands as a monument to his labors.

The solemn ceremony of transferring the body from the huge catafalque upon which the casket had rested since Monday, to its place of repose beneath the great white altar followed a pontifical mass of requiem. The requiem, which was made deeply impressive by the solemn splendor and elaborate ritual, was celebrated by Cardinal Gibbons, whose rank was bestowed upon him by Pope Leo XIII, at the request of Archbishop Williams, who had declined the honor in favor of his closest friend in the hierarchy.

Following the chanting of the Nuncies, the deceased prelate's conditor, and now his successor, the most Rev. William H. O'Connell, delivered an eloquent eulogy. Before the solemn pontifical mass, masses for the late Archbishop Williams were said or sung in all the parish churches and chapels of the jurisdiction.

Although the admission was by tickets, the vast numbers who crowded to the doors long before the beginning of the service, and thousands stood in.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON HOT AFTER PARTICIPANTS IN PRIZE FIGHT OF SUNDAY

Liable to Punishment.

Law Also Makes It
Offense to Arrange for Fight.

Directs the Sheriff to
Investigation.

St. Paul, Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Using language that cannot be misinterpreted, Governor Johnson, has directed the attention of Sheriff Gerber and County Attorney O'Brien of Ramsey county, to the disgraceful prize fight of Sunday and the sale of liquor on the steamer which carried the sports into Wisconsin, where the fight was pulled off. "Every person connected with the affair or just Sunday is liable to punishment under the law of the state," said Governor Johnson. "The law against prize fighting and against aiding or encouraging the holding of such fights is plain and a warning was given against the fight advertised to be held last Sunday."

"I have directed the sheriff of Ramsey county to investigate the matter fully and to report the result of his investigation to the county attorney and to myself. We intend to put a stop to these fights."

A miscellaneous company of so-called "sports" left Sunday morning on the steamer W. Cowles for the purpose of pulling off the fight, which was fought about two miles below Diamond Bluff in Wisconsin.

Governor Johnson, on Friday, issued a warning letter to several sheriffs in different counties. These sheriffs had deputized boards, who found themselves without jurisdiction when the steamer landed on the Wisconsin side.

The law in Minnesota makes it also an offense to arrange for a fight to be held in any other state, and the offense is punishable in any county of the state.

Sheriff Gerber had two deputies on the steamer and the information gained by them ought to be of some value in the prosecutions urged and, indeed, commanded by the governor of Minnesota. Sheriff Gerber made the application, and the county attorney now has it under consideration.

Sheriff Gerber has addressed a letter to Governor Johnson in which he admits his deputies did not prevent the sale of liquor on the boat and could not prevent the fight, which was a physical violence, that Capt. Winans, for selling liquor on the boat on Sunday, Sheriff Gerber made the application, and the county attorney now has it under consideration.

Sheriff Gerber in his letter claims that he did succeed in preventing the fight being held within the limits of Ramsey county.

FAKIR MAKES MANY SHUDDER

Causes a Dummy to Fall
From a Dizzy Height.

New York, Sept. 4.—Hundred in East Orange witnessed a sight that made them gasp for breath when after a long and arduous climb, after a distance of nearly one thousand feet, hanging in a huge, square airship, he apparently lost his grip and fell toward the ground.

In awestruck silence the spectators watched the form come rapidly toward earth, now head first, now in horizontal position, and again feet foremost, finally alighting in an open field.

The victim lay face downward, and for some time none appeared to see whether or not life was extinct.

Then through the crowd John Edwards rushed his way. He vaulted up to the motionless figure and, turning it over, closely scrutinized the features. Drawing a handkerchief from his pocket, he reverently draped it over the face and arose.

"There is no life here," he said in solemn tones. "Is there any person in the crowd who can identify the victim?" Women shuddered and fell to the rear, while several men, emboldened by the example of Edwards, stepped forward and one of them lifted the handkerchief, exposing to view the mutilated features of a carefully constructed dummy.

"Stung!" yelled some one in the crowd, while a woman became hysterical, and all the men joined in a wild burst of laughter.

Investigation disclosed the fact that the dummy was the work of Fred Hickson, 14 years old, of Verona, who had attached the figure to his giant kite and cleverly arranged for the "accident."

TOSSED FROM THEIR BEDS

By a Terrific Explosion of Gunpowder in Chicago.

Believed to Have Been
"Dynamiters."

Chicago, Sept. 4.—An explosion in the store of Stanley Graham, dealer in paints and wall paper, No. 149 North State street, at 3 o'clock this morning, partially wrecked the building, and threw out of bed several persons asleep on the second floor, but injured no one. The detonation was heard a mile away, and the guests at the Virginia hotel, nearby, as well as the occupants of houses in the vicinity, were awakened and all were for a time excited, and a few people ran into the streets.

The explosion is believed to have been gunpowder. All the windows were broken, and the contents of the store were demolished. The families of E. C. Hall and M. C. Clark occupied the second story, and Clark was thrown violently from his bed.

The explosion is attributed to the "Dynamiters," who have been, it is believed by the police, trying to revenge themselves on Chicago gamblers. But why Mr. Graham should have been selected as a victim of vengeance is at present unknown.

WOMAN VISITS A MONASTERY

Dons Male Attire and
ting In.

Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 4.—Miss Mary Channing of Pittsburg is the first woman to set foot within the monastery of the Trappist Monks, which stands about twelve miles from this city. In entering the monastery she defied an iron-clad rule of the order. Every summer hundreds of Dubuque residents and visitors, who come to the city, go to the monastery grounds to while away a day in the shadowed retreat. While men and women are admitted to the main grounds, men only are admitted to the abbey.

Miss Channing is a literary woman. Visiting the monastery grounds, she asked permission to go inside the abbey. Firmly she was refused.

"I decided then and there that I should get inside the abbey," she said. "There was but one way to do it, and that was to don men's clothes and pretend I was a man. I suppose it was a wicked thing to do, but my curiosity got the best of me. A good old monk offered to show me around. He never dreamed that underneath the soft funnel coat I wore, the heart of a girl was beating."

"We went on past the abbey, down the long silent halls and into the apartment where the monks sleep at night. Hard little bunks were arranged in long rows. Then we went on through the dining room, with its tables void of covering and its coarse utensils, and finally out into the grounds. The monk bade me a friendly adieu as I left and begged me to return."

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.
New Orleans, Sept. 4.—At the height of a storm on Lake Ponchartraine last night, the oyster patrol boat Majestic was struck by lightning and set on fire, being destroyed. The crew had narrow escapes getting away in lifeboats in the heavy seas. They were picked up by another vessel. The Majestic was owned by the state and used to regulate the oyster industry.

AMERICAN YACHT WINS THE FIRST RACE IN SPAIN.

Pilbao, Spain, Sept. 4.—The American yacht Chevincin VIII won the first race today in the international contest for the Maria Churruarri cup, distance 74 miles, 2 hours 14 minutes 11 seconds. The American yacht Marlborough was second and the Spanish yacht Dorica was third. The American yacht Spokane I finished seventh.

King Alfonso witnessed the start but did not follow the race, on account of a portion of the racing of the royal yacht having been carried away. His majesty congratulated the winner and the health of the Americans in the clubhouse, which rang with cheers for the victorious American yacht.

THE STOCKS ARE LOWER

The Copper Shares Ease Off During the Day.

Copper stocks had a good tone at the opening of the market today, but they went off after the first hour and closed a little weaker.

In Boston there was quite heavy selling of some of the leading issues, but the declines were gradual. A big house threw a quantity of Greene-Canaan on the market, and it went off from $12.50 to $12 and closed at $12 bid and $12.12½ asked.

North Butte opened at $66, declined to $64.75 and closed at $64.50 bid and $65 asked. Anaconda opened at $72.25, advanced to $73.50, went off to $71.50 and closed at $72 bid.

Butte Coalition opened at $21, declined to $20 and closed at $20.25 bid and $20.75 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $155, declined to $153 and closed at $152.50 bid and $153 asked. Anaconda opened at $47.75, advanced to $48.50, declined to $47 and closed at $47 bid.

Superior & Pittsburgh sold at $14.37½, declined to $14 and closed at $14 bid and $14.12½ asked. Globe Consolidated sold at $10 and $10.12½ and closed at $10 bid and $10.12½ asked. Denn-Arizona at $9 and $9.25 and closed at $9.25 bid and $9.50 asked. Butte Superior at $2.25 and closed at $2.12½ bid and $2.25 asked. Cliff at $1.75 and closed at $1.75 bid and $1.50 asked.

A quarterly dividend of $1.50 and 50 cents extra has been declared on Copper Range. This is the same as last time. The regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent and 1 per cent extra has been declared on Granby Consolidated.

Comptroller Had More Rigid Ideas of Economy Than Council.

While the sum recommended by the council committee last evening for the permanent improvement fund is much under that which would be needed for all the improvements considered, it is still much over the estimate of the comptroller. The following table shows that, while the council attempted economy, it did not base up as many improvements as did the comptroller in figuring his estimate:

|--|-------------|
| Total improvements considered by special committee of the common council | $71,000.00 |
| Recommended by comptroller   | $7,450.00  |
| Comptroller's estimate for 1908  | $5,000.00  |

Increase over comptroller's estimate $24,950.00
If the conference committee makes provision for the additional sum, it will either be necessary to increase the rate of taxation or take a portion of the amount from each of the various departments of the city.

NEW TERM HAS BEGUN

The September calendar of the district court went through a course of triumphing and pruning this morning, under the direction of Judge Dill, the presiding judge for the term, and when the session ended, out of 34 cases on a calendar, there remained 122 for jury trial, forty-five for trial by the court, and thirty-two divorce cases.

During the call of the calendar nine cases were taken and nine were continued. The process took a much longer time than usual, but the court was able to get through with the cases. The courtroom was pretty well filled with attorneys, who have cases for trial.

The grand jury assembled at 10 o'clock and was charged by Judge Dill. Ray T. Lewis was appointed foreman. The grand jury will sit on the grand jury.

It is understood that the cases of the grand jury are likely to be taken up by the grand jury this afternoon. Several witnesses from the grand jury have been subpoenaed to appear before the jury.

BELIEVED TO BE ON MORSE

In spite of dispatches from Aberdeen, S. D., which were published in The Herald last evening and in all of the Twin City papers, stating that Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is hunting chickens in Dakota, it is believed that he is on the steamer Samson of Morse, which will arrive in Duluth tonight.

It was stated at the office of the Pittsburgh Steamship company this morning, that the president's son had boarded the Morse at Connetquot, and was making the lake trip in charge of Capt. E. O. Whitney.

It is possible that an error has been made and that it is one of the president's younger sons who is on the Morse, while Theodore is hunting chickens in Dakota. The mystery will be cleared tonight when the Morse arrives in Duluth.

BRIDGE HIT BY STEAMER

The Northern Pacific railroad bridge between Duluth and Superior, located a short distance above the interstate bridge, and used by practically all trains entering Duluth, was out of commission for several hours this morning as a result of being struck by one of the big outward bound ore carriers.

Temporary repairs were immediately started as soon as the accident was reported shortly before 7 o'clock, and at 1 o'clock this afternoon the structure was ready for the use of trains again.

The damage was not heavy, and an ordinary section crew was able to make the repairs.

The steamer Edenborn, one of the Pittsburgh boats, while coming down from the Missabe ore docks was about to pass through the Minnesota draw of the bridge when the lumber steamer Lycoming, which was working in to the Algier-Smith dock, swung around into the channel and directly in the path of the Edenborn.

In order to avoid a collision with the Lycoming, the engines of the Edenborn were immediately reversed, causing the big boat to swing in so that the draw of the bridge was struck. It was not a very heavy blow, and the big boat was not damaged in the least.

The bridge, however, was knocked out of true and it was necessary for the rails to be re-adjusted and other repairs made before trains were given the right of way.

Navigation through this bridge was blocked during the time repairs were being made to the bridge.

IS CAUGHT AT WILLOW RIVER

Charged with taking mortgaged property out of the county without the consent of the mortgagee, George Miller, a resident of the range, was brought back from Willow River, Minn., this morning, by Deputy Sheriff R. S. Lerch, and lodged in the county jail.

According to the officers, Miller bought a horse from a man in Virginia, to whom he gave a mortgage to cover part payment for the animal. It is alleged that he took the horse to Two Harbors, in Lake county, purchased a buggy, and drove the rig through Duluth Labor day, southward bound.

By means of messages to the authorities at Willow River, Miller was intercepted at that point and held for the St. Louis county authorities.

If the charges can be proved, Miller stands a chance of being convicted and punished quite severely.

The above table, compiled from the books of the building inspector, show the relative amounts of the permits issued during the first eight months of the years 1906-1907, or up to Sept. 1.

The fact that in the month of March, 1906, the permit for the $500,000 ore docks was issued makes the large difference in the amounts of the two months in comparison, otherwise the amount of permits issued during 1907 is not very largely from that of 1906.

Building operations in Duluth show a steady increase, both in number of permits issued and valuation of structures erected. During the first eight months of 1906 there were 686 permits issued and in the same time of the present year 823.

SUPERIOR NEWS

MAY BUILD TWO BOATS.

Prospects Good for Winter Work at Shipyards.

The prospects are believed to be good for the construction of two new 60-foot boats at the Superior Shipbuilding company's yards this winter.

The steamer Pope, which is now building at Superior, will be finished in about five or six weeks, when she will be launched. The work on the boat has been greatly retarded by the lack of men. It is said that the officials of the yard could use 100 more men if they had them.

ENROLLMENT LARGER.

Attendance at Superior Normal Shows Big Gain.

The enrollment at the Superior Normal school shows a gain of 121 over last week, which was the first of the school year. There are now 251 students enrolled in the Normal department and before the end of the week, the number will undoubtedly be much larger. In the model department there are 150 pupils enrolled.

The prospects for athletics at the school are very good. It is not improbable that a football team will be organized and other athletics will flourish. There is said to be some star basket ball material at the school, including Nixon, the star of last year's Nelson-Dewey alumni team.

STREET RAILWAY SCORED.

Council Would Force It to Fix Pavement Properly.

Mayor Linley called the attention of the city council, which met last evening, to the condition of the paving on Twentieth street, from Eighteenth to Twentieth streets, where the street car company had torn up some blocks and put them back in place. The mayor reported that the blocks had been replaced very indifferently and that a shoveler had been sent to shovel the dirt back into the holes. He urged the council to pass a resolution to the effect that the city should provide a room some place on Tower street to be used as a Y. M. C. A. reading room.

A blanket resolution providing for the building of cross walks all over the city was reconsidered and laid on the table. The works will probably be put down only when residents petition for them.

It was decided that wherever necessary, cross walks should be either raised or put underground, so as not to interfere with the gas and water connections on John avenue from Third street to Belmont. This is the first step toward the paving of this stretch of thoroughfare.

Boys' Scrap Aired in Court.

The juvenile court, presided over by Judge Smith, disposed of its first case this morning, in which the principals were under 14 years of age. The complaining witness was Leo Marlowe, aged 12 years, who claimed that Barney Dahl, aged 10 years, and Mike Slek, aged 13 years, assaulted him. The proof was sufficient, and the court, after giving the two culprits a severe lecture, let them go on their promise of good behavior in the future.

Farrington Forfeited Bail.

J. C. Farrington, who was arrested a few days ago on the charge of running a house of ill fame, failed to appear when his case was called this morning, and forfeited his $25 bail.

Claims She Was Assaulted.

James Lang, who boards at a Banks avenue boarding house, was arrested this morning on the complaint of Agnes Lang, a domestic at the place, who claims Lang assaulted her because she refused to give him a ride. Lang was taken to the police station and the hearing was postponed until this afternoon.

Pavement Is Accepted.

The board of public works this afternoon accepted the sidewalk pavement plan that has just been completed on Winter street from Third to Oak. The plan is the first sidewalk block pavement laid in Superior.

LOCAL MEN DID WELL

Made Good Showing in the National Rifle Shoot.

Major F. E. Resche has returned from Camp Perry, Ohio, where the big national rifle shoot was held and reports an enjoyable time among the crack shots of the United States assembled there in competition for honors.

Forty-eight teams were entered in the meet, including the army, navy, marine corps, naval academy at Annapolis, every state in the union and a team from Honolulu.

Minnesota stood well up in the finals, scoring in eleventh place out of forty-eight teams represented and the final score made by the state showing an improvement over last year's score of 25 points. The score this year made by Minnesota was only two points lower than last year's winning score.

Added to this good showing, native sons carried off some of the honors. Maj. Resche taking tenth in the national individual match and receiving a cash prize and bronze medal for his skill. There were 76 men entered in this contest.

Lat. Olson of this city carried off the first prize on the national revolver match at 75 yards and received a gold medal and cash prize. There were 800 shots entered in this event and the Duluth man has been the recipient of many congratulations.

The shoot was won by the team representing the navy, which carried off the big trophy.

The Duluth men on the Minnesota team at the meet were Maj. Resche, Lieut. Oscar J. Olson and Sergeant Simpson of the Third Regiment band. The next annual meet will probably be held at the same place.

FLED FROM COHASSETT

Mrs. William Grutzmaker Feared Husband Would Kill Her.

Charged with threatening his wife violence and carrying a revolver said to have been procured for that purpose, William Grutzmaker was arraigned in municipal court this morning and was sentenced to fifteen days at hard labor in the county jail.

The domestic differences of the couple were thoroughly aired in court, the wife appearing and telling a story of neglect, brutal treatment at the hands of the man and fears of personal injury, which prompted her to flee from her home in Cohasset to this city where she arrived yesterday.

She stated that her husband, who she alleged, drinks heavily, has repeatedly beaten her, and her body is now black and blue from recent injuries.

She made complaint to Assistant City Attorney McKee yesterday, and Grutzmaker was located, a revolver being found on his person when he was arrested.

He told the police that he had purchased the weapon for a protection against wolves which frequent the locality where he resides, Cohasset, this state.

Grutzmaker stated that he had a good job at that place, is willing to provide for his wife and four children, but that she circulated stories about him while they lived there, and then departed for Duluth, taking with her most of the household goods.

He arrived here at about the same time, and she states, followed her. She feared that he might carry out threats he had made of killing her, and made complaint to the officials.

RAILROADS

THE FIGHT HAS BEGUN

Hill Lines Are Trying to Block Work of Soo.

The fight between the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern roads on the one side and the Soo on the other, for right of way privileges through Superior on their way to Duluth was begun in Madison, Wis., yesterday, when the application of the Interstate Commerce commission and also of the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota Railway company to build in Superior and Douglas county, Wis., met with opposition at the hearing before the state railroad commission.

J. A. Murphy and Louis Hanich, Superior attorneys, represented the Hill roads, and argued against the application. Mr. Murphy opposed the construction of the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota across certain lines of track already laid, on the ground that it would interfere with traffic. Attorney Hanich, also of Superior, appeared for the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota. The hearing adjourned until quite a struggle, and the commission ordered an adjournment to see if the attorneys could not get together and come to an agreement.

Representatives of the Hill lines have pressed the greatest friendliness for the Soo, which is really behind the new agency, but it has been understood all along that a fight would be put up against the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota, because the latter road has acquired terminal and right of way privileges that the Hill roads intended to use themselves. If the Soo carries out the details of its plans as laid at present, future improvement of work of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, so far as the protective laying of rails on property which has been or is about to be acquired by the Soo, will be blocked.

A BIG SUCCESS.

Escanaba Plant for Treating Railway Ties Will Be Enlarged.

Gladstone, Mich., Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The process of preserving railroad ties has proved so successful at the Escanaba plant of the Chicago & Northwestern company that $5,000 is to be expended in enlarging the institution. In addition to the so-called Wellhouse process, now in use, the latter creates a vacuum in the ties to be treated. With the zinc chloride or Wellhouse method, only soft timbers can be treated to advantage. With the vacuum process, the harder timbers, such as maple, can be treated with profit, and their life extended through a considerably longer period of years. Timber is becoming so high in price in consequence of its increasing scarcity that the railroads have found that resort to the preserving process pays them.

TO TALK ON LABOR TOPIC.

Rev. Campbell Coyle to Begin Series of Sermons.

The Presbyterian denomination, realizing that there is a deepening breach between capital and labor, has created a department of church and labor, and urges its ministers to preach on Sunday's before and after Labor day, sermons bearing directly on this important matter.

Accordingly, Rev. Campbell Coyle will begin next Sunday night at the First Presbyterian church, a series of sermons to workmen. He says there will not be the least effort to place any one in a peculiar, but to proclaim what seems to be the simple truth.

The topic for next Sunday night is "The Signs of the Times," and on each successive Sunday night he will discuss on the following topics: "Social Unrest and the Cause Behind It," "The Church and the Workmen," "Jesus Christ and the Workmen," and "The Problem of Capital and Labor and How to Solve It."

MOTHERHOOD

MRS. DANIEL SULLIVAN

Unquestionably preparation for a healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism and renders it perfectly normal.

A woman in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution. Read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sullivan, 358 E. 7th Street, Flatbush, N. Y.

"What a blessing Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is to motherhood. I send you a picture of my three month old baby and myself, and the photo shows the splendid condition of our health. That I am so well and the baby so healthy and happy is entirely due to your excellent remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it for five months before baby came and it brought me an easy confinement and kept me strong, whereas I was weak and in perfectly miserable health all the time when my first three children were born."

Mrs. Geo. Walters of Woodlawn, Ill., also writes: "I feel it my duty to tell of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me and to recommend it to all expect-tant mothers to insure a healthy child and easy birth. I had lost three children and was discouraged when a friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and it not only kept me well and strong but I have as healthy a child as you will find anywhere. I hope other discouraged women may read this letter and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be benefited by it as I have been."

Women should remember that for more than thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been without a rival in sustaining woman's health and curing all those painful ailments peculiar to her sex. Its record shows that it has cured almost every form of female complaint, organic, falling and displacements and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the periods of child-birth and change of life. It cures backache and all those bearing-down sensations.

If there is anything about your case you do not understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. It is absolutely free. Thousands of women have done so and have received help.

THREE ARE SENTENCED

Hill Sent to Penitentiary for Three and One-half Years.

Mullen Signs Pledge and His Sentence is Suspended.

Three men who pleaded on information to various charges were sentenced by Judge Dibel late yesterday afternoon.

The longest term was meted out to Gust Hill, who must spend three years and six months in the state penitentiary at Stillwater for assaulting John Knutti with a knife. Knutti was the constable at Aurora. He attempted to arrest Hill on the charge of stealing a watch, when the latter turned on the officer and cut him across the face. Hill claimed that he had been shot during the trouble and was trying to defend himself with the knife. He admitted that he was drunk when the trouble occurred. The officer who was cut claimed that Hill had been drunk for three days and had been making a nuisance of himself.

Joseph Fugina, who pleaded guilty to the theft of $25 from the cash register of an Eveleth saloon, was sent to the state reformatory at St. Cloud. Fugina is 24 years old and this is the first time that he has been in trouble. The information showed that Fugina was a former saloon keeper at Aurora. He was arrested at the time he broke into the saloon. He expressed penitence for his offense and promised the court that he will hereafter endeavor to keep sober.

Michael Mullen pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny. He stole a rifle and some cigars from French & Flower's warehouse in the town of French, while in an intoxicated condition. Mullen made a plea for leniency, claiming that drink and bad company had not him into trouble.

On condition that Mullen goes to Bishop McColrick and signs the pledge of total abstinence and reports to the court attorney once a month, the court stated that he would suspend sentence in his case.

Mullen promised faithfully to follow out instructions and the court sentenced him to a term of five years in the state penitentiary at Stillwater, then suspended the sentence.

During Mullen's good behavior the sentence will not become effective, but if he slips from grace and breaks the pledge he is likely to be sent to Stillwater to serve his time.

BIG INCREASE IN BANK DEPOSITS

Duluth People Have Average of $31 More Cash.

Evidence of Duluth's steady growth and ever increasing prosperity can be easily found in a comparison of the bank statements of a year ago and those for this last quarter. The total growth in the deposits in the four principal banks during the year has been $2,549,024.92.

If this increase were divided equally among the 80,000 inhabitants of the city it would mean that each person would have approximately $31 more money deposited than he had a year ago at this time.

According to the statements of the four principal banks, the total deposits last week, there is a total deposit amounting to $20,329,465.10, as compared to a total of $17,780,440.24 last year. The latter figure also shows a very substantial increase over the year before.

The August statement for this year of the American Exchange bank shows a total of $9,425,447.53 deposited, compared with a total of $8,121,655.70, a year ago.

The statement of the First National bank for this year shows a total of $7,737,654.22, as compared with $7,541,901.60, the total of a year ago.

The City National bank also shows a substantial increase in deposits over last year. The total for this year is $2,641,800.35, compared to $2,087,297.10 a year ago. The Duluth Savings bank containing the deposits mostly of the working men, shows an increase of about $100,000 in deposits over last year. The total for this year amounts to $255,559.85, while that of last year was $150,455.25.

LACKS MEN TO RUN CARS

Street Railway Company Needs Crews for Fourth Street Line.

There has been some complaint by East Fourth street patrons of the street railway line, on the ground that the company has not provided the service which seems to be called for by the new schedule that was in effect a few days ago.

The matter has been called to the attention of General Manager Warren, who says:

"The new schedule provides for a five-minute service on the East Fourth street line practically all day. This more frequent service than the line ever had before, owing to the earlier and later service, the extra service requiring longer hours, there has been a large increase in the working hours of the men employed on the cars.

"We have been unable thus far to get enough additional men to run all the cars that are shown by the time card. As a matter of fact, the East Fourth street line is having more frequent service in Chicago Wants "Pay-as-You-Enter" Cars With More Room.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—The adoption of a "pay-as-you-enter" streetcar for Chicago was considered by the board of supervising engineers yesterday at a meeting which probably will determine the question of the clear width to be allowed between cars on double-tracked streets.

With a "pay-as-you-enter" car all fares would be collected before passengers reached their seats.

There would be no necessity under the "pay-as-you-enter" plan of having the aisle wide enough for two people to pass—the conductor collecting fares and the passenger attempting to get off the car.

TELEPHONE POLES GLASS.
Inventor Secures Patent and Makes Promise Low Price.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The problem of what this country is to do when the rapidly decreasing supply of timber for telegraph and telephone poles is entirely exhausted may be solved by a German architect, who has been granted patents on poles made of glass in the United States and in European countries.

The consular agent at Cassel reports that a stock company has been organized and a factory for the manufacturing of glass poles has been built at Glossemroeder. The glass mass of the poles is made in a mold and is strengthened by interlacing and interwinding with strong wire threads. The

SITE WAS CHOSEN UNDER PROTEST

Fairmount Park Pavilion Was Built in Spite of Warning.

Fairmount park had such a large crowd of people Labor day that the street railway facilities out to that portion of the city were inadequate to handle the people. This condition of affairs emphasizes the protest that was made by the street railway officials to the establishment of the pavilion at Fairmount at the time the matter was agitated in the city council.

Two other bids were received. These came from the Worthington Steam Pump company, $9,300, and the Fairbanks Morse company, $6,750.

After an extended discussion the tax levy for the year was placed at $150,000.

It is understood the temperance societies served notice on the executive that appeal would be made to Attorney General Young if the law were not more strictly enforced.

DIES FROM SHOCK.

Eight-Year-Old Child Cannot Stand Serious Operation.

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The home of Alex. Reid, a well known merchant, has been saddened by the news of the death of Eva, Mr. Reid's 8-year-old daughter, who passed away at Rochester, Minn., after an operation at St. Mary's hospital for tuberculosis of the bowels.

The child was taken to the hospital about two weeks ago. It develops that she was not able to stand the shock following the operation. The body is expected to arrive this afternoon and the funeral will probably be held tomorrow.

CASES SET FOR SEPTEMBER 10

Accused Deputies to Explain Charges on That Date.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cases against the deputies charged with having attacked innocent bystanders at last Thursday's inquest were called Tuesday before Judge Prince in the municipal court.

On the motion of Deputy R. R. Hill, the cases against Deputy Ed. Johnson for assault and battery against Ed. Kestner and Deputy J. Kennedy for assault and battery on Mrs. Mookin were postponed until Sept. 10. They were bailed at $50 each.

The cause of delay was lack of counsel for the defendants. It is expected that one of the steel companies' legal staff will defend the arrested men. There is some talk that the cases may be tried in Mesika township as feeling against the deputies may prejudice the chances for a fair trial. City Attorney McGilvary, who was in town, was not in court to appear against the men.

The celebration of Labor day, who tried to be too hilarious, appeared before Judge Prince and were fined $5 and costs. They were Steve Carson, William Johnson and Joseph Musich.

NATIONAL FLAG IN PROCESSION

Strikers Conduct Themselves Decorously on Labor Day.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Those who expected disturbances on the part of the strikers on Labor day were basing their hopes on what did not happen. The day was spent very quietly in the afternoon the strikers marched in parade from the arena hall about the main streets, then back to the hall, where an open meeting was addressed by President McNair and Secretary Madeline.

The parade was headed by the president and secretary of the local lodge. With them marched a strike band, the Stars and Stripes. Then followed the men, many of them in uniform, and the children, numbering 250; at the end marched the strikers. About 600 were in line. It was expected that there would be more men in line. Many union men were scattered among the bystanders.

At night the union gave a dance in Utrana hall for the benefit of the strikers. The plan for the day included a photograph of the union, but it was not taken, as the photographers would not work on Labor day.

DEPUTY ARRESTS COAT.

All He Got of an Austrian He Was Seeking on Warrant.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A warrant for the arrest of John Vermeace, was placed in the hands of Deputies Horgan and Egan. They found the man in Chickentown, near Eveleth. One of the deputies grabbed him by the coat, but the Austrian jumped away and escaped through a window, leaving the astounded deputy with Vermeace's coat in his possession.

The miners' union may lose $200 because of the failure of Attorney McGilvary to perfect the bond that would make possible the appeal to the higher court the cases against Matt Petrich and John Indihar. The men were arrested for writing threatening letters. They were released by Attorney McGilvary.

For the union they were fined by Judge Prince, and were given ten days to make an appeal. This the attorney neglected to do. Judge Prince will go to Duluth, Thursday and see the county attorney and try to have the case re-opened.

PERKINS ON RANGE.

Steel Trust Magnate Visits Eveleth for a Short Time Tuesday.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—George W. Perkins, chairman of the Steel corporation's finance committee, was in town Tuesday. He spent some time with Superintendents Harding and Trezona of the Royal and Sprague mines.

There is no significance as far as the strike is concerned in Mr. Perkins' visit, as he had to come to Eveleth to make connections with the Mesika train, his destination being Mount Iron. Mr. Perkins was making his first visit to the range.

In the party accompanying Mr. Perkins was President Cole of the Oliver Mining

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Mme. Lydia M. Von Pinklestein Mountford, who is this week lecturing before Duluth audiences on the "Holy Land," was born and brought up in Jerusalem, and in her family tree presents a wonderfully interesting mingling of races.

Madam Mountford was born in Jerusalem and spent the first twenty years of her life there. She traces her descent back to the Mamras, a people who were called the friends of Abraham. They migrated to Russia before the days of Peter the Great, at a time when that country was made up of feudal clans, which were better governed than the people are today. Her father's people were always fighting for the spiritual truths. It was to learn more of the Holy Land that her father left Russia and went to Jerusalem. There Madam Mountford received a double education, the best of the Oriental and the best of the European. There she learned to speak five languages fluently, Arabic, French, Russian, German and English.

She was married to an Englishman, an officer in the Indian service, and by adoption she is an American, having taken out her American citizenship, in order that she may exercise the right of suffrage if it be given to American women.

In speaking of the American women today she said: "The American woman is a fine type of womanhood. She may perhaps in these days become a little self-conscious, due to the plaudits of the world and the little criticism which has come her way, but the great mass of American women are coming to realize more and more each day that divine motherhood is the object and end of all her striving. By motherhood I do not mean simply bringing into the world a certain number of children, but the motherhood of thoughts and actions as well as children. Many teachers and great women reformers have realized this far better than a great many mothers of large families, but it is nevertheless the great idea which the woman of the world will eventually come to see. The Christian Scientists have realized the true meaning of the word when they call the originator of their train of thought 'Mother.' She who brings new thought, who spreads a helpful idea, from the simplest of duties to the teaching of the future citizens, is another in the true sense of the word. The realization of the meaning of divine motherhood is the thing that American women and through them largely, the women of the world must soon realize. Their truest liberty, is the thing for which every real woman is now working. When the free suffragist movement first began in this country the rather unfortunate efforts of some few in their mode of dress, undoubtedly did the movement some harm. A manly style of dress was affected by some of the originators, and thereby frightened off many women who were in perfect sympathy with the ideas of the movement. But the real freedom and liberty of women is understood by great numbers of the women of this country, and it will be through them that greater freedom will come to the women of the world."

In the Holy Land the year 1907 is the Sabbath year of the century, and for that reason Mme. Mountford's lectures are this year being presented free. In former years the lectures were given under the direction of the lecture bureau, but during this Sabbath year of the century, the Holy Land Messenger, as Mme. Mountford is called, is presenting her interpretation of the Bible and descriptions of life in the Holy Land free. Mme. Mountford will speak at the First Presbyterian church this evening on "A Description of Life in Jerusalem," and she will continue the series of lectures Thursday evening.

WEST DULUTH*WANT FLATS OR NOTHING

The Confirmed Flat-Dwellers Cannot be Accommodated.

A well dressed young woman called at a West Duluth real estate office this morning and her visit developed another phase of the scarcity of houses to rent in West Duluth. She asked the real estate man if he had a flat to rent. He didn't, but he had two or three nice houses, modern conveniences, reasonable terms, etc.

"Goodness, no. I don't want a house. I want a flat, you know," was the damper the young woman put on the possibilities of a deal.

"You see my husband works in an office here and I wanted to move down from Duluth," she continued, "but I couldn't think of living in anything but a flat, provided with heat and a gas range. I have tried keeping house separately, but find the flat more is the better, and will have no other. It's queer nobody has put up some flat buildings here. They're so convenient, you know. And I would like to live in West Duluth, but I will not leave my flat uptown."

She had no sooner gone, than somebody called up over the telephone and the real estate man had the same story poured into his ears. A lady wanted a flat. Nothing else would do. There was no flat to be had, so the transactions were made.

So the real estate man told his grievance to the sympathetic habitude of the office.

"It's a wonder somebody with a lot of money for good investment wouldn't come to West Duluth and put up a couple of good flat buildings. I'm sure it would pay them. I've had those same kind of requests before, but they never come. More people being employed in executive and clerical positions. They would very gladly live in West Duluth, but those with small families prefer to live in heated flats to taking a house of their own. We are up against a queer situation here. There is not now in West Duluth a thoroughly up-to-date flat building. The result is, a large number of people come here to live, take up their residence in Duluth and ride back and forth on the cars.

"There are any number of good locations to be had in West Duluth, and the people who want the flat will pay good rent, so the man who would go ahead and build would certainly lose nothing by his venture."

TANK NOT CHARGED.

So Lecture is Called Off and Crowd Dispersed.

The lecture which was to have been given last night at the Westminster Presbyterian church for the benefit of the Baptist building fund didn't materialize. A good crowd gathered and waited for some time, but when an attempt was made to put the stereopticon into commission, it was found that one of the gas tanks had been shipped empty, and there was nothing to do but call off the lecture and return.

It seems the tanks were ordered some time ago from a Minneapolis firm, and were received in good time. No examination was made of them, as it was supposed one was charged with oxygen and one with hydrogen, as per directions. But when an attempt was made to get things going, there was no oxygen, and the pictures couldn't be shown.

Rev. J. J. Ross of Toronto, Can., was to have lectured on "The Land of the Caesars." The pictures, with which the lecture is illustrated, are beautiful and their omission would detract greatly from the effect of the lecture, so it was thought better to call it off entirely.

WHAT RETAIL MARKETS OFFER

Asters, 25 cents a dozen in the grocery stores.
Cauliflower, 20 and 25 cents each.
Parsnips, three bunches for 10 cents.
Green tomatoes, 85 cents a bushel.
Blackberries.
Hamburg steak, 15 cents a pound.
Beef, prepared for beef loaf, 15 cents a pound.
Green and red finger peppers.
Asters are the most beautiful things on earth.
There are, one may suppose, conservative people who will begin to haggle over that statement, and try to prove that an angora cat or a setter pup can beat asters all to pieces, but they will never get the market open to take back that statement. The gorgeous colored flowers in their delightful approachableness, not to exclude, but to easily obtainable, are in the market.

There are some few other things in the market also.

BEGINS OPERATIONS.

Virginia & Rainy Lake Mill Resumes With Full Force.

This morning the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company's sawmill on the St. Louis river began active operations for the season. The full force of men was put at work this morning, and tonight the night crew will go on. The mill will be run all winter with the double crew, and a good cut is expected.

The mill was closed down about a month ago to allow of extensive repairs. A good portion of the force was retained on the repair work, while the remainder were transferred to the St. Louis mill of the same company. The St. Louis mill will continue to run with a curtailed force.

There have been no radical changes in the mill or machinery, but the entire plant has been thoroughly overhauled. Yesterday, the machinery was put in motion and some sawing done. It stood the test well, and an unbroken season of activity is now in prospect.

Nygaard is Released.

Cars Collide.

There was a little excitement on the corner of Ramsey street and Central avenue yesterday afternoon, when two double truck cars collided while trying to make the curve, moving in opposite directions. The tracks are close together and while a car is turning the corner, it extends over the other track. Neither motorman saw the other car until it was too late and they crashed together. Beyond a scare for some of the passengers and a little damage to the front vestibules of both cars, there were no serious results.

It appears that the police are not at all satisfied as to Collins' innocence of the Lakeside affair, although nothing of an incriminating nature could be learned at the time. Chief Troyer asked the court delay sentence for a time, and he may be able to produce other evidence which will connect Collins with the Lakeside robbery.

CHANGES IN THE CHARTER

Several Amendments May be Considered by the Commission.

Terms of Present Members Will Expire Next January.

The terms of the members of the present charter commission will expire Jan. 2, 1908, and another commission will be named by the judges of the district court.

The present commission was appointed Jan. 2, 1904, and there has been little work for the commission as the city charter, adopted in 1900, was new and there has been little occasion to consider changes in the charter.

One of the important matters to be considered by the new commission will be that of a city hospital site, or rather the amendment of the charter so that the site practically decided upon may be set aside for such purpose. The site which seems to meet with the most favorable consideration is that at Central park and it is probable that an amendment to the charter will be offered favoring this site. Under the present charter, city parks may not be utilized for other than park purposes. The present charter commission is composed of: Thomas Olafson, William O. Pellar, Oscar Mitchell, J. W. Richardson, Nicholas J. Miller, J. M. O. Tuft, Charles A. Duncan, Giles Gilbert, Louis J. Hopkins, Theodore T. Hudson, Alexander J. Braden, Percy S. Anneke, Hansen E. Smith, Harvey H. Phelps, Chester A. Congdon.

It is the general opinion that there will be little change in the personnel of the present charter commission providing its members see fit to accept reappointment, as it is generally conceded that the members are men well qualified to act in the capacity for which they are chosen.

The growth of the city and changes in conditions will naturally bring more matters for consideration before the next commission, and several are now being considered by public-spirited men, although thus far none have been recommended to the commission for consideration.

The redistricting of the city so that the manner of collection and disposition of garbage may be carried out more systematically and the health department to be organized as a board of health similar to other boards of the city's civic organizations, are matters likely to come up before the commission and be eventually put to popular vote.

REPORT GIVEN CONTRADICTION

Public Examiner's Reference to School District No. 32, Denied.

To the Editor of The Herald: In response to the report of Mr. Ford, public examiner, which appeared in The Herald, on July 17, in which report officers of various school districts in St. Louis county are accused of having "drawn school district funds in an illegal manner." I wish to make the following explanation: In our district, No. 32, the officers are accused of having "entered into contract with themselves" and having thus drawn the amounts of $62 for the clerk, $22.34 for the treasurer, and $125 for the director.

By "contracts with themselves" the public examiner refers to the day labor performed by the members of the board. The work done here has always been day work under the supervision of a foreman appointed by the school board or district and the wages paid are $2 per day. Members of the board, as well as other residents of the community, have been hired by and worked under the instruction of the different foremen. That this was illegal we were entirely ignorant of as our manuals refer only to contract labor and not to day labor. It is a thing from day labor under the instructions and supervision of a foreman.

As to the amounts drawn by the members of the school board the report is incorrect, according to our own knowledge and the report of the committee on investigation appointed by the district at the annual school meeting held July 20, 1907. The report of said committee, in part, as follows: "The report of the district clerk and compared them with the vouchers and records of the district treasurer we find that all orders passed and paid are true to bills presented, and further we find nothing except what the state examiner placed to call 'contracting with themselves' that was not in accordance with the report of this district, and consider their report unjust and absurd as the officers of this district have not, to the best of our knowledge, drawn the amounts they are charged by the report, with having drawn on the district." I have drawn this year, $7.25, $7.00, being for attending the school board's convention held in Duluth, and the balance being for day labor at $2 per day.

Last year, my first year on the school board, I drew $3, out of which amount I drew for ten cords of wood delivered at school house, $30, and balance for day labor at $2 per day.

You can readily see from the above figures that in two years I have drawn $5.25, and not as the examiner would have people understand, $25 in one year. As to the other members of the school board I am sure they can make as good and conscientious report of the money they have drawn as I have.

though their amounts will, no more than mine, tally with the report, they are charged with having stolen or illegally appropriated to themselves.

I wish you will kindly publish the above, as having been accused of stealing public funds, and the public to know the accusation is false. Yours respectfully,

J. B. JOHNSON,
Director, school district 32, St. Louis county, Minn.

GERMANS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

In All Branches of Industry, Say American Travelers.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—Lieut. Godfrey L. Carson of the United States revenue cutter service, who has been visiting the principal industrial centers of Belgium, Switzerland and Germany, with a party of American manufacturers and professors, proceeded to Magdeburg today. Among the party are H. W. Leichen of A. Leichen & Sons, St. Louis; Clifford Egan of Jaffa; Egan & Co., Cincinnati; L. H. Weber of Jersey City; Prof. Clifford Cogging of the University of Colorado, and Prof. Raynor Allen of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The two principal conclusions reached, in which all the members of the American party agree, are the extraordinary prosperity and extreme industrial advancement of Germany. All of the thirty-five works visited were producing more goods than ever before, and the quality of the goods was of the highest. Gas engines in America, Lieut. Carson said, are regarded as being an experimental thing, but in Germany they are standard. Gas engines have passed from experimental to fully practical use.

The Americans found that the Germans made great use of waste steam in manners unknown in America. Lieut. Carson, who visited 250 German works in 1905, as a machinery expert for the St. Louis exposition, was able to contrast what he saw during his present tour with what he saw four years ago. He said that Germany is the most advanced country in the world in the use of steam, and that the highest capacity of use of tools and machines. He found, however, that the Germans employ fewer American machine tools, most of those now in use having been made in Germany, although the highest class American tools are still imported.

The feeling among the manufacturers of the party was that the United States will experience difficulty in beating Germany, and that the American superiority in systems of work and machinery here a few years ago has well nigh been overcome.

From Magdeburg the American party will go to Hanover, where it will break up.

BURTON WILL RUN FOR MAYOR

Will Oppose Tom Johnson as Executive of Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Congressman Theodore E. Burton, chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors in the lower house of congress, last evening issued a statement outlining a platform upon which he is willing to accept and in the platform nomination for mayor of Cleveland.

It is expected that Mr. Burton's will be the only name presented in the nominating convention next Saturday. The statement was issued in response to the call from Republican leaders generally, and petitions bearing thousands of signatures of voters asking Mr. Burton to be the Republican standard bearer, in opposition to Mayor Johnson, who, it is conceded, will be the Democratic nominee for a fourth term.

In declaring himself a candidate, Mr. Burton indicates that he is committed to the platform of Roosevelt, Secretary of War Taft and Secretary of the Interior Garfield before reaching the platform of Fez. He is also committed to the platform of the convention to favoring immediate settlement of the street railway controversy, and against discrimination by the street railway interests.

MISSIONARIES FORCED TO FLEE

Three Americans Driven Out of Fez by the Moors.

Hopes are entertained that they may have reached Alcazar Ceguer in safety on Saturday, but all communication with the interior being suspended, tidings of the Americans are awaited with anxiety.

CELEBRATION WAS PROFITABLE

Unions Will Clear Good Sized Sum From Labor Day.

Although it will require several days to reach the final figures it is already estimated by the executive officers of the Labor day committee that several hundred dollars will be realized from the big celebration. A meeting of the committee was held last evening.

S. M. Kieley, chairman of the committee, is confident that the celebration will be proved to have been a profitable one and that the result shown by the final figures will show a big gain to the pavilion fund and for the rebuilding of Fairmount park.

The whole celebration was most gratifying from the labor standpoint especially. Trades unionists all over the city yesterday were rejoicing over the memories of the big holiday. No one denied that the parade and celebration was the biggest labor demonstration ever seen in Duluth.

"The street car service was the only thing to mar the celebration," said Mr. Kieley. "But it will be better in the future, because labor will make it so. It will make of Fairmount park one of the finest spots in the city and there will be adequate street car service to it, after awhile."

CLAIMS FUNDS ARE SUFFICIENT

Petriella Meets With Western Federation Leaders in Duluth.

Teofilo Petriella, leader of the Minnesota branch of the Western Federation of Miners, who arrived in the city from Hibbing last evening and registered at the Lenox, denies the report that the federation is lacking in funds to carry on the work in this state. He held a meeting at the Lenox last night with other members of the federation, and it is understood that ways and means for furthering the strike were considered. The Italian says the strike is progressing satisfactorily from the side of the federation.

There is believed to have been trouble between Petriella and some of his lieutenants in regard to the expenditure of strike funds. Max Meadows, one of the lieutenants, is said to have had some words with the leader over the money.

In defraying the expenses of certain men in Duluth, Meadows thinking the amount per capita was too large. As a result of the controversy, Meadows has quit. It is claimed that the mines are operating with larger crews now than for some time past, and that the range labor situation is less acute. Many of the original strikers are returning to work, and a great many laborers have come in from the outside to take positions in the mines.

HER MILLIONS A BORE.

Mrs. Russell Sage Has Her First Auto at 77.

New York, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Russell Sage finds her millions a great burden, because she has so many pitiful appeals for money that she feels compelled to refuse. When asked if she received many begging letters, she sighed and answered: "There are so many of them, and what can I do?"

But Mrs. Sage has found some relief from care. At the age of 77 she has bought her first automobile. "I take a fifty or sixty-mile ride several times a week," she said, "and it is glorious. Why, I am in danger of becoming a regular scooter!"

In speaking of her affairs, Mrs. Sage said: "It makes me almost angry to think that I must employ two secretaries to do my writing for me, and I can write better than either of them. I have always regretted I did not write books. I know I had the talent."

TALK CHANGE ON CANAL.

Goethals Denies Thirty-Foot Level Will Have to be Adopted.

Panama, Sept. 4.—New borings around San Pedro Miguel to determine whether it will be better to use dredges or steam shovels for removing the rock gave rise to an exciting rumor that the canal plan would have to be changed to a 30-foot level.

Col. Goethals states emphatically that nothing has arisen to change the present plan, but that more men and machinery will be concentrated at Gatun. He says work could be profitable if it stopped at the La Boca end for a year, to give the Gatun end a chance to catch up with the rest of the work.

Part of the appropriations from divisions recently curtailed will be used at Gatun.

One Meal One Penny

Meat High, Teaches the People about Better Food for Less Money.

One pound of Grape-Nuts contains more nourishment—that the system will absorb—than ten pounds of meat.

An experiment was tried by a man who found that by leaving off meat altogether at breakfast and lunch, and taking in its place four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with cream, he began to gain flesh and strength and before the full pound package was gone had gained four pounds in weight, whereas he had been losing on his meat diet.

A gentleman in Baltimore writes: "I was a steady meat eater three times a day for several years. For a long time I steadily ran down, was miserable, and everything I ate caused distress. I fell away from 185 pounds to 150. Somebody told me that if I would change my diet and take Grape-Nuts food at two meals in the day, I would improve. I made the experiment and in less than two weeks began to improve very rapidly. I discovered that a few teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with cream would furnish more nourishment than quantities of meat. My improvement has continued until now I weigh 195 pounds, which is a gain of about 45 pounds in five months and I feel in magnificent condition."

Grape-Nuts is a crisp, dainty, delicious food, made of selected parts of wheat and barley, and scientifically treated in manufacture by moisture, time and heat—nature's way—to slowly and perfectly develop the diastase from the grain and transform the starch into a form of sugar in the most perfect manner. The small particles of phosphate of potash found in the certain parts of the cereals are retained, and these elements vitalize and nourish the brain and nerve centres throughout the body.

Grape-Nuts is a condensed food, and about four teaspoonfuls with cream is sufficient for the cereal part of a meal. It requires no cooking or preparation of any kind, and is ready for immediate use and suited to the laborer, athlete, brain-worker, epicure and invalid.

Try for breakfast, lunch or supper—some Fruit, dish of Grape-Nuts with cream, a soft-cooked Egg, some nice crisp Toast, and a cup of well-made Postum. You'll feel well-fed, have energy plus, and know

A good liniment or plaster, or some good home remedy will usually give temporary relief from the pain of Rheumatism, but the disease is more than skin deep and cannot be rubbed away, nor can it be drawn out with a plaster. Such treatment neither prevents nor cures; the excess of acid which produces Rheumatism, is still in the blood and the disease can never be cured while the circulation remains saturated with this irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. The trouble will shift from place to place, setting on fire one joint after another, and causing a constant exposure to pain after an attack of indigestion or other irregularity. When neglected or improperly treated, Rheumatism becomes chronic and does not depend upon climatic conditions to bring on an attack, but remains a constant, painful trouble. S. S. S. drives out Rheumatism by neutralizing and expelling the excess of acid from the blood. It purifies and invigorates the circulation so that instead of an acid-laden stream, constantly depositing uric acid in the joints, muscles, nerves and organs, the blood is nourished and made healthy by rich, life-giving blood. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice desired will be sent free to all who write.

THE OIL OCTOPUS GETS ANOTHER POSTPONEMENT OF HEARING IN NEW YORK

Company Asks Time to Prepare Statements
From Books.

Special Counsel for Government Joins in the Request.

Examiner Ferriss Fixes
Date of Hearing for
Sept. 17.

New York, Sept. 5.—Another postponement of the taking of testimony against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and affiliated concerns was ordered today by Judge Franklin Parker of St. Louis, who is acting as examiner for the federal court. The hearing is now scheduled for Sept. 17, and it is said there will be no delay beyond that date in the proceedings in this jurisdiction. The adjournment was requested by the attorneys for the defendant companies and joined in by the special counsel representing the government. It was granted to give the Standard Oil company time to prepare statements from its books and records which are desired by those in charge of the prosecution. These statements, it was claimed, would do away with the necessity of bringing all of the books of the various companies to this federal building and that it would expedite the hearing. The testimony to be taken in New York will be largely of a documentary character and will be reported back to the United States circuit court in St. Louis, where the government's suit to dissolve the so-called "oil trust" is brought.

YIELDS OF GRAIN REPORTED GOOD

One Ingenious Farmer
Settles Labor Question
Very Nicely.

Moorhead, Minn., Sept. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nearly all the grain in this vicinity has been cut, with the exception of late oats and flax. Some threshing has already been done and the reports are very encouraging. On the Behn farm, in the town of Oakport, the wheat went twenty bushels to the acre; on the M. O. Steen farm the yield was twenty-three bushels, and on the Kopyland farm the yield was twenty-eight bushels. Theodore Shred, a prominent farmer of Moorhead, reports the threshing of oats that seems to be running eighty bushels to the acre, machine measure with a big, plump berry that will weigh at least forty pounds to the measured bushel.

MILLIONS A MERE TRIFLE

To Edward Harper, Who Has Again Failed for Big Sum.

Was Jailed Once for Using Funds of Cincinnati Bank.

New York, Sept. 5.—When the announcement was made yesterday that a receiver had been appointed for the Union Iron & Steel company with offices in this city, friends who recalled the remarkable financial career of Edward L. Harper said the failure would be a death blow to his hopes, but that he would yet pay off every dollar of his $6,000,000 indebtedness.

The company was the offshoot of a $60,000,000 enterprise which Mr. Harper organized several years ago, and chief interest in the announcement of its failure centered in the fact that the concern was under the management of Mr. Harper, who failed for millions years ago, after a disastrous speculation in wheat.

TRAIN WRECKERS PULL SPIKES FROM B. & O. RAILS AND DITCH FAST FREIGHT

Engine Goes Into River and Twelve Cars Are Smashed.

Intention of Miscreants
Was to Wreck New York Express.

But it Passed by Before Their Work Was Completed.

Pittsburg, Sept. 5.—Train wreckers were at work last evening on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Scott Haven and Suterville, thirty miles east of here. Spikes, it is said, were drawn from the east-bound tracks for the purpose, it is thought, of catching the New York express, which leaves Pittsburg at 9:30 o'clock in the evening. The wreckers, however, were deceived by the number of freight and passenger trains passing those points last evening, and the express got through before the spikes were drawn.

The next train following it, however, a fast freight express for Philadelphia and New York, was not so fortunate. When the big engine struck the rail from which the spikes had been drawn, the rail turned over, derailing the engine and twelve cars. The tank of the engine is in the Youghiogheny river, which is a distance of from thirty-five to forty feet below the east-bound track. Five of the derailed cars turned over and were more or less wrecked, the merchandise being scattered along the tracks, while the other cars completely blocked both tracks. The fireman and the engineer escaped injury by jumping. The west-bound track was reopened for traffic about midnight, but the east-bound track was not reopened until noon today.

A MONUMENT TO McKINLEY

DEDICATED AT BUFFALO

Erected by New York in Memory of the Dead President.

Beautiful Obelisk of White Marble, Eighty-Six Feet High.

Rests on a Pedestal Inscribed With Life of Martyr.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The monument dedicated today here, in memory of William McKinley was erected by the state of New York on a site provided by the city of Buffalo. It is in the form of an obelisk of white marble 86 feet high and is situated at Niagara square, the intersection of Niagara and Court streets and Delaware avenue.

The obelisk rests upon a pedestal 14 feet high, the base of which is 12 feet above the street level.

The whole is surrounded by a tessellated promenade, embellished with ornate parapets and balustrades and spilling fountains.

On four sides of the base of the column is the following inscription: "This shaft was erected by the State of New York to honor the memory of William McKinley, Twenty-fifth president of the United States of America."

William McKinley was born at Niles, Ohio, Jan. 29, 1843, was enlisted in the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteer Infantry, June 11, 1861, as private, and mustered out July 20, 1865, as major by brevet for gallantry under fire.

William McKinley was elected to congress as a representative in 1876, 1878, 1880, 1882, 1884 and 1888, was elected governor of Ohio in 1891 and 1893 and president of the United States in 1896 and 1900.

William McKinley died in Buffalo, Sept. 14, 1901, victim of a treacherous assassin who shot the president as he was extending to him the hand of courtesy.

The monument was built at the expense of a commission of E. H. Butler and George W. Bush, of Buffalo, John G. New York, formerly of E. at whose home President died, and E. A. Curtis.

Today saw an end of when Chairman Butler happened over to Governor Hughes a work complete in every detail and of rare artistic beauty.

INJURED WHILE COUPLING. Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will Collins, brakeman on local freight running between Bemidji and Big Fork, had his right hand quite badly mashed Tuesday afternoon, while coupling cars. He was brought to Bemidji, where the wound was dressed by local physicians, and then taken to the Brainerd hospital.

A FLEET OF NEW SHIPS

Will be Provided to Protect the Atlantic Coast

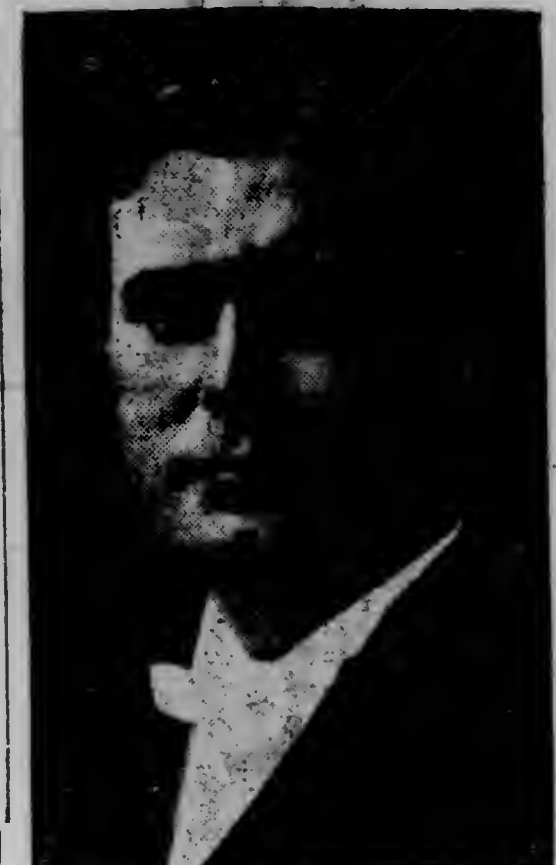

While Admiral Evans' Battleships Are on the Pacific.

New York, Sept. 5.—Some interesting information bearing on the dispatch of Admiral Evans' battleship fleet to the Pacific is published in the Times today and is credited to a high authority.

The administration, it is stated, does not mean to confine the fleet's movements to the Pacific coast. The president's plan is to send the warships on to Hawaii and then to the Philippines after their visit to California ports. When orders are issued for their return the route designated will be via the Suez canal. Thus the fleet will circumnavigate the globe.

It is further learned that in the meantime the Atlantic coast will not be left unprotected, but that at the instance of President Roosevelt the navy department has already begun to plan the mobilization of another fleet to replace that under Admiral Evans.

The flagship of the new fleet will be the New Hampshire, a 16,000-ton battleship which is to be ready for commission early in January. As soon as possible she is to be joined by the Mississippi and the Idaho, two first class battleships 13,000 tons each, now under construction by the Trampas and nearing completion. These three powerful vessels will have as escorts three veteran cruisers which are almost ready for service, the Chester, Birmingham and Salem. Subsequently, the new Atlantic fleet will be reinforced by the two 16,000-ton battleships, Michigan and South Carolina, and the two fast armored cruisers of 14,500 tons each, the North Carolina and the Montana.

SENATOR W. E. BORAH,
Of Idaho, Who Will Be Tried on Sept. 23 on Charges of Conspiring to Defraud the Government in Timber Lands.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Suffered Two Years—Relieved In Three Months.

MR. C. B. FIZER, Mt. Sterling, Ky., writes:

"I have suffered with kidney and other trouble for two years past. Last March I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months. I have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain."

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Peruna For Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. George H. Simser, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes:

"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time. This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manlin."

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manlin, and now I feel better than I have for some time."

"I feel that Peruna and Manlin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the business of the kidneys to remove from the blood the waste materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need a little assistance.

Peruna is exactly this sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

Plans which will in all probability materialize in the near future, are being considered for a broad, well paved street connecting Duluth and West Duluth and doing away with the congested condition resulting from the narrow connecting street between Eighth and Fourteenth avenues west on Michigan street.

Mayor Cullum and the city engineer have been quietly looking over the situation and it is understood that the mayor has asked the city engineer to furnish estimates for two proposed plans, viz., that of widening Michigan street thirty feet from Thirtieth avenue to Tenth avenue where it intersects with Superior, or the cutting through of Superior street from Eighth to Fourteenth avenues west, thus making a new artery for traffic between the east and west ends of the city.

Mayor Cullum, it is understood, will present to the West Duluth Commercial club a communication in the near future on the subject, giving the estimates of the city engineer and the matter will be taken up with the Commercial club. Whether the Herald reporter he declined to discuss the report at this time, but it is learned from a reliable source that the plan in being seriously considered, that the mayor and city engineer have visited the locality within the past few days and that scheme, which is of considerable magnitude and means much to the city, will be discussed at the meeting of the conference committee tomorrow and as before stated will be taken up by the West Duluth Commercial club in the near future.

Michigan and Superior streets join at about Tenth avenue west, and from that point to Thirtieth avenue there is but one street, eighty feet in width, but taken up by two fourteen-foot sidewalks, and two street car tracks occupying about twenty feet, leaving by thirty-two feet for traffic along a distance of from four to five blocks.

This congestion has for a long time been considered a great detriment to trade and an inconvenience and in consideration of the growth of the city, the West end in particular, and the mammoth industries going in there, it is deemed almost necessary that the congestion be relieved.

The cutting through of Superior street would mean an enormous expense and it is not probable that plan will be seriously considered, although it is understood that estimates on the cost have been asked for and will be furnished. The other plan, that of widening Michigan street on the north side a distance of thirty feet, seems to be the most feasible, and it is advanced that the expense would not be one-tenth of that of the other proposition.

The property along the north side of Michigan street in the portion between the two points mentioned is not of such value that it would involve a big expense for condemnation proceedings, and by such increase in width, a wide, well paved artery for traffic would be secured at an expense comparatively small in comparison to the other plan of cutting through Superior street, which is a solid wall of rock the entire distance.

This proposition is considered one of the great importance to the interests of the city, as not only the traffic from the West end, but that from Superior as well must traverse this congested portion of the city, and the other avenue for traffic being over First avenue with its prohibitive grade which renders it impracticable for heavy traffic.

The details of the scheme will be looked for with much interest on the part of not only West end business men, but the city generally.

SHOOTS HIS PLAYMATE

Stewart Parker, the 3-year-old son of G. A. Parker, was accidentally wounded by a bullet from a 22-caliber rifle discharged while in the hands of his playmate, Gilbert Ryan, late yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred at Second avenue east while the Ryan boy was examining the gun, which he says he did not know was loaded.

The Parker boy stood across the street when the gun was discharged, and the bullet entered the little fellow's cheek, lodging back of the cheek bone. He fell to the ground and members of the family rushed out from the home, carrying the boy inside, and Dr. Stewart was hastily summoned. The bullet entered just below the right eye, and the physician managed to locate the ball back of the cheek bone last evening.

An examination will be made today, and if in the judgment of the physician it is deemed best to remove the bullet, it will be done. This will depend upon the condition of the injured youth, which, while serious, was not considered dangerous last evening, although the results of such a wound cannot be determined for several days.

The Ryan boy takes the injury to his playmate very much to heart, and he says he is deeply grieved over the accident.

WRINKLES AND WHAT CAUSES THEM

Chicago, March 27, 1907.

E. Burnham, Chicago, Ill.:

Dear Sir—I desire to fulfill my promise to you, which was made last October namely, that if you would improve my complexion by removing crows-feet, wrinkles and discolored complexion, I would give you my photograph and testimonial.

The enclosed picture, which was taken last Fall, shows my condition at that time. The enclosed picture, taken February 25th, shows my condition at the present time. I desire to state that you have not only removed the wrinkles and crows-feet, but have put my skin in a first-class, youthful condition, of which I am very proud. The fact is that my complexion is the envy of my friends, and I cannot say too much for your course of treatments for beautifying women. You certainly do all you claim and your remedies are perfect. I recommend them to my friends.

Mrs. Thelma Orr.

Hotel Weychmere, 18th and Indiana Avenues.

"Wrinkles," the little word that causes a shudder to every woman and most men, are caused more by carelessness and neglect than by years. We all know the young person who makes creases by lifting the eyebrows and by smiling so continuously, also the person who frowns and squints, and the one who from ill health and poorly nourished skin shows the lines crossing the face in every direction. Such people may all take heart, because by the use of E. Burnham's wonderful skin food such lines may and surely will be obliterated.

It is unnecessary today for any one to carry these telltale marks.

A course of treatment as arranged by E. Burnham will positively remove wrinkles, fill out the sunken cheeks, remove pimples and blackheads, and restore any face to its youthful contour and complexion. These treatments with the different articles are illustrated and explained in a little booklet which is published by E. BURNHAM, which makes it so plain that any lady can use these toilet articles with equally good success in the privacy of her own home as if she had visited Burnham's Beautifying Parlors and taken a course of treatments in this great establishment.

COMING THIS WEEK

Those of you who have wives—but, of course, nobody who should be a too ready assent from your wife in any plan you may happen to suggest in the next few weeks. She may agree, and you consequently may make all sorts of plans and preparations for a three-weeks' outing in the woods, only to have her say at the critical and ultimate moment: "Go for a three-weeks' trip in the woods when the new suits and hats and furs and things are in the stores ready to be chosen? Well, who ever heard of such a thing? It's no such thing. I never did say I'd go, and I did I didn't know what was saying. You must have asked me when I was planning my new dress and I didn't hear what you did say. Why, no indeed, don't you see yourself that there is no possible way I can go."

Busted are his plans. Every husband ought to learn that no woman on earth is responsible for what she says in early spring or early fall. The fashions are holding her enthralled, and although she may pretend to discuss them with you, if you are inclined that way, or Champagne Olcott, if that's your choice, she does not know what she says while she thinks something along this line: "I guess I'll have a brown suit, with a blue band of velvet around the bottom, or may be I better have two; and I guess I'll get some mink furs, and wouldn't it be grand if I could have real sable claws and tails on them—and I don't know what kind of a hat to have, but I think that perhaps one with a few bunches of paradise feathers" (paradise feathers cost $25 a bunch), "and a rose or two in my hair—yes, I do do on Champagne Olcott—and a big buckle—yes, I just as soon go—and if I can, by any possible way, save enough money to get long gloves—any night that suits you—and a chiffon waist, in a gleaming and harmonizing brown, will look—yes, yes, he has an awfully nice voice—and brown shoes—yes, I just love the tulip—"

For the sake of women who are pestered by the thoughts of the coming styles, the following hints are given as collected by the woman's page while watching fortunate people try on new things before hanging rimmed mirrors, and less fortunate one try on out of season stuff that was selling for next to nothing, and which could be put away for next year.

Orchid shades of red are very fashionable, which include terra cotta, raspberry, a faded red, or a warm tone. Ashes of roses is also good, but shades of sunbaker is absolutely not to be considered.

Browns are good, golden, gleaming, glittering browns. In fact, brown is to be a staple color this autumn and winter.

Blues in many tones will be fashionable, and among the smartest of the blues will be Nattier. Paquin blue is also very good, and they will sell something called marine, which is also fashionable.

Swagger half-fitted things will be the style in coats and such, and if you have a plaid waist made up on the bias, it will be quite correct. Pleated skirts trimmed with flat tops are stylish, and royal purple is a fashionable color for those who can wear it. All that is necessary in order to wear it well is pink and white complexion like unto a babe's, in combination with blue hair and harmonizing eyes and teeth like pearls, no wrinkles and cherry red lips, and that's about all. If you possess these attributes, get a purple suit. At least this is what a style authority told the women's page.

Now what do you think?

As if the troubles of the family man were not now as much as he could bear right now. The market man this morning stood teetering from his toes to his heels with his hands clasped behind him and said in a comely kind of tone:

"There was a killing frost, last night."

"O-h-h-h-h!" said the market man.

"There was, too," said the market man. "Wasn't there, John?" John hadn't seen it. Well, there was a frost anyhow," said the M. M., "and people who expect to preserve and make jam and stuff out of tomatoes ought to be getting at it or they will be left."

You may do what you think best about it.

SATTLER-IDZAL.

Beautiful Wedding Ceremony Takes Place at the Spalding.

At a beautiful wedding service last evening at the Spalding, Miss Josephine Helen Sattler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sattler, of this city, became the bride of Leo Charles Idzal, of Minneapolis. The ceremony took place in private reception parlors at 8:30 o'clock, the service being read by Rabbi Lorkowitz.

The parlors in which the ceremony took place were a bower of beauty, pink and white roses with dainty asparagus ferns being used to make one of the most beautiful settings for a wedding of the season. The bride and groom stood under an umbrella (fashioned of the same material as the wedding dress) and the bride wore a show of rose leaves caught in a receptacle of asparagus ferns was let fall at the conclusion of the service. LaBrosse's orchestra played the wedding music, being stationed behind a screen of ferns and roses.

At the reception which followed the ceremony, pink and white roses were decorated in a bower of roses with pink and white tulle.

The bride had as her maid of honor Miss Ethel Idzal of Minneapolis, and Miss Rose Idzal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sattler, of St. Paul, and Miss Idzal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sattler, of St. Paul, were bridesmaids.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white Duchess satin trimmed in real ermine and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a dainty gown of white and carried a bouquet of roses and marguerites. The little flower girls wore dainty frocks of white, and carried baskets of lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony, a reception and dance was held. Two hundred guests were present for the ceremony and reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Idzal left for a short wedding trip, and for a time will be at home at Minneapolis.

CHURCH WEDDING.

Miss Eleanor Pineo Becomes Bride of C. H. Dunning.

Green and white were the colors chosen last evening for the decorations for the wedding of Miss Eleanor Pineo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Pineo, and Clarence Hubbard Dunning, of Duluth. The ceremony was read at 8:30 o'clock by Rev. Alexander Milne at the First Presbyterian church, and a large number of guests were present for the ceremony.

The church was decorated in green vines and ferns, with white asters, and the wedding music was played by Miss Ruth Rogers at the organ. Before the ceremony, Miss Frances Woodbridge sang. At the appointed hour, the wedding party entered the church, the ushers, Messrs. C. F. How, Jr., Dorance Greer, M. E. How, Jr., and Frank Pineo entering first. They were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Julia Williams and Miss Rose Lovett. The bride followed with her father. They were met at the altar by the groom with his best man, Ernest Dunning.

The bride wore a gown of white peau de crepe, a veil, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a white dress and carried white asters, and Miss Woodbridge wore a gown of soft green, and carried white asters.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 250 Fourth avenue east. Mr. and Mrs. Dunning left for a wedding trip. The bride's traveling gown was of blue cloth with hat to match. After Nov. 1 Mr. and Mrs. Dunning will be at home at 2524 London road. Among the out of town guests were: Mr. J. M. Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Fred Ramsey, St. Cloud, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hubbard, Lake City, Minn.; Mrs. Frank Dunning, Lake City, and Mrs. Greer and son, Dorance Greer, Corlaire.

Conference Delegates Are

Delegates to the Swedish Methodist Episcopal conference for the Northern district were given a warm welcome last evening at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street.

An elaborate program had been arranged and it was enjoyed by a large company, including Bishop Goodsell of Boston, Dr. E. C. Clemens, presiding elder of the district, and the English M. E. pastors of the city. The church was crowded.

The program began with a song by the congregation and Bible reading and prayer by Rev. A. F. Peterson of Superior. After a song by the ladies' quartet, Rev. John A. Anderson, the pastor, delivered an address of welcome to the visitors on behalf of the congregation of the First Swedish church.

Rev. O. N. Wildstrom extended greetings to the shepherds of the Northern conference and Miss Florence Fiedler sang a sacred song. Dr. E. C. Clemens, presiding elder, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the English-speaking Methodist congregations of the city and Rev. C. J. Anderson gave a welcoming address on behalf of the district.

Alex. Emma sang "Save Me, O God" and "Angels' Serenade," with a violin obligato by M. Desjardins. Miss Mabel Fulton sang "Divine Redeemer."

MONTANA JUDGE HITS DIVORCEES

Illegal to Marry Within Two Years of Separation.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 4.—The marriage of a divorced person in Montana within two years after securing a divorce in this state is guilty of a felony.

Children born of such a marriage are illegitimate.

A marriage in defiance of the law which says that an innocent party to a divorce cannot marry until after the expiration of two years and that the guilty party cannot marry until after the expiration of three years, is absolutely void.

That is the opinion of Judge George M. Bourquin of the district court at Butte, after giving the law and the authorities on divorce laws a long and careful consideration.

In Montana the law referred to has for years been ignored generally, and especially in Butte, have divorced persons in a great many instances married within the statutory period of prohibition.

According to Judge Bourquin's opinion of the law, some noted persons in Butte have been convicted felons. A judge of the district court, ministers of the gospel and justices of the peace have been parties to the commission of these alleged felonies, for they performed the marriage ceremonies.

If Judge Bourquin's decision is good law, some violators of the divorce statutes of Montana are in a peculiar and unavoidable position. Their marriage being void, they have no rights that are usually recognized as belonging to a wife and husband.

A divorced woman married during the period of prohibition has no legal right to call herself wife, and has no property rights as a wife. In fact, has no better standing in a court of law than a woman that never pretended to go through the forms of a marriage ceremony.

ARIZONA ANXIOUS

To Enter Union and Would be Annexed

Washington, Sept. 5.—Arizona is looking about for an avenue to enter the union. Unwilling to come in with New Mexico as a state, the people of Arizona realize that they are doomed to a long tutelage if they wait for congress to admit them separately. The latest suggestion, which seems to merit favor in Arizona, is that the territory be made a part of the state of Nevada.

The Horrors of Chronic Constipation

Are Quickly Relieved By This Simple Prescription.

Chronic constipation causes more misery than any other disease. It creates insomnia, brain fog, nervous debility, female weaknesses, stomach trouble, etc., and yet if treated naturally, is easily overcome.

Purgatives, severe laxatives, cathartics, etc., are not the road to the successful relief of constipation. Build up the muscles, nerves and tissues of the bowels, and the trouble of constipation ceases.

This simple prescription will cure this disease and will at the same time revitalize the entire nerve organism of man or woman. Mix one ounce of Obifruit Compound Extract and seven ounces of port wine or unfermented grape juice. Take dessertspoonful three or four times daily, before meals and at bed time. These ingredients can be purchased from any drug store. The prescription contains only the active principles of rare tropical fruits in a concentrated form, and must not be confused as a patent medicine.

It contains no narcotics, alcohol, animal or mineral substances but is a pure fruit product, which makes it so highly beneficial in all cases of constipation and nervous disorders. For nervous debility it is without a peer. Mix the prescription in your own home and buy your wine or grape juice from a druggist, to insure purity.

Our readers will find Obifruit Compound Extract on sale at all first-class drug stores.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—A Wife's Secret.

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"The Squaw Man"

As a rule the cowboy of the stage is rather a hopeless and unconvincing creature at the best but in the new play, "The Squaw Man" in which, William Faversham will appear at the Lyceum theater, next Friday and Saturday, for his performances, after a run of 23 performances at Wallace's theater in New York, the same individual is of a type that is startlingly accurate if one is to believe the critics of the country. Edwin Milton Doyle, the author of the play, was brought up in the territory in which the scenes of the play are laid, and has labored to good advantage in placing before the members of the company the accurate atmospheric quality by which the real cow puncher may be distinguished from the artificial product.

Chauncey Olcott.

The familiar types of characters incident to the usual Irish drama are absent from Theodore Hart Sayre's new play, "O'Neill of Derry," in which Chauncey Olcott will be seen at the Lyceum next week. There is no brutal landlord, no howling evictions, and the story which is a strong and moving one might have occurred in any other land or among any other people. Mr. Olcott is given his best opportunity successively as a soldier of fortune, romantic lover and self-sacrificing friend. The four new songs he has written and composed for this production are among his best efforts. He will be in Duluth five nights, beginning Tuesday.

"A Wife's Secret."

"A Wife's Secret," which will be seen at the Lyceum tonight, is said to present a picture of human sentiment that appeals strongly to the love of the audience. It tells a story of a young wife's election from the home of her husband, because of ungrounded suspicions, and her subsequent trials and hardships, struggling against the institutions of the world.

NAN PATTERSON

Denies All the Stories Recently Published Regarding Her.

Washington, Sept. 5.—"As God is my judge, I never heard of or saw the Pittsburg massacre that they say killed himself," said the way Nan Patterson denied the story emanating from Pittsburg to the effect that Dr. John Britton, a master of Pittsburg, had committed suicide on her account in St. Louis a few days ago.

"Yesterday it was a Pittsburg steel man," said the former chorus girl, "today it is a masseur, and tomorrow it will probably be some one else, and there is just as little truth in one story as the other, and myself and my family have to suffer just the same. All this talk and these vicious reports are making a nervous wreck of me, and slowly but surely killing my mother. Even my father is gradually sinking under these dreadful stories."

"Heretofore I have taken no notice of these reports more than to deny them, but this is the end. I intend to employ one of the best lawyers in town, and detectives, if necessary, and have this latest and most outrageous story run to the ground."

JAPS SET FREE.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 6.—The steamship Yachsan which was to have brought thirty Japanese sealers from the schooners Kaiva and Nitto Maru to this city for deportation, carried the men to Unalaska instead. There they were set free under orders from Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte.

NEW ROUTE PROJECTED

Capitalists Behind Georgian Bay Canal Are

Canal Would Make Duluth Accessible to Ocean Boats.

A party of prominent English and Canadian capitalists, who are interested in the project of a ship canal from Georgian bay to St. Lawrence river, registered at the Spaulding last evening. In the party are R. W. Perks of London, a member of parliament and one of the biggest contractors in the world; Hon. George A. Cox of Toronto, the leading financier of Eastern Canada; G. B. Peacock of Toronto; H. M. Peacock of Moosejaw, H. L. Watt of Toronto, G. A. Morron of Toronto, G. W. Vaickman of London, and W. G. Morrow of Peterboro.

Mr. Cox is among the most prominent men of Canada. Beginning life as a telegraph operator, he is now an important factor in many financial institutions and enterprises. For many years he was president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, but has retired to give his attention to other interests. He is still a member of the board of directors of the bank. He is also a director of the Grand Trunk Pacific road, president of the Canada Life Insurance company and a prominently interested in many other corporations. The party arrived here from Winnipeg over the Canadian Northern and the Duluth and Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road. They visited the iron mines and range towns. Today they are inspecting the harbor.

The Georgian Bay Canal company is an English corporation that has been chartered for the purpose, but it is intended that a Canadian company shall be organized to handle the project later. It is estimated that the proposed improvement will cost 20,000,000 pounds sterling. It will be 150 feet wide in the narrowest part and twenty-four to twenty-six feet deep. The locks will be 750 feet long and when completed the canal would enable ocean boats to ply between the sea and the Great Lakes. Any kind of freight may be shipped from Duluth to all parts of the world without breaking bulk. It will make a saving of 400 miles in the voyage from Duluth to the pool. Negotiations are now pending with the Canadian government with reference to the conditions under which the canal shall be built and as to how much assistance may be expected from the government.

OPPOSED TO TWO TELEPHONES

Providence, R. I., Business Men in Favor of One System.

(Editorial from the Providence (R. I.) Journal, April 2, 1907.)

The general feeling of Providence business men was accurately reflected yesterday at the unusually large meeting of the Board of Trade when it was voted 121 to 25 to accept the report of the special committee which was appointed to consider the petition of the Home Telephone company. The committee recommended that the city council be urged to reject the petition, and "at the same time further a business arrangement with the Providence Telephone company which will best serve the interests of the citizens and protect those of the city."

As the vote was by the showing of raised hands, and many members were unable to gain admission to the crowded room, the secretary's count is not exact, but it is safe to say that it fairly represents the opinion of Providence business men. For one who honestly favors a rival telephone system there are probably five who regard it as a nuisance. Moreover, the attitude of the leading promoter of the new company was not such as to strengthen the case for which he argued.

Whether the "business arrangement" with the Providence Telephone company, suggested by the resolution, should be an exclusive franchise in return for lower rates and additional revenue is another question. But upon the evil of two telephone companies in a community the Board of Trade vote is in line with the action of similar commercial bodies in other cities, and it will doubtless carry weight with our city council.

IMMUNITY FOR ALTON

Attorney General Bonaparte Says Agreement Should be Kept.

Road Furnished Valuable Information Against Oil Octopus.

Lenox, Mass., Sept. 5.—Attorney General Bonaparte last night issued a statement regarding the Standard Oil case in the Illinois courts. The attorney general says:

"On Aug. 14 Judge Landis asked, in substance, that the department consider portions of the transcript of testimony in the case of the United States against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, in order to determine whether the Chicago & Alton Railroad company, its officers and employees, were entitled to the benefits of an agreement assuring it and them immunity against criminal prosecution in connection with the granting of certain rebates to the Standard Oil company."

"The department, in compliance with the desire of Judge Landis, examined the above mentioned records and carefully investigated the entire subject, and as a result of such investigation, the attorney general on Aug. 29 wrote Edwin W. Sims, United States attorney at Chicago, informing him in substance that the agreement was shown to have been made in June or July, 1896, by C. E. Morrison, Mr. Sims' predecessor in office; that Mr. Morrison's actions appear to have been duly authorized at the time by the department; that in the opinion of the department, the arrangement had greatly facilitated the indictment and conviction of the Standard Oil company and that while certain portions of the evidence might be fairly open to unfavorable comment, the department regards the government as bound in good faith, and also as a matter of public policy, to give effect to the agreement.

"Mr. Sims was instructed to read this letter when the grand jury convened Sept. 3, and to take such further action to the foregoing as might seem to the court and to himself proper in the premises.

"The department learns that Mr. Sims did not comply with these instructions by reason of his having called to its attention very recently certain news and in his judgment, material facts, which he thought should be submitted to the department for its further consideration, before its conclusions should be finally announced. For this purpose, he asked, and was granted by the court a delay of three weeks, and the department is not as yet advised as to the facts thus ascertained by Mr. Sims. He has great care and devotion to duty, and the department awaits his report before taking further action in the premises. Inasmuch, however, as the circumstances may be liable to misconception, it is deemed proper to submit now the present statement to the public."

WIDOW ARRESTED.

New and Startling Developments in Case of Murdered Cleveland Man.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 5.—Developments in the investigation of the death of John Phillips, coal operator, broker, hanker and club man, took a sensational turn yesterday, when Mrs. Phillips, widow of the deceased, was arrested by Chief of Police Stanger of the aristocratic suburb of East Cleveland. Mrs. Phillips has been in a highly nervous state since the tragedy early Monday morning, after which an announcement was made that her husband had been mortally wounded by a burglar.

The police are reticent about the case and whether they really believe Mrs. Phillips culpable in the murder, or that she can give facts which would solve the mystery, does not appear.

BOATS STILL WAITING.

A Few Have Not Yet Been Able to Get Cargoes.

Although the ore docks have been doing fast work for the past two days there is still quite a bunch of boats waiting to take out ore and it will be several days before all have been despatched.

At one time yesterday there were about a dozen big boats waiting at anchor in the harbor basin but before night the number was reduced to half a dozen. The number was about the same this morning.

Coal is still coming forward at a lively rate but the boats are being well taken care. Practically all of the boats at anchor are light for ore.

NEWS FROM WEST DULUTH

EXPENSE OF IMPROVING

Amendments to City Charter Relative to It Are Proposed.

Claimed That Business Men Do Not Pay Enough.

The question of amending the city charter to make changes in its provisions governing the assessment of costs of public improvements will again come before the West Duluth Commercial club tomorrow evening. Now that Ramsey street is being paved and other improvements are under consideration, the question is of more than ordinary importance to West Duluth people, and its consideration should draw out a representative attendance at the club meeting.

The matter was brought up at this time through the efforts of Chan Smith. Mr. Smith has taken a firm stand in favor of the amendments he proposes, and one of the members of the club, who has received the bulletin, will bring it before the meeting. The matter was up before the club once before and a committee appointed to confer with similar committees of the Duluth Real Estate Exchange and the Duluth Commercial club. There the matter evidently dropped, as nothing has been done in it since.

The proposed amendments provide that the cost of grading, paving and maintaining intersections of streets and avenues taken from the general fund and provided for limiting the amount to be assessed to any property for a public improvement to not exceed 25 per cent of its assessed valuation in any five-year period, or provide that after the street has been paved, the cost on future repaving and maintenance be taken from the general fund.

The key-note of the arguments for the amendments to the charter is the contention that business property owners, the cost of which is paid by a few people, are of benefit to all and should be paid for by a more equitable distribution of the cost among all property owners, stocks, bonds, personal property, houses, stores and buildings, acres in the city limits, not actually on the street, improved, but does not pay a cent of the cost of grading, paving or maintenance. It is pointed out that the street is a public improvement, and that the city is compelled to pay for all improvements in the space occupied by their tracks, and in Philadelphia they pay for the maintenance of streets from curb to curb.

Attention is called to the fact that the distribution of the cost of public improvements rests with the aldermen and members of the board of public works, leaving the city at large without a vote. There should be no possibility of graft. Duluth is competing with other cities for population, and it is not fair that people must be mostly wage earners, so a system compelling the wage earner to pay from $300 to $400 more on his home or public improvements should not be continued.

Class Is Initiated.

An enjoyable meeting of West Duluth lodge, No. 880, M. B. A., was held last night at Gilley's hall, when a class of twelve candidates was initiated. The candidates were initiated by the lodge officers, assisted by District Manager John Gorr and Deputy District Manager Curtis Parker of Montevideo, Minn. After several speeches by the visitors and officers of the local lodge, the public was admitted to a basket social and dance.

FAILURES ANNOUNCED

Watson & Company and Duer & Overlock Suspend.

Some Duluth Grain Speculators May be Affected.

Two brokerage firms failed today. One, Watson & Co. of Minneapolis, New York, Duluth and some other places, was both a grain and stock concern, while the other was the firm of Duer & Overlock of Bisbee, Ariz., which dealt largely in copper stocks.

The extent of the failures has not been made known yet.

Watson & Co. have an office in the Manhattan building in Duluth, and S. T. Welch was local manager. Less than a year ago the stock brokerage office was opened here, although the firm had long maintained connections with the local grain trade, being a member of the Duluth board of trade. It is one of the largest firms in the West.

The firm was also a member of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce and the New York stock exchange.

If the failure is a bad one, some Duluth grain speculators may be hard hit.

Duer & Overlock, the Bisbee copper stock brokers, did considerable business in Duluth, and their failure here being their correspondent. This failure may have affected this house, but it is unlikely.

On account of the telegraphers' strike, communication is being difficult, and particulars of the failure were not received.

New York.—The failure of Watson & Co., grain and commission brokers, was announced on the New York stock exchange today.

It is understood that the firm has been very active in trading in Northwestern railroad stocks lately.

The firm is composed of Lewis T. Watson, the stock exchange member, and Henry P. Watson, a partner in G. E. Anderson, which has branch offices in Duluth, Hot Springs, Minneapolis and Chicago.

Mr. Newell is the firm's office manager. The house of Watson & Co.'s office in Broad street were closed after the announcement of the failure.

Mr. Newell has been appointed receiver for the firm.

DROPS DEAD ON STREET

Charles Stone Falls Lifeless While Walking Down Hill.

Body Covered With Blood From Rupture of Artery.

Shortly after 11 o'clock this forenoon as Charles Stone, residing at 2108 Piedmont avenue, was walking down Twenty-first avenue, west bound for the city hall to draw his pay for services performed for the city during the past month, passerby noticed him stop suddenly and clasp his hand spasmodically to his breast and fall lifeless on the sidewalk.

A large crowd soon congregated and the services of a physician were at once procured. Dr. Greedy responding, but the man was dead, and it appears that his death was instantaneous. The body was immediately covered with blood and a crimson stream flowed from ears, mouth and nose, making a sickening spectacle. The body was removed to Forward's undertaking rooms and an autopsy will be held late this afternoon.

It is the opinion of the physician that death was due to the rupture of a blood vessel in the head or heart. The unfortunate man had always enjoyed excellent health, and his death came as a severe shock to his wife and family.

PANIC TAKES A BUFF

Judge Middlecoff Comments on Feeling in the East.

Belief That "Tidewater" Railroad Will Give Steel Company Seaport.

J. B. Middlecoff, judge of the probate court, returned this morning from a two or three weeks' business and pleasure trip in the East.

Judge Middlecoff had to go to Bingham, Me., to transact some legal business in connection with the Cedar Island Lake land case, while away, he visited a number of the Eastern cities, including the Jamestown exposition. At Hagerstown, Md., and Fincastle, Va., Judge Middlecoff visited for the first time the homes of his ancestors, and had a pleasant visit with relatives whom he had never before seen.

So far as the general prosperity is concerned, said the judge, "the East is feeling jubilant. The feeling is more confident in the East than in the West. All this talk of panic and hard times is looked on by the East as a bluff. I visited a number of the great manufacturing districts in the East and there is not the slightest belief there of hard times. The manufacturers are from six months to a year behind in their orders and the factories are being full in the attempt to catch up. The sentiment is strongly in favor of the policy of President Roosevelt."

Judge Middlecoff says that the "Tidewater" railroad which is under construction from Columbus to Norfolk, and which has been surveyed from Columbus to the Great Lakes, is attracting much attention. He says it seems to be the most realistic belief he has seen in the East, and that eventually it will be part of a great system that will provide a through line for the products of the South from Duluth to the Atlantic coast.

A Condition of the Will

By Edyth Kirkwood.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Rose Waring last year found herself out of employment. She addressed herself to her duties, did nothing and made herself extremely useful to her landlady to take out of her hands the growing care and anxiety, and utterly discouraged, when one bleak November day, she was called to her room by her landlady, and was told that she was to be dismissed.

The salary was good, the locality was agreeable, Miss Waring wrote promptly to ask a young woman might, in the office assistance, giving her name, age and capabilities, and inquiring of course, concerning a chaperone. The reply was satisfactory. The housekeeper would act as chaperone, and Mr. Milton the old scientist, hoped Miss Waring could make it convenient to come soon.

"At my age," he wrote, "we no longer count by days or even hours."

Miss Waring telegraphed that she would start at once. It did not take her long to pack her few possessions, and that afternoon she was rushing by express to her inpatient employer.

On her arrival Mrs. O'Grady the housekeeper, at once took her to the room she was to occupy.

She was quite unprepared, on going down the evening meal, to find the room occupied by another individual, of whom no mention had been made.

She was a woman of perhaps 20 years. His face had a keen, alert expression, even while reading, though his dark eyes were soft and sweet. His moustache was bushy and dark, and he had a smile that was as he looked up with a quick smile at her entrance. Rose observed that he had very fine teeth, but otherwise the face was not remarkable and inspired no emotion. He placed a young lady's mind except that of annoyance.

He had risen, and was placing an armful of books beside the crackling wood fire. "Miss Waring," he said easily, "I am Mr. Atwood, another of Mr. Milton's assistants. Here are the latest magazines, and the latest newspaper. I have a list in which I am much interested."

He resumed his reading, and straightway forgot all about her. Indeed, as the days passed, she was left to her own devices, and she was not to be troubled by his fellow worker. Mr. Atwood, she found, was illustrating the work on rosettes, and this time was fully occupied. He went out on horseback for an early ride every day, and he was not to be troubled by his fellow worker. He went out on horseback for an early ride every day, and he was not to be troubled by his fellow worker.

He was a man of perhaps 20 years. His face had a keen, alert expression, even while reading, though his dark eyes were soft and sweet. His moustache was bushy and dark, and he had a smile that was as he looked up with a quick smile at her entrance. Rose observed that he had very fine teeth, but otherwise the face was not remarkable and inspired no emotion. He placed a young lady's mind except that of annoyance.

He had risen, and was placing an armful of books beside the crackling wood fire. "Miss Waring," he said easily, "I am Mr. Atwood, another of Mr. Milton's assistants. Here are the latest magazines, and the latest newspaper. I have a list in which I am much interested."

He resumed his reading, and straightway forgot all about her. Indeed, as the days passed, she was left to her own devices, and she was not to be troubled by his fellow worker. Mr. Atwood, she found, was illustrating the work on rosettes, and this time was fully occupied. be here, but, like you, I was requested to come. They had not long to wonder. Mr. Milton left legacies, important and unimportant. None of his housewifely duties were remembered. The house and the bulk of the furniture, a large one, was left to Mr. John Atwood and Miss Rose Waring on condition that they married each other. "Three times and out" will probably have some significance to Frank Peterson if he ever sobers up sufficiently to be arraigned upon the charge of drunkenness.

Peterson has established a new record in police court, he having succeeded in being arraigned three times in thirty-six hours on the charge mentioned.

THE LEGAL FARE.
Ambassador Bryce, at a dinner in U. S. bann, Ill., gave young lady some thought on European travel.
"And above all," he said, "don't fail to tip your cabman liberally. Hansons and four-wheelers would be cheap in London, but only pay the legal fare for them, but who who tries to pay the legal fare—well, he doesn't try it more than once."
"One day I saw an old lady stop a hansom, look up at the driver, and say timidly:
" 'Driver I want to go to Ludgate Circus. I see by the book that the legal fare is 2 shillings. If I give you 3, will you please not to swear at me after I get home?' "
"The driver said: 'I will not swear at you, but I will swear at the next fellow who gives me a shilling for a ride to Ludgate Circus.' " one of the most daring experiments in the history of science. Weismann, the famous German biologist, was the Russian professor, Eshkoloff. He advances an alluring story which is borne out to a considerable extent by actual experiments. Nature is full of organisms that are killed by poisonous microbes produced in their own bodies. The organisms die, but the microbes continue to develop. Weismann, on the other hand, differentiates between two groups of cells—those that propagate and those that carry out the functions of the organism. The former never age, because they reproduce themselves. The others must necessarily age.

AN ARCTIC EXPEDITION, SENT TO DISCOVER A NEW CONTINENT, A FAILURE

Exploration Ship, Crushed by Ice, Fills With Water.

Three Members of Party Disappear and Are Probably Lost.

Ernest Stefansson, Head of Expedition, Brings News of Disaster.

Athabasca Landing, Canada, Sept. 6.—News of the probable loss of the schooner Duchess of Bedford, the ship belonging to the Anglo-American Arctic expedition, which hoped to find a new continent north of the Mackenzie river, was brought here by Alfred Harrison, who has been in the Arctic circle for two years, and who came here on the steamer Midnight Sun.

Mr. Harrison said Ernest Stefansson of Harvard, after whom the expedition has been named, had been seen by the news of the loss of his boat to Herschel Island. He also brought the news of the disappearance of three members of the party, and expressed the fear that they had met death in the frozen north.

The missing men are Captain Mikkelson, a Dane; Ernest Lammell of Chicago, and J. A. Marks. They left the ship in February, with sixty days' provisions for the supposed land to the North, and had been gone seventy days, and no news had been received from them. One of their teams of dogs had returned, and it is likely the party will never be heard from again.

The schooner Duchess of Bedford, Stefansson thought had probably sunk. The ship had filled with water, probably from the ice strain, but they had been able to remove everything of value to the main shore.

INDIAN MISSING; FEAR FOUL PLAY

Kennedy Robinson Gone and Fellow Tribesman is Suspected.

Walker, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kennedy Robinson has been missing from his home at the Agency since Aug. 2. Kennedy is a brother to Mrs. Herman Mannerstrom, the mail carrier. When last seen, he was on his way to Walker in company with an Indian, named Joe Meunell. Meunell, it is said, was a white man, and some time ago for the Dakotas, leaving no address, so it has not been possible to obtain any information from this source. Young Robinson was 19 years old, and was not addicted to the use of alcoholic beverages, as are the most of his tribesmen, and consequently he was well thought of by both whites and Reds in this locality. His relatives are of the opinion that he has been foully dealt with, and as soon as Meunell can be located, he will be made to do a little explaining. Indian interests in the search have called up the police in neighboring towns asking to be on the lookout for any one answering Robinson's description.

Mrs. Boyle is at a hospital and will probably die. Boyle is said to have been out of work for some time and to have been drinking heavily.

RACE WAR ON AGAIN

Clash of Negroes and Whites at Shelbyville
Causes Trouble.

Policeman Attacked and Severely Beaten by Crowd of Blacks.

Shelbyville, Ind., Sept. 6.—Shelbyville is in the throes of another race war. The trouble started when a policeman, Daniel Starkey, beat him into insensibility and fled when a crowd of whites arrived. Five shots were fired at the fleeing blacks, but without effect. A posse of 100 white men was quickly formed, who secured the city. Mayor Swain, with a party of policemen, captured two of the negroes, Steve Marshall and Robert Marshall, near the outskirts of the city. They were split up to jail, where they are closely guarded. The other negroes have not been arrested yet.

The police kept local negroes on the move all Wednesday night. They were not permitted to congregate on street corners or in the portion of town where they reside. Last night the streets were cleared of negroes. No violence was attempted during the night, but crowds of angry white citizens stood on street corners threatening the blacks.

FALLS INTO BAY AND PERISHES

Kramer Loses Footing
in Green Bay.

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lifeless body of Frank Kramer was found this morning by his father, lying at the bottom of Green bay, near Cedar river. The young man, in company with his father, was in Menominee yesterday, where he bought a wedding present for a cousin. On returning home he forgot the present in the boat, and fell into the water, meeting death. His parents, noting his absence, thought their son was at the wedding dance, but when he failed to return today, search was instituted, with the result that his body was found and the manner of his death evidenced.

AMERICANS RELEASED

Storer and Speed, Held by Mexican Government, Set Free.

Were Charged With Murder Which They Never Committed.

Newark, Ohio, Sept. 6.—Grant Ferguson, a former Baltimore & Ohio conductor here, telegraphs from Aguas Calientes, Mex., yesterday, as follows: Edward Storer and W. E. Speed were released from prison Thursday by order of the Mexican government unconditionally and no charges against them.

Storer and Speed were two American conductors, who were imprisoned in Mexico, more than a year ago, charged with a murder which neither committed. Ferguson, learning of their imprisonment, and conviction without trial, took the case up with the United States government and with Senators Foraker and Dick and was promised assistance. Ferguson secured much testimony, which he presented in the form of affidavits to the Mexican government and the federal officers, and has worked for months to bring about the result just accomplished.

DUST FROM VESUVIUS

Caused the Report of Another Eruption of Volcano.

Great Activity Not Expected Again for Thirty Years.

New York, Sept. 6.—Frank A. Perret, an assistant at the Vesuvius observatory, whose action in remaining at his post during last year's eruption of the volcano gained him general commendation, and who is now at his home here on a brief vacation, spoke interestingly in an interview regarding the faded reports of a new eruption of Mount Vesuvius. He declared that there could be no eruption at this time, but that there had been landslides in the crater, and the clouds of dust arising therefrom perfectly resembled a new eruption.

The recent reports of a new eruption were known at once by me to be erroneous," said Mr. Perret. "It was quite easy to recognize in the air from Sorrento one of those internal landslides which are a familiar post-eruption feature."

The interior walls of the crater are very steep, and as the cone is a conglomerate mass of loose materials, a portion of the rim may become undermined and detached by a slight earth tremor and fall into the abyss. This mass, which may weigh hundreds of tons, compresses the air below it and on reaching the bottom of the crater is at once ejected as an immense cloud of dust and ashes, which perfectly resembles a true eruption, and presents a sufficiently terrifying appearance to the uninitiated.

Others often follow the first, and the dust is carried by the wind to a great distance, producing in that particular direction a light fall of ashes. But, in the second place, the ejected reports described an outbreak of considerable violence, with lava streams, all of which is practically impossible at this time."

Others often follow the first, and the dust is carried by the wind to a great distance, producing in that particular direction a light fall of ashes. But, in the second place, the ejected reports described an outbreak of considerable violence, with lava streams, all of which is practically impossible at this time."

Mysterious Shooting of Separated Pair at Brazil, Ind.

Couple Met With Attorney to Arrange for Alimony.

Brazil, Ind., Sept. 6.—Dr. Edward Glasgo, a physician, is dead from three bullet holes through his head, and his wife is slightly wounded in the left breast, as a result of a mysterious shooting last night.

When physicians reached the scene, Glasgo was unconscious in the buggy and soon died. Mrs. Glasgo refused to talk of the shooting. A revolver with five chambers empty was found near the buggy.

The woman was placed under arrest, charged with the murder of her husband. Attorney Whitlock also is being held by the police. Mrs. Glasgo says her husband tried to shoot her and threatened violence, with lava streams, all of which is practically impossible at this time."

Others often follow the first, and the dust is carried by the wind to a great distance, producing in that particular direction a light fall of ashes. But, in the second place, the ejected reports described an outbreak of considerable violence, with lava streams, all of which is practically impossible at this time."

CIRCULATORS OF RUMORS

Of Local Disorders at Morocco Are to be Punished.

Tangier, Sept. 6.—Responding to a request of the diplomatic corps that he take steps to arrest the needless exodus of people from Tangier, caused by the prevalence of local disorders and the circulation of false and alarming reports, the Moroccan war minister, El Ghabas, today proposed the institution of a summary tribunal, before which malefactors and persons guilty of circulating damaging and exciting rumors could be brought. A note setting forth the purposes and powers of the proposed tribunal was sent to the legations and all the representatives of the powers, with the exception of the Spanish minister, signed it. Fearing that the terms of the note might conflict with the wording of the Algeiras convention, the minister of Spain requested to be allowed to submit a document to the authorities at Madrid before giving his adhesion to it.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE

Nomination for President.

Milwaukee, Sept. 6.—Senator La Follette has decided to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the presidency. He will address a statement to the voters next week, setting forth his claims before the Republican national convention.

Mr. La Follette returned here a few days ago, convinced that the people are thoroughly aroused that radical tendencies will govern in the national campaign next year, and that his chances of securing the nomination are second to none.

BLONDIN IS NOT ALIVE.

LEAVES THE BIG SEAL AND COMES TO AMERICA.

London, Sept. 6.—The lord chancellor, Lord Loreburn, sailed for Canada on the Empress of Britain today. He will visit Niagara and possibly New York. This is the first occasion on which a lord chancellor has left the United Kingdom. The law forbids that the great seal, of which he is the custodian, be taken out of the country. It is supposed to be constantly kept in his personal custody, but Lord Loreburn has arranged for safeguarding the seal during his absence.

Lock on the Sleeping Car Alone Saves Its Occupants.

Omaha, Sept. 6.—The Omaha and Texas express on the Rock Island was raised this morning just before daylight, near Murdock, Neb., by three masked men.

The robbers went through the chair car, robbing every passenger thereof, securing their pocketbooks and purses, covered the train crew with revolvers and escaped by leaping from the train.

Railroad detectives and sheriff possess are in pursuit, but the robbers have several hours' start on the officers.

The robbers were passengers on the train. Shortly after leaving Murdock the men arose in their seats, their faces covered with masks, and with revolvers in each hand, covered the passengers. Then the leader ordered everybody to keep still and not to resist, else they would be shot.

After getting all the money in the car, the robbers jumped from the train, which had slowed down for a grade. An attempt was made to enter the sleeper section, but the door was locked, and the attempt was unsuccessful.

WRIGHT COUNTY THE LEADER

Among Exhibitors at Fair for the Northern Section.

St. Paul, Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wright county gets first place among the northern section of counties on its exhibit at the fair, and Goodhue gets first place among the southern section of counties. The judging of the county exhibits was finished late Thursday afternoon.

The northern counties scored as follows on the class and character of their exhibits: Wright, 545 points; Morrison, 485; Aitkin, 481; Itasca, 470; Stearns, 446; Pine, 432; Todd, 417. But Todd's low score is accounted for by the fact that no exhibit was made in some of the classes, the total points of which aggregated 586.

The southern counties had the following scores: Goodhue, 1,057; Olmstead, 1,025; Houston, 970.

STRIKE AVERTED FOR THE PRESENT

Compromise With Street Car Men at Louisville Effected.

Louisville, Sept. 6.—The threatened strike of the employees of the Louisville Railway company, which was believed to be inevitable last night, has been averted, for the present at least, and the cars are running as usual today.

The credit for the settlement of the situation belongs to Mayor Bingham. Mr. Bingham secured the promise of the representatives of the company, at a conference in his office, late last night, to give the union men further assurance that no discriminations will be made against them. This was agreed to in writing, and placards will be posted today to that effect by the railway company.

Later, at a meeting of the street car employees, attended by the mayor, the resolution embodying the plans for the settlement of the strike was unanimously adopted. It provides, however, that in case a settlement of the mooted question in relation to the discharged men, who have been the bone of contention, is not assured, the whole question of striking is to be reopened, and that the settlement of last night is to be of no effect.

GOES TO COLERAINE.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Gets Telegram at Last Minute Changing Plans.

St. Paul has joined in the hunt for Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and comes forward with a story to the effect that he is a guest at the Ryan hotel. He is said to have registered there yesterday. The Roosevelt who is hunting chickens in Dakota, it has developed, is a younger brother. The report from St. Paul, and another to the effect that he is at Utica, N. Y., are wrong, for there is no doubt of the fact that the youth arrived in Duluth Wednesday evening and left Thursday morning for Coleraine, Minn., where he is now the guest of John C. Greenway, an old friend of the president.

The original intention was that Theodore should join Mr. Greenway at Sylvania lodge, the Steel corporation resort in Michigan, and it was not until a few minutes before he was to leave Duluth, on the South Shore train, that he received a telegram informing him that Mr. Greenway's stay at Sylvania lodge had to be cut short on account of matters which demanded his attention at Coleraine. Therefore, at the last minute, the young man changed his plans and boarded a train to Coleraine, instead of going to Michigan. He will remain in Northern Minnesota about a week before returning East to school. This will give him time to do some hunting and to inspect the iron mines.

TO SAVE LIVES OF MINERS.
In order to protect miners from gas and coal dust explosions the government is going to begin experiments, probably at Pittsburgh.

A station is to be established, says Discovery, consisting of an explosive laboratory. The gallery is to be made of boiler plate, and will be in the form of a cylinder 100 feet long and 6 feet in diameter. A series of safety valves on hinges will be arranged along the top to allow the escape of gas following an explosion. Port holes along the sides, covered with half-inch plate glass, will allow the means of observation to see whether an explosion has taken place in the gallery during the tests. The cylinder will be filled with freon and air or coal dust and air, and the explosives will be hurled into the gallery by means of a steel mortar fired by electricity from an observation house sixty feet away. The maximum quantity of each explosive that can safely be used in mines will be published under the head of "Permissible Explosives."

A pressure gauge will be used for measuring the actual pressure in pounds per square inch developed by the detonation of various explosives. The analysis of the products of combustion will also be made. The heat of decomposition of all explosives in terms of calories will be ascertained by detonating large quantities in a bomb.

The explosives will be fired from the mortar at night and the length of the flame will be determined by photography. The time of the flame will also be determined by an electrical apparatus.

The rescue room will resemble the interior of a mine and during tests will be filled with smoke. The efficiency of all apparatus for sustaining life will be determined by a series of tests. Miners will be shown how to rescue their fellow miners.

The experiments will be under the direction of Joseph A. Holmes, chief of the technological branch of the geological survey.

WELL OF SODA WATER.
Scientific American: One of the most interesting and novel gushing wells in the world, and perhaps without a rival in either respect, is a geyser of soda water that recently came up at Wendling, just across the Medoc county border from Sonoma, Cal.

This well produces soda water—genuine soda water—and of a quality that would warrant bottling for the general trade in such quantities as were never struck before. There is so much of this water that it is turned into a huge long flame and used to float great logs from the forest to the bottom of the well.

An artesian well borer was recently employed to secure an adequate water supply for a large sawmill in that region. He drilled to a depth of 200 feet, the lower 100 feet being through solid granite. The slight trace of water was found. The artesian man then placed fifty-four sticks of dynamite at the bottom of the well and exploded them.

Instead of water, rising twenty feet above the surface of the ground, pouring forth in enormous volume. That was days ago, and since then there has been no indication of a cessation of this vast "natural soda fountain."

NEWS FROM WEST DULUTH

PAVING FOR GRAND AVE.

Property Holders to Sign Petition to the Council.

Approach Being Filled for Ramsey Street Dock.

The people living and owning property on Grand avenue now have the paving craze, and it is very probable some steps will be taken this fall toward increasing the width of Grand avenue and paving it between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-ninth avenues west. One of the property owners on the avenue in these four blocks said today that a petition will be framed and circulated within the next few days, requesting the council to have Grand avenue paved, the cost to be assessed on the abutting property. It is expected that no difficulty will be experienced in securing the required number of signatures to the petition, and it will be presented to the council this fall. Then, the advertising for bids, letting of the contract and other preliminaries can be completed and work begun as soon as the snow leaves in the spring.

Grand avenue has for some time been competing with Central avenue for prominence as a business street, and the paving of a stretch of four blocks will give it added prominence. The avenue will be widened by several feet, and the improvement will be a long step forward in the efforts of the property-owners to make the street for the approach gives color to the possibility.

There is now a good crew of men working on the dock which is being built by the city engineer, and the surplus material now being removed from the street in the process of grading for the pavement, is being used for work on the dock. The material consists of worn cedar blocks and earth, and will make good filling for the approach. The extension of the street to the site of the dock makes West Duluth people more hopeful that they will yet have the dock, over which there has been so much discussion. The board of public works has given repeated assurance that work on the dock will be started as soon as the street work is completed, and the use of the material from the street for the approach gives color to the possibility.

THEORIES CHANGED
Police Again Think That Broker Phillips Was Murdered.

Are Hunting for Man Formerly Employed About House.

Cleveland, Sept. 6.—New theories, suspicions and developments in the mystery surrounding the death of John I. Phillips, coal operator and broker, follow each other in rapid succession.

Today a former employee is suspected of having caused the death of Phillips. His name is known to the officials, and a search is being made for him.

Monday Phillips was shot and killed at his home in the aristocratic part of East Cleveland. The day he was believed to have been killed by a burglar. Tuesday it was thought Phillips committed suicide. Wednesday this theory was disproved and suspicion was directed against the widow, Charlotte Phillips. A warrant, allegedly murder, was issued for her arrest. Thursday the officials began to doubt this theory and today a searching began for the man formerly employed about the Phillips home, whom Mrs. Phillips says she saw in front of her home, just after her husband was shot.

James Dunn, Jr., Phillips' private secretary, says this man called at Phillips' office Tuesday morning. The object of his call was not disclosed by Dunn, except to the officials, but he was to have returned Wednesday morning. Dunn says but so far has not been seen.

It was stated by Chief Stamberger today that Mrs. Phillips will formally be placed under arrest during the afternoon. While this is the program, yet there would be no surprise if the warrant was withdrawn.

Mrs. Phillips exact physical condition was in doubt today. The officials believe she is fully recovered from her stupor, while members of the family say the woman is still suffering from the effect of the drug taken Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Phillips' attorney, Judge William B. Neff, will endeavor today to have the charge against his client dismissed. Application for the appointment of administrators of the estate of the late John I. Phillips was made in the probate court today. The examination disclosed the fact that the estate now is valued at about $31,000, whereas a few years ago Phillips was supposed to be worth nearly a half million dollars.

RECKLESS RAILROADING.

James Lovelock, the noted financier, told at a shareholders meeting in New York a railroad story. "America has a good many railroad accidents," he began, "but we must remember that America is an immense country, with an immense railroad traffic. Our roads, on the whole, are carefully and intelligently managed. They are not managed in the least like a road I heard a story of the other day."

"It was before the war, and a northerner was traveling on a little railway in New England. Suddenly, in an out-of-the-way spot, the train halted, and the brakeman leaped out and ran up the track. On the brakeman's return the tourist said to him:

"This is a queer place to stop. There's no station here. What's the trouble, anyway?"

"Oh, nothing of any consequence," the brakeman answered. "The signal wuz agin us, that wuz all. I've jest set it right, an' now we'll go on agin directly."

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—William Faversham in "The Squaw Man."

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

Chauncey Olcott.

Chauncey Olcott's most notable engagement in Duluth will open at the Lyceum on Tuesday and continue for five nights, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Life will present its newest play, "O'Neill of Derry," in which he is appearing at the Metropolitan opera house, St. Paul, this week, as the special state fair attraction. The new production is upon a huge scale, and two special baggage cars are required to transport it. The atmosphere of the ancient world of London is presented, while the story is said to be thrilling in the extreme. The company is a large one, and contains many names well known to the seasoned theater-goer. Mr. Olcott has four new songs which he will sing here in Duluth. The titles are: "Every Star Falls in Love With Its Mate," "One Little, Sweet, Little Girl," "A Rose of Derry," and "Michael McGinty." The sale of seats now in progress indicates crowded houses at every performance.

"The Squaw Man."

An event of more than passing interest is the appearance at the Lyceum theater, tonight and tomorrow afternoon and evening, of William Faversham, under the direction of Lieber & Co., in "The Squaw Man," a comedy drama by Edwin Milton Royce, which was the attraction at Wallace's theater, New York, for the entire season. The story has to do with life in the Western states, where, when a white man marries an Indian woman, he is called a "Squaw Man." The scene of the first act is laid in England, the others all take place in the "Far West" of this country. Mr. Faversham, in "Brother Officers" and in other plays in which he has appeared has shown himself pre-eminently fitted for roles of this kind, and it was to be expected that he would score a big success.

Return of Stock Company.

The Mack-Lewis company, four times at the Lyceum next Sunday and Monday, presenting the Augustus Thomas comedy, "The Other Girl," in which Lionel Barrymore appeared. The same scale of prices prevails.

CARLOADS OF MONEY

Amount Now in This Country Equal to 874 Carloads.

This is Exclusive of Sixteen Cars of Paper Currency.

Washington, Sept. 6.—How many carloads of money are there in the United States? This question was asked of a treasury official the other day. It was promptly by Wall street's cry of distress over the scarcity of money at this time. "Well," replied the official, "that is a matter of mathematical calculation. It will require considerable figuring, but it is not an impossible problem." Then he began to figure. He figured all that day and until the small hours of the night and then did some more figuring the next day. But he found out. He had the general stock of money in the United States—$1,000,000,000—and the weight of each kind of money as a basis to work upon, and it became simply a question of multiplication, addition, subtraction and

Here is the result:

Total number of cars 874. This is equivalent to a train six miles long. It would make forty-three trains of twenty cars to the train. These figures do not include sixteen cars of paper money in circulation which are based on gold and silver.

The classification by kinds of money follows:

Gold, 6 cars; silver dollars, 40 cars; silver dollars, 40 cars; paper, 2 cars; minor coins, 23 cars; total, 89 cars. Less paper money duplicated, 19 cars. Actual amount in country, 74 cars.

These deductions are based on forty cars of metal money to the car and twenty tons of paper money.

The public probably wonders how the official computed the weight of paper money. This, to a man in the treasury, is an easy matter. The government issues just as precise concerning the weight of All bills are of the same weight. When they are turned out of the treasury, one thousand are dollar bills, worth three pounds. Likewise it takes one thousand bills of any denomination—five, ten, twenty, hundred, thousand or ten thousand, to weigh three pounds.

The weight of paper money by denominations follows:

One dollar bills, 175 tons; two dollar bills, 42 tons; five dollar bills, 135 tons; ten dollar bills, 81 tons; twenty dollar bills, 20 tons; fifty dollar bills, 24 tons; hundred dollar bills, 2 tons; five hundred dollar bills, 14 pounds; thousand dollar bills, 20 pounds; two thousand dollar bills, 30 pounds; ten thousand dollar bills, 42 pounds.

The total gives twenty-three cars of 20,000 pounds to the car.

The cheapest lot of money is the minor coins, compared to weight. Minor coins, or token money, includes anything up to a nickel. The amount of outstanding minor coins aggregates $15,427,735 in bronze pennies; $2,309,309 in white pennies; $55,900 in old-fashioned big cents; $10,000 in 2-cent pieces; $25,000 in 3-cent pieces; and $22,000 in nickel pieces. These figures are up to date.

They would fill 23 cars of 20,000 tons capacity each. Classified by denominations the result would be:

Copper or bronze coins, 12 cars; white cents, 16 cars; copper two cents, 14 cars; nickel pieces, 1 car; nickel pieces, 12 cars; old-fashioned big cents, 1 car; total, 45 cars.

Of this class of money all is being retired except the copper or bronze cent and the nickel piece. As fast as the white cents come in the treasury sends them to the mint and uses them in making nickels. The 2-cent pieces are being converted into nickels. The copper cents and the old-fashioned 1-cent pieces are being removed into copper or bronze pennies. However, the big cents are extremely hard to find now. They are being taken up mostly by coin dealers who are holding them as curios. It is estimated that most of the 2-cent pieces and a good portion of the 1-cent pieces will also be withdrawn up by coin dealers for the same purpose.

When the government first began to coin pennies it based their weight on the actual value of the metal. But that didn't last long. It made the cents too big. However, had the original plan been followed down to the present time, a copper new would be as big as a car wheel. One hundred pennies now only cost the government 10 cents. This includes the cost of coinage. Up until a short time ago the government bought the blank pennies of manufacturers and then stamped them itself at the Philadelphia mint. But now it manufactures the blanks also. All of the minor coins are made at the Philadelphia mint. Congress, however, has passed a law which will permit their coinage at any of the government mints.

If the demand for pennies and nickels continues to increase, the other mints will be equipped with the necessary machinery to manufacture them. It is the purpose of the treasury department to continue their manufacture at the Philadelphia mint as long as possible.

When the government first began to coin silver dollars, quarters and half dollars, it made them divisional parts of a dollar. That is, each dime contained one-tenth as much silver as a dollar, each quarter one-fourth as much as a dollar and each half dollar half as much as a dollar. But when specie payment was suspended by the government, from 1892 to 1893, the price of metallic money came much of the subsidiary coin to leave the country. To prevent this, the government cut down the amount of silver in that class of coin 7 per cent, and since then a dollar's worth of dimes or quarters or half dollars contains 7 per cent less silver than a silver dollar contains. The 2-cent pieces were adopted for the purpose of facilitating business when the country had 2-cent postage. They went out of general circulation soon after postage was reduced to 2 cents.

For many years pennies didn't circulate in the West. A nickel was the smallest change that would be accepted. The 2-cent coin and the 2-cent half penny, however, have gradually brought

It is not generally known that the Orkney and Shetland islands were formerly the property of Norway, and were formally given up by that country. James III of Scotland married Margaret, the daughter of King Christ-

TENDERED A BANQUET

Jesse R. Sharp Honored by Local Insurance Men.

Made Field Manager for Columbia Life at Portland.

Jesse R. Sharp, agency director of the New York Life Insurance company, who will leave Sept. 15 for Portland, Or., to become field manager for the Columbia Life & Trust company, was tendered a farewell banquet at the Commercial club last evening by Duluth and Superior business men. Ten men were present besides Mr. Sharp.

The affair was a very enjoyable one. The departing insurance man has been in the business in Duluth for several years, and has attained considerable popularity here, among his competitors in business as well as others with whom he has come in contact while a resident of the city. The banquet last evening was a fitting tribute to Mr. Sharp, and was a mark of the general esteem in which he is held.

F. B. McCormack acted as toastmaster, and all the banqueters were called upon to respond to toasts. The remarks related to Mr. Sharp and insurance work in general, and many expressions of regret were voiced over the departure of the guest of the evening. Mr. Sharp is going to a wider field, the new position being a decided step forward in the insurance business. If good wishes of friends left behind count for anything, he should meet with remarkable success in the western field.

Those present were: W. H. Squires, Frank T. McNally, L. G. Fisher, H. A. Granlund, C. L. Rakowsky, C. D. Bennett, P. B. McCormack, T. J. Monahan, B. G. Segog, D. M. McGraw and Jesse R. Sharp.

WATSON & CO WILL RESUME

Grain and Stock Brokers
Will Pay Everything, Says Officer.

Watson & Co., the brokerage concern which failed yesterday, is to resume business, according to a statement made last evening by Hal P. Watson of Minneapolis, the head of the firm.

Mr. Watson refused to make an extended statement, but he said positively that his firm would resume business and that no one to whom it is indebted will lose a cent.

The firm is well known. It was prominent in the Minneapolis chamber of commerce before it became a member of the New York stock and produce exchanges, as well as similar organizations throughout the country.

Hal P. Watson is well known throughout the country as a clever young business man, and his associates bear the same good reputations. H. V. Jones, another member of the firm, was at one time commercial editor of the Minneapolis Journal, later editor of the Commercial West, and still its publisher. He is one of the best known and most widely followed crop experts of the country, and his reports and estimates usually have a considerable effect on the grain market.

Just how soon the firm will be able to resume business is not known. Local representatives have not been informed.

The company has always done a big grain business, and it was not this branch, the business that brought about disaster.

INSPECTOR OF MINES

For Labor Department of Minnesota
Presents His Annual Report.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—W. H. Harvey, inspector of mines for the state department of labor, yesterday filed his annual report with W. H. Williams, state labor commissioner, covering the year ending Aug. 1, last.

He states that there are 104 mines in St. Louis county, of which ninety-one are being operated. During the year 26,545,675 tons of ore were shipped.

There were eighty-one fatal accidents during the twelve months, of which seventy-nine were employees of the mining companies. There was one man killed to every 220,464 tons of ore shipped. The fatal accidents in the actual work of mining were but fifty-one. Twenty-one fatalities occurred in the work of stripping.

During the year 1,450,953 cubic yards of soil and rock were removed in the process of stripping—one life being lost for each 518,198 cubic yards moved. There were thirty-seven fatalities in underground mines.

On the subject of wages, the report says $2.46 per day is the average for underground miners, and $2.73 per day for surface workers and skilled labor. Mining captains receive $4.82 a day, shift bosses $3. Cheaper employees received from $1.55 (tally boys) to $2.93 for contract miners. Surface foremen received $3.08 a day, mining engineers $4, clerks $2.13, chemists $5.18 a day.

BLOW FROM FIST CAUSES THE DEATH OF FIREMAN

Was Knocked Into the Hold of Steamer Kensington.

Dies Shortly Afterwards at Hospital From His Injuries.

Joseph Krantz, a fireman on the steamer Kensington, died this morning at 2 o'clock at St. Mary's hospital of injuries sustained by falling into the hold of the boat yesterday afternoon, after being struck in the face by Joseph Brown, an alien.

The latter met him and struck him a blow in the face, Krantz staggered backward, tripped on the rim of the open hatch and went down into the hold.

An ambulance was quickly summoned to the boat, which was lying at the Pittsburg coal dock, No. 5, and Krantz was taken to the hospital. His head was crushed, and he received internal injuries, which made the possibilities of recovery but slight, and death came at 2 a. m. Brown was arrested immediately after the affair, and he will probably be held on a charge of manslaughter. Coroner Dudley will conduct an inquest over the body this afternoon.

Brown tells a straightforward story. He said he had no previous trouble of any consequence with Krantz. It seems, while coming up the lake, Krantz had difficulty keeping up steam, and the chief engineer had sent Brown out to help him several times. Brown had had some words with Krantz on account of his inability to keep up steam and Krantz held some resentment against him on that account.

Yesterday afternoon Brown says he came up out of the hold, with a valve, which he intended to take up, when Krantz, who had been on shore and had a few drinks, it is said, was sitting on the deck with another fireman and other offer. Brown set the valve down between two of the men and sat down. Krantz and he got into an argument and Krantz called him a vile name. A moment later, when Krantz arose and approached him, he said he hit him. Brown is a clean cut sort of a fellow with many friends among his members of the crew. They say he has never been in trouble before. Krantz was about 35 years of age, and his home is unknown. He was shipped at Lorain, Ohio, on the last trip.

FRENCHMEN

Hope Canadian-French Treaty Will Develop Relations of Countries.

Paris, Sept. 6.—Discussing the new Canadian-French commercial treaty, the Journal today says it hopes it will develop the relations between the two countries, united by ties of blood and friendship, and demonstrate the practical need of a steamship line between the St. Lawrence and the Seine. France is giving the minimum rates on many Canadian products, and gets from Canada preferential rates on some French products, and the minimum rates on the rest. Some French lines are favorably treated.

ATTENTION, REDMEN

KICK ON SCHEDULE.

Park Point People Do Not Like Bridge Service.

A number of Park Point people are already kicking on the new time schedule of the aerial bridge, which went into effect yesterday. The new schedule calls for ten-minute service only, at morning, noon and evening. Otherwise the bridge crosses the span every twenty minutes. The residents claim that a large number of people are obliged to wait twenty minutes, and that it is a great inconvenience. Many of the people living on the Point do not take the street car down to the bridge or on the other side, as the distance to their homes is not considered far, and there is general complaint being registered by those who have to wait twenty minutes for a ferry.

STOLE TOILET ARTICLES.

Men Have Powder and Toilet Creams in Possession.

Mrs. Josie Swensk, a blind woman, who conducts a restaurant at 346 Lake avenue, reported to the police today that she missed some toilet articles from her room and suspected John Hakala and Charles Johnson of the theft. The men were arrested this afternoon, and when searched at the police station, their pockets revealed a wonderful display of beauty products. There were toilet creams and powders and nudes of all kinds, perfumes and manicure articles, false hair and wigs, and, in all, they had enough to start a good-sized store. They were booked for larceny, and will be arraigned tomorrow morning.

SCANTON TEACHERS TO IDAHO. Scanton, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Nella Dawson, formerly a teacher in the Scanton public schools, has accepted a position in the public schools of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, for the ensuing school year.

DONALDSON BANK LATEST VICTIM

Kittson County Visited by Yeggmen and Much Money Taken.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fourth bank robbery on the last few days in this section of the Northwest is reported at Donaldson, Kittson county. The State bank of Donaldson was dynamited by yeggmen, about midnight last night, and a large amount of money taken. The telegram from there says $13,000 was secured, but this is believed to be an error, and $1,200 probably nearer the amount stolen. Two suspects are being trailed to Canada by officers, who have a good description of them and hope to capture them within twenty-four hours.

Double-breasted black suits at the "Fitwell," only $15.

MORE LIBERAL WITH ITS FUNDS

State Highway Commission Will Give Counties More Aid.

St. Paul, Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state highway commission has decided to be more liberal in its interpretation of the law relating to the expenditures of funds given by the state to various counties as an aid in the construction of good roads. A resolution offered by Commissioner Halverson was adopted. The resolution provides that whenever it shall appear to the satisfaction of the state engineer that any county has expended a certain sum on permanent improvement of a state road, during the fiscal year ending July 30 next, one-half of such amount shall be given by the state to the county to be expended under the rules and regulations of the highway commission, provided that this amount does not exceed that allotted to the county.

WILL CONSIDER BIDS.

School Board Will Begin Work on Franklin Building.

When the board of education meets this evening, it will probably consider bids for the reconstruction of the Franklin school, which was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago. The members of the board as well as the superintendent of schools to have the damage done to the building repaired as soon as possible, so that the pupils can occupy the building. The contract for the work, they will probably let tonight.

The board will also hear the report of the committee appointed to draft a new constitution for the Duluth high school, which this year will give instruction in three years of high school instead of two formerly.

Aside from these matters, the business taken up will probably be of a routine nature.

The estimated assets of the firm are $980,900. ### THE GROCERYMAN.

Chicago News: "Willie's gone to get married, Evelina," said the groceryman to the pretty cook after he had unloaded his basket.

"Is that so?" asked the cook, with an appearance of great interest. "Who's he going to marry?"

"Some girl," replied the groceryman, "smiley," said the cook. "I s'pose he couldn't marry a widow, could he?"

"The best thing in the world. I believe I could marry a widow myself if I gave my mind to it. I could marry two or three for the matter of that."

"Think you'd have enough mind to go around?" I don't."

"You're prejudiced, Evelina," said the groceryman. "Just because I let you do about what you want with me you've got a poor opinion of my intellect. That's just the way with you women. You can't think you could get on with a married woman to believe her husband got any sense. If he had she wouldn't let him boss him the way I do. He'd just take a chin an' wear it out on me when I get to bed. He wouldn't try to argue with me an' make me hear reason. But ain't it funny about Willie?"

"I don't see anything funny about it," said the cook.

"That's right, all right, come to think of it," said the groceryman. "It's said. A fellow oughtn't to laugh. Why do they do it, Evelina?"

"Because they want to. I guess," hazarded the cook.

"I've often studied about it," said the groceryman, thoughtfully. "I guess they do what to. Sometimes they do, anyway."

"Why do they do it other times?"

"Because the women want to," said the groceryman. "You take it when there's a woman that's a good looking, an' who's got money saved up and cooks a good meal o' vittles and puts up a hint at havin' a sweet an' lovin' disposition—take a woman like that an' let her get to hintin' around that she's kinder stuck on you an' thinks you ought to have a home of your own an' it's hard to hold out if you think anything of her. A man may be a clump to it, but he often does it for no better reasons than them."

"If you wait till you've got his good reasons you'll wait a long time," said the cook. "When does the wedding come off?"

"It ain't comin' off. It's sorter comin' on," said the groceryman. "Willie's got to the point where he is lookin' in at the windows of the furniture stores. That's one of the symptoms, ain't it? But it's foolish of him, to my notion. If it was a girl like you I wouldn't blame him so much."

"I thought you didn't know her," said the cook.

"I didn't say so, but I don't just the same. But I know she ain't like you."

"Evelina," said the groceryman, "there ain't no girl like you. There couldn't be. You've got 'em all beat to a standstill. You show me the girl that's got your looks an' that's as smart as you are an' earns the good wages you do an' I don't know but I'd take a few chances myself."

"Think she'd be takin' any chances?" asked the cook.

"She wouldn't be takin' any if she took me," said the groceryman. "She'd have a feller that couldn't do enough for her."

"She'd have a feller that wouldn't," said the groceryman.

"If I was ever fool enough to do it I'd be ashamed to tell about it," retorted the cook. "Shut the gate after you as you go out."

GULL'S CLAM DINNER.

Hartford Courier: There are many gulls that fly in and about Clinton Harbor and just outside the harbor it is interesting to watch the small gulls hovering about the fish ponds, where they help themselves. Often each pond pole is surrounded by a gull waiting a dinner or resting after one. Sometimes the gulls make their nests in the cranberries and apertures of the coast rocks, but most frequently, where the shores are flat, the nests can be found in the sea weed, which is thrown far up on the beach at high tide, or in the tall hedge grasses that grow dry in the hot summer sun. Gulls are especially fond of the long clams, and many gulls spend their feeding time on the sand flats at low tide getting the clams. The gull takes the clam in its bill, then flies high up in the air, over a rock, and drops the clam so that the shell will smash on the rock. The gull then descends and enjoys the dainty. In winter a gull will drop a clam on an icy place, if convenient, instead of a rock. The gull seems wiser than his name implies.

GOOD SCHOOL SHOES!

Beware of trash!

Many stores are crying School Shoes at prices wonderfully small. What of it, if the shoes are poor—coarse leather, spongy soles, carelessly made? Economy doesn't lie along that route.

Get good shoes for school. Get the "Wieland" kind, because only the best leathers are used, and yet the prices are no more.

MORE GOOD THINGS FOR WEST END SHOPPERS

Many women don't believe in cut price sales. Don't understand why goods with real, honest values should be sold below cost. Listen! Let's tell you.

You know dry goods are primarily divided into two classes—Spring-Summer and Fall-Winter. Now we can better afford to sell Summer stuff for what we can get now than carry it for six months and then—get even less. Can't we? And besides, we simply must have shelf room for all the beautiful new Fall and Winter things that are just snowing us under. See the point?

If you bought Summer goods in July or August you'd wear them again part of next summer, wouldn't you. Then why not lay in a supply now at less than half what you'd have to pay then?

WEIGHT TEST ON DURUM WHEAT

State Board of Grain Appeals Has Adopted a Standard.

Minneapolis, Sept. 6.—Durum wheat has a weight test for the first time since its appearance on the market, as the result of the deliberations of the state grain appeal board here. Another innovation made at this meeting was the establishment of a moisture test for corn.

five pounds to the bushel. This ruling is expected to do away with the frequent complaints and appeals over durum grades.

The moisture test for corn is the result of complaints made to the national government by foreign corn consignees that the cargoes were arriving wet. In Minnesota, No. 1 corn will be allowed 15 per cent moisture; No. 2 corn, 15½ per cent moisture; and No. 3 corn, 19 per cent moisture.

The receivers appeared before the board seeking authority for a dockage allowance on oats and barley. Their contention was that since, by recent legislative enactment, they were forbidden to protect themselves by buying at less than the legal weight per bushel, they should be allowed to make deductions for dirt. This appeal was turned down. Moreover, it was further decided that upon the complaint of any farmer the railway and warehouse commission should prosecute anyone buying at less than the legal weights. It appeared that it had been the practice of grain buyers to take oats on a basis of thirty-three and barley on a basis of fifty-five pounds to the bushel.

The test weights on oats were lowered by the board. No. 3 white is cut from 28 to 25 pounds to the bushel, and No. 4 white was reduced from 25 to 23 pounds a bushel. The election of officers resulted as follows: A. F. Evenson, general chairman; W. F. Kelso, general secretary; Minneapolis board, A. F. Evenson, chairman; S. P. Thorson, W. F. Kelso, secretary; Duluth board, Hans E. Borge, chairman; Herbert M. Gray, P. McCarg, secretary; F. W. Eva of St. Paul is chief inspector; J. N. Barnard of Minneapolis and H. E. Emerson of Duluth, chief deputies.

WEST END MISSIONS THE TOPIC

Swedish Methodist Episcopal Conference Hears Talk.

Rev. John A. Anderson Gives the Annual Conference Sermon.

Rev. Robert Forbes of Philadelphia, secretary of the American Board of Home Missions and the Church Extension Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, gave an interesting address on "Home Missions" before the members of the Swedish M. E. conference last evening at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street.

Dr. Forbes gave a splendid account of the progress that has been made in the matter of home missions during the past year and outlined plans for the next twelve months.

He is well known at the head of the Lakes, being a former presiding elder for this district of the English speaking conference.

Dr. C. G. Nelson of Evanston, Ill., also spoke last evening. His talk had to do largely with the work of the theological seminary at Evanston, run in connection with the Northwestern university there.

Miss Florence Fielder of Superior sang several solos.

Yesterday afternoon's session was given over largely to the meeting of the Women's Missionary society. The principal address of the afternoon was given by Miss F. J. M. of Minneapolis. She told of the work that is being carried on there. Mrs. Albert Gustafson of Minneapolis spoke, and talks were given also by Mrs. Magnus Webster and Dr. Simonson of Chicago.

The regular business session of the conference was resumed this morning and this afternoon Rev. John A. Anderson, pastor of the Swedish M. E. church of Duluth, is delivering the conference sermon.

This evening the speakers will be Rev. A. G. Hiltgren of Clear Lake, Minn., formerly pastor of the First Swedish M. E. church here and Rev. J. A. Froberg of Trade Lake, Wis.

Another business session of the conference will be held tomorrow morning, and in the afternoon a missionary sermon will be preached by Rev. Frank Gustafson. In the evening Rev. E. G. J. Lindstrom of Duluth will preach sermons to young people.

RETURNING TO THE CITY

West Enders Are Moving In From Their Summer Homes.

Pike Lake Colony Has Broken Up for the Season.

West enders, who have been spending the summer at their cottages at Pike and Spirit Lakes, and who have been camping at other pleasant places hereabouts, are beginning to come back to town and to open up their houses once more.

A few of them will remain out longer to enjoy the beautiful weather, but a majority have packed up their belongings and brought them back to the city.

Mortrud and family moved in from their summer home at Pike Lake yesterday. They went out early in the season, and the custom, spent a delightful season. Mr. Mortrud's place is one of the finest on the lake, and he has a fast launch there. He has been out to the afternoon and coming back in the morning in his automobile.

David Adams and family, who have been camping the other side of Lester park all summer, expect to be back in the West end by next week. Mr. Adams sold his home on Twenty-eighth avenue last spring and has been waiting until one of his new houses was completed before coming back to town.

Several West enders, who have been camping on Spirit Lake, are back in town again, and the colony near Lester park is breaking up. Several young men, who had a cottage on Park Point for the last three months, have given it up and returned to their homes.

FORMER PASTOR TALKS.

Members of Swedish Mission Church Hear Rev. Albert Johanson.

Rev. Albert Johanson of Moline, Ill., gave an address last evening at the Swedish mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and second street. The church was crowded and Mr. Johanson's discourse was listened to with much interest. He was formerly pastor of the church at Moline, where he has been since last evening.

Rev. Mr. Johanson and family have been in the West end for several days. They return today to their home at Moline.

Novel Form of Attraction Arouses No Little Curiosity.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the novel stunts pulled off at the state fair yesterday was a noon wedding.

Julius E. Watkins of Walcott, N. D., and Miss Mildred Nulph of Wyndmere, N. D., were married by Rev. Emil Sands of Minneapolis, at the Northwestern Agricultural building.

As might be expected the wedding proved a big attraction for the women in the crowd, and the men, also, seemed quite anxious to see and hear everything.

A big crowd gathered in front of the building and it was with difficulty that the police succeeded in clearing the way for the wedding party. Probably 3,000 people saw or tried to see the ceremony.

WORK ON NEW TERMINALS WILL NOW BE RUSHED

Now that permission has been secured from the Wisconsin railroad commission to build in that state, the United States Steel corporation can go ahead with the construction of the railroad and terminals, which are to handle the output of the new steel plant at Duluth.

Joseph B. Cotton, general solicitor for the Oliver Iron Mining company and in charge of the legal procedures incidental to the establishment of the steel plant, received yesterday from the state of Wisconsin the certificate permitting the company to carry on the work.

Mr. Cotton says that work on the railroad will now be pushed as rapidly as possible. Plans and specifications must be submitted to the Wisconsin railroad commissioners, and approved by them, and this business will be disposed of at once.

It cannot be said just when the actual work of road-building will begin, but it will be in the near future.

In Wisconsin there is a law which prohibits the laying of a single foot of railroad, either by a new or an old company, before the matter has been put before the railroad commission, and permission to proceed given by that body. There is no such law in Minnesota.

The company will do practically as much railroad building in Minnesota as in Wisconsin. There will be tracks, yards and terminals on the Minnesota side of the river, as well as on the Wisconsin side.

The outlay necessary to complete this road-building will be great, and employment will be given to a large number of men.

Work has been started on boarding camps for the men who will be employed in the preliminary work at the steel plant site.

WIFE NOW ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Suit of Husband Was Dropped and She Now Sues.

The complaint was filed this morning in the divorce suit instituted by Mrs. Jennie T. Riesland against her husband, Dr. D. W. Riesland, the notice of trial of which was entered yesterday.

In the complaint it is alleged that Mr. and Mrs. Riesland were married at Superior in the year 1887. That she is 34 years of age, and he is 34. The couple lived together in Duluth, until July, 1906, at which time Dr. Riesland deserted his wife and has since refused to live with her or to support her.

The complaint further states that in July of 1906, Dr. Riesland began an action for divorce from this wife and in the complaint against her he falsely and maliciously accused her of deserting him about 1906. In Mrs. Riesland's complaint it is alleged that her husband knew all the time that it was a false statement.

Statements were also falsely made by Riesland, it is claimed, in which he accused his wife of criminal and inhuman treatment, and charged her with having at one time threatened to kill him. All of these charges were known by him to be utterly false, it is alleged.

Later on, Mrs. Riesland alleges that she appeared in court and denied all the charges before she could prove them false in court her husband caused the action to be dismissed.

She claims the charges were made by Riesland only to cause a blot on her name. It is claimed that these charges caused Mrs. Riesland much mental and physical pain and as a result she is now unable to support herself on account of her nervous condition.

By Riesland is declared to have a very good practice and considerable property and besides a complete separation from him, Mrs. Riesland asks for such temporary and permanent alimony as the court may deem proper.

Mrs. Riesland is represented by the law firm of Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Cripple With Both Arms Off Excites Sympathy of Court.

Peterson Who Made a Record, Wanted to Leave City.

Judge Windom suspended sentence today in the case of Louis Hanson, an aged and bent cripple with both arms off, one at the shoulder and the other between the elbow and wrist, and the unfortunate cheerfully promised "feed it" as he expressed it, out of Duluth as soon as possible.

Hanson was arrested on the charge of drunkenness. He claimed that he lost his arms three ty-four years ago and since then has been making a rather uncertain living peddling wares from door to door. He has to trust to the honesty of his patrons as he can no longer make money in any other way.

Thereafter, and his helpless condition was responsible for the tendency of the court. In cases and matters before the judge with a look of hopeless misery on his face, he stood before the judge with a look of hopeless misery on his face, he stood before the judge with a look of hopeless misery on his face.

John Bennick, arrested for drunkenness, claimed he was afflicted with an uncomfortable tumor in his interior and took a couple of drinks of whiskey to alleviate the pain. The booze proved a promoter rather than an antidote, according to John and he started for home "with an awful pain," but forgot things after that. "They put some things in his vest," John emphatically stated. He drew the minimum sentence.

George Turpin, claiming he had never been arrested before in all his life and that he would never drink again, was given three days. George has been absent from Duluth for seven years, but located a number of saloons upon his return and found the quality of goods to his liking.

Felix Raines, a colored man, employed at the Spaulding hotel, got into trouble yesterday and was taken in by the police. He was found drunk at the Union depot. He appeared much crestfallen before the unhappy position after the bright pictures painted by the "gin rickies" he had taken on had worn off. The court requested Felix to raise the sum of $1 and costs or be pressed in jail for three days.

John Collins, who stated that he had been employed at the Commercial club up to three days ago when he started out on a spree, was taxed $1 and costs or three days. He smiled blandly and promised to raise the money as he felt that he had completed the work mapped out for himself when he started on his last drunk.

Frank Peters, who established a record by being arrested three times in thirty days, was fined $5 today. Frank came in with the sum of $20, and it burned in his pocket. He got drunk, was arrested, let out on bail and started things over again landing in jail the third time minus any remaining sum of intelligence and the $20. John told the court that he would leave town now, his money

A SILENT TRUMPET.

Alexander Graham Bell, whose experiments promise to give him as wonderful a success with the flying machine as he had with the telephone, used to teach the deaf and dumb—it was, in fact, his work among the deaf and dumb that led to the telephone's invention—and at a dinner in Washington he told a deaf-and-dumb story.

"This story illustrates," he began, "the necessity for carrying on aeroplane experiments secretly. Were they carried on publicly, interference would ensue. Ignorance always causes interference."

"Many years ago, an aged friend of mine visited a church in Maine one Sunday morning. As soon as the sermon began my friend, who was very deaf, took from his pocket an ear-trumpet in two parts, and proceeded to screw the parts together."

"While he was engaged in this work, he noticed that the sexton from his seat near the pulpit, kept frowning and slaking his head at him."

"Finally, just as my friend got his trumpet joined and made as if to put it to his ear, the sexton hastened to him and whispered fiercely:

"'Ye can't play that here. If you do, I'll put ye out.'"

WHY PARTY LINES VANISH.

It is small occasion for surprise that party lines should have degenerated from hard and fast boundaries to wavering, almost indistinguishable smudges unworthy of the name of dividing lines.

It is small occasion for amazement that party loyalty should have run so closely to the vanishing point that party leaders no longer know what to figure on.

The reason is that party organizations, fallen into selfish control, have been used to betray the people, and because under party rule have been brought about the strange evils that is the herculean task of the American people today to wipe out. The parties still exist, but they are mere shells of what they were. The average man today calls himself nominally a Republican or a Democrat, but when he votes he looks first at the character and purpose of the candidate, and second at his party label and the platform on which he stands.

This was true first in the cities, next in the states, and now it is becoming true of national politics. It is indubitable that party government, as it has existed in the past generation, has been hostile to good government rather than favorable to it; and that without regard to whether you speak of the Democratic party or the Republican party. Either party, out of office and wishing to get in, has been good enough; either party, given a long lease of power, has built up corrupt organizations that have betrayed the people. In the cities these organizations sold franchises and bound the people to long-time contracts, vastly expensive to them, and vastly profitable to the corporations. In the nation the organization has been controlled by big business, and tariff schedules and trust immunities have resulted that were vastly expensive to the people and vastly profitable to their beneficiaries.

Can anybody, reading the history of the past two or three decades, doubt that the party machines have striven to retire from politics men of high ideals and independent spirit? The popular official who spurned the collar found himself quickly dropped by the powers that held control, and his place was taken by one who could stultify himself for the sake of office. If the ringsters could not beat him in the nominating convention, they slyly but effectively knifed him at the polls. The machines, oiled by corporation money, did their work well, and as Prof. Edward Alsworth Ross says in the September Atlantic, "the resulting survival of the fittest added steadily to the putty-facts in public life."

In short, until within a short time politics has been the worst possible pursuit for a man of honor and integrity and of high ideals. There was no place for him so long as party machinery operated upon the old plan.

The destruction of party machines and the obliteration of party lines has provided an opening for ambitious men who seek in honest good faith the good of their fellow men, and they have seized it. Witness Governors Johnson of Minnesota, Hughes of New York, La Follette of Wisconsin, now senator, Folk of Missouri, and many others.

Politics is now a fair field, and the day of the "putty fact" and corporate truckler will give place to the day of the statesman and public servant.

HERALDS OF AUTUMN.

With the coming of the first "R" month, bringing oysters, the passing of the baseball season, the straw hat and the vacation time, and the opening of the schools, surging thoughts of approaching winter are inevitable.

Yet Duluth has nothing to worry about. September, October and November are in many respects the finest months of the year in this climate. Though the nights are cool, that brings sounder sleep, and the days are fresh, clear, fine and bracing. An occasional northeaster is to be expected to add variety to this season, but winter does not really begin until well along toward the New Year, and a procession of stimulating days brings briskness to business and sends the current of life pulsing strongly through the veins of humanity.

Nevertheless, summer has waned, and it must be given a reluctant farewell. The sun did not rise this morning until 5:34, an hour and twenty-two minutes later than its earliest rising of the year; and it sets to-night at 6:39, an hour and twenty-eight minutes earlier than its setting on the longest day of the year. The day is therefore nearly three hours shorter than the longest day of the year. The woods are showing unmistakable signs of fall, and the brilliant flowers of summer have given place to the complicated composites that herald the approaching frost. Pretty soon the lawnmower and the sprinkling hose will be laid away with the straw hat and the pekaboo waist, and the merry householder will regard with anticipatory eye the snow shovel and the coal bin.

A LIFE WORTH WHILE.

There is no one so wretched that he cannot find others in sadder condition than himself; there are none so poor that they cannot find others still poorer to whom they can extend relief.

Indeed, there is more true charity among the poor than among the rich; for the charity of the poor is at great personal sacrifice, and the charity of the rich, however well-meant, is but an incident and a trifle in their expenditures compared with their resources.

Rev. Newell Dwight Hill, the famous preacher, tells of a worker among the poor of London who found in the story of an apple woman an example that should shame those of moderate means who protest that they have nothing for charity, because they need it all themselves. As a matter of fact, by sacrificing something out of their store, however slender, they can buy with it a greater satisfaction and a deeper pleasure than they can ever find in all the luxuries their purses will bring them.

no matter how much they may stretch their resources or plunge into debt.

Fate had given to this woman the direst poverty. She had two rooms in a tenement, and hunger and cold were her frequent guests.

Yet she found one day, sleeping in an ashbox, three orphan boys that were more miserable than she, and she took them in.

She gave her heart and her life to these poor little waifs of the street. She divided her poverty with them, and though by doing so she increased her own privations, she gave them shelter and food, and thereby improved their lot in life.

This was but a start. During forty-two years this woman, poor in money but rich in love and pity, mothered and reared some twenty orphans. She gave them home, bed and food. She taught them all she knew. She helped some to gain a little knowledge of trades. She helped others off to Canada and America.

When she was found dead in her garret, the worker who found her reported that though her face was misshapen and ugly, a beautiful smile had smoothed away its surface, and the glowing spirit that had departed had left upon the ill-treated body a caress that had softened the lines upon her countenance. Though her face was ill-favored and ugly, her soul was beautiful, for there are beautiful souls in homely bodies, just as there are ugly souls within handsome bodies.

That garret was bare and gloomy, yet imagination pictures the uncharitably glory that must have bathed it when the noble soul of this self-sacrificing mother of the motherless passed beyond. Her face might have been ugly, and her life hard and weary, but she was touched by the grace of God, and no harsh conditions of earthly life could crush the nobility of her inner being.

Many a man and woman who has never known what it is to suffer from poverty as that woman suffered has passed away from a life full of pleasure and plenty without accomplishing the minutest fraction of the good for humanity that that poor apple woman had done.

THE LAKES-TO-GULF WATERWAY.

A writer contributes to the Saturday Evening Post an elaborate article on the proposed waterway from Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico, by way of the drainage canal, which is to be enlarged if congress will supply the money, and the rivers, which are also to be deepened if congress will provide the money. In this article the arguments in favor of waterways as a check to the greed of railroads are strongly set forth, and are urged as a reason why the lakes-to-gulf waterway should be built. This writer, in discussing the opposition to this canal, makes one very grave error, however. He states that the only opposition comes from selfish private interests, mainly the owners of water power plants along the drainage canal, and that such opposition should not stand in the way of a good thing.

Nor should it. But that is not the only opposition. There is a feeling along the Great Lakes, which form an infinitely greater and more valuable waterway than the lakes-to-gulf thoroughfare ever can be, that to enlarge the drainage canal enough to provide navigation would draw so much water away from the lakes as to seriously lower their levels and disturb it if it does not prevent inter-lake navigation.

If this is the case, and the engineers can quickly determine it by a slight investigation of altitudes, no lakes-to-gulf project will ever go through.

Not only will the lake states use their influence in congress to stop it, but Canada, which is interested in one side of the lake thoroughfare, will never consent.

This is no case of jealousy toward a proposed new waterway. If it is shown that the lakes-to-gulf waterway can be provided without interfering with the Great Lakes, it should have the support of everybody.

THE "IRON LAW OF WAGES."

It was hardly necessary for LeGrand Powers of the federal census bureau to make an attack upon the "iron law" of Lassalle, the German Socialist, who held that wages are always at the least figure that allow the workman to live and raise a family. That "iron law" was shown years ago to be made of anything but iron, and it has been exploded time and again, by events if not by argument. Yet Mr. Powers has assailed the "law" just as though it were still in force, and of course he has succeeded admirably, through his "Making the Poor Richer," in demolishing it.

Lassalle's idea was that even if, through any unusual circumstances, wages were forced to a figure higher than the lowest rate needed to keep the workman alive, the result was the same anyway, because that would attract many contestants for such an attractive wage, and this would result in overcrowding the field and reducing wages to their old level.

This theory contemplates the eternal existence of a large body of unemployed workers, ready to rush in and underbid the employed workers when wages show a tendency to rise. There is such an army now in the world, there are even many unemployed men in some parts of this country in times of the greatest industry and widest prosperity, though at the same time there is labor scarcity in other parts. But as there is natural wealth enough in the world to support all its people, humanity will never rest until there is employment for every man at wages that will not only keep body and soul together but that will leave a margin security.

Lassalle's law has been repealed by the development of the natural wealth of the earth, by the invention of labor-saving devices which have increased the demand for labor, and by the initiative of labor itself, which has shown that by organization it is able to keep its wages at a reasonable level in ordinary times.

It is not in the interests of labor alone that it is desirable that it should be fully employed and well paid. There can be no real and abiding prosperity unless labor is well employed and amply paid. If Lassalle's law ruled still, labor might be paid in board and lodging instead of in money. Employers might agree to furnish food, clothing and housing for their workers, as the slaveholders did for their slaves. That would be quite in accordance with Lassalle's law. Yet such a condition would spell disaster. It would remove labor's purchasing power from the markets, even for the things it produced. Labor could not patronize the shopkeepers, the professional men, the teachers, writers or purveyors of amusement and learning.

Whereas, if labor is paid in money, and is paid enough to cover its comfortable living with a margin over, it stimulates production and profits everybody through its purchases in the general market.

Lassalle's law was absurd. The South under slavery was an example of its workings. While the North, with its well-paid workmen, progressed rapidly, the South was stagnant because its slave workers had no surplus wages to go into the creation of industry.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"It's worth a fortune to prospect in the desert in the Goldfield district," said O. P. Marion of Los Angeles, Cal., at the Lenox. "The heat and the insects and things that make the place a regular hell on earth for people that don't like that sort of life, and there are a great many men who dread reptiles just as much as a woman dreads a rat."

"Out there in the desert one encounters all sorts of reptiles and insects. There are wasps as large as humming birds, almost as rattle-snakes by the thousands. Other kinds of snakes are also there in abundance, and Harris says almost as large as locusts are much in evidence, and they have a bite that is very painful. Everything in the line of reptile and insect that is to be found there has a bite that is more or less poisonous, and some of them are fatal."

The precious metal is found in a rock formation there that seems to contain gold and silver. The workers have experienced minor passes this rock by thinking that it was a waste of time to test it. The greenhorn doesn't know the difference between a rock and a piece of gold, and the result that he has made is a waste of time and money. The old timers, many of the most important mines in the district have been worked for years, and the result is that the heat in summer time is something to be out of that part of the country during the hotter months of the year. A lot of the old timers are now leaving the place, and it has dark eyes they are in the shade of the desert.

"The settlers of Northern Minnesota are flouting on making a good deal of money out of the lumber trade," said B. H. Schaffer of Bemidji, Minn. "The price of wood is higher than it has been for years, and the fact that men in the lumber trade are making a good deal of money is a fact that is not to be denied. #### THE WEATHER.

The weather outlook was a little dubious this morning. It was cloudy, but it was difficult to be sure just how much of the haze that covered the sky was cloud and how much smoke. It was not cold, but the clouds made it cool. Yesterday's high temperature was 66 degrees, and the low was 52 degrees. The outlook for tonight and tomorrow, according to the weather man, was for a cool and rather showery weather, with possibly fog tonight.

A year ago today the long run of fine weather was still uninterrupted, the temperature setting up to 82 degrees. The sun was shining at 5:34 and sets tonight at 6:39, making 13 hours and 5 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: Warmer and showery weather prevailed Thursday and last night from Manitoba southward to Kansas and New Mexico, as moved from the plateau region to Alberta. This disturbance also caused showers in the west half of lot 3, East Superior street, Third division, 120,000. Michael Norris to O. C. Hartman and Theron H. Hawkes, Jr., lots 1 and 2, block 83, Portland division, $2,000.

"At a recent meeting of the railroad and warehouse commissioners, Frank Lydall of Hennepin county was appointed a clerk in State Engineer Norton's office at Duluth, at a salary of $75 per month. John M. Farmer of Le Sueur was appointed assistant weigher at Duluth at a salary of $65 per month."

"Robert Mangler of the California Wine house and wife left yesterday on a month's visit to the East."

"Robert" Adelsberg was seen in St. Paul a few days ago, which explains the theory that he went to "Towder, and will return."

"D. McPherson of Duluth has entered two mastiffs, Chispa I and Chispa II for exhibition at the great bench show, to take place at St. Paul on Sept. 13."

"A committee, consisting of President F. W. Hoyt of Red Wing, ex-Governor Hubbard W. E. Rice, S. B. Foote and R. S. Munger has been appointed in the interest of the Duluth, Red Wing & Southern railroad to visit New York and solicit funds for the completion of the road."

"James I. Gilbert, one of Duluth's new attorneys, left yesterday for Davenport, Iowa, where he will be married on Sept. 13."

"At a meeting yesterday of the St. Jean Baptiste society, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Levi Forest; first vice president, E. Langlois; second vice president, Charles Ouellet; treasurer, M. Duval; secretary, J. A. Robert; assistant secretary, Chevrete; corresponding secretary, Frank McDonald; corresponding director, James Trudeau; sergeant-at-arms, I. Bonville; directors, C. Poirier, Napoleon Grignon, L. Beaulieu, Capt. A. Paul and Joseph Lafortune."

"Prof. T. P. Brooke, formerly of Duluth, has been named director of the famous Mexican band, and will direct the band at Kansas City on Sept. 10."

"The wood working factory of Bradley & Sons of Rockford, Ill., will be working in Duluth before long. The firm has about $15,000 worth of improved machinery."

DAIRY SHOW VERY FINE
Exhibit of Milk Producers at Fair Said to be Great.

Jersey Cows Are Pro-nounced About Finest in World.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The exhibit of dairy cattle at the state fair this year is pronounced by competent judges one of the best ever seen in the United States. The stalls where the blooded milk producers are exhibited are constantly crowded with dairymen, fine stock breeders and the general public who are attracted by the sleek, finely formed animals.

One of the features of the Jersey exhibit was in class 88, get of one sire, in which Mrs. S. B. Thomas of St. Joseph, Mo., took first place with one of the finest exhibits ever seen anywhere. Judges said they were equal to the best at the shows held on the island of Jersey.

In the Jersey class Mrs. Thomas took the leading honors, winning the sweepstakes for built 2 years and over, for cows of the same age, and for cows 2 years of age. The Dispatch Weekly Farmer prize was won by Dixon & Deane of Brandon, Wis. Mrs. Thomas protested the decision of the judge, Prof. A. J. Haeckel, in this competition, but at a special meeting of the board of managers held yesterday the award was sustained.

M. D. Mann of St. Paul, won first prize for a bull 2 years and under 3, and first for a bull under 2 years. In the first named class his Merry Maiden's Premier was the winner, and in the second his Merry Maiden's Golden Rule was the first prize winner. The latter was a third prize with bull calves under 1 year and second with a heifer under 2 years. He was greatly disappointed by the death on Sunday of his cow, Alameda, which was the champion of the fair, and landed one of the sweepstakes for him.

C. E. Clarke of St. Cloud, H. P. Gray of Morris, and S. J. Jones of Duluth were the principal winners in the Galloway division. In the Aberdeen-Angus division W. H. McHenry, Denison, Iowa; A. C. Binnie, Alto, Iowa; W. J. Miller, and J. W. G. A. McFarland, Valley City, N. D.; J. H. Hess, Waterloo, Iowa, and O. V. Bates of McGregor, Iowa, took nearly all the prizes. The Hereford championships went to Carrell & McMillan of La Crosse, with champion senior bull, junior bull and junior champion cow. The senior cow is Pretty Face, owned by W. S. Van Natta & Sons, Fowler, Ind.

HOME-MAKING IS TAUGHT IN SCHOOL
Only School of Kind in Country Opens in Wisconsin.

Menomonie, Wis., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Stout Training school and the city schools have opened with a good attendance in all departments. One hundred and thirty-four students enrolled in the training school, five of them taking the home makers' course, which is new, having been inaugurated this year and being the only school of its kind in the United States. It has been created in recognition of the fact, developed by four years' experience in the School of Domestic Art and Science, that many young women desire an opportunity for the acquisition of the practical knowledge of these branches, without the technical and professional training necessary in preparing students to become teachers. The development of the plan will be watched with great interest by educators in general.

TEETH OF DEAD STICK IN PILOT
Horrible Fate of Man Struck by an Omaha Engine.

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Omaha passenger train No. 32 struck and instantly killed George E. Bowen, half a mile west of Fall Creek, Wednesday evening, his body being torn to pieces.

Bowen was employed as timekeeper for an extra "train" that worked on construction work near Fall Creek, and it is said that during the evening he and several companions had been down to the little town having a good time. This morning Bowen's body was found in the train in time to step aside.

The train which struck Bowen passed on, not even the engineer knowing that his engine had struck anyone. When he reached the railroad his message apprised him of the fact, and the engineer made an investigation. Upon examining the front of the engine he found several teeth sticking in the pilot beam on the right side, one of them being a gold-filled tooth.

District Attorney Arnold, upon investigation, has decided that he does not intend to prosecute Bowen. He was not killed near any crossing, and there appears to be no liability on the part of the railroad company.

He was on a visit to friends at Brainerd, and left in forenoon with a party of hunters for the mouth of Rainy river. The party stopped at Mr. Marshall's farm for a rest. Mr. Marshall had been asleep, and when one of the party tried to awaken him, he was found dead.

A BJORNSON EVENT.

Author Celebrates Fiftieth Anniversary of Publication of First Novel.

Christiania, Sept. 5.—Hjalmar Bjornson celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the publication of his first novel, "Synnøve Solbakken," at his home in Christiania, Little Norway. A number of distinguished guests were present, and the occasion was marked by the reading of the novel and the presentation of a letter from the author to the publisher, in which he expressed his appreciation of the success of the work. The novel, which was published in 1857, has since become a classic of Norwegian literature. Bjornson, who is now 75 years of age, has written many other novels and plays, and is one of the most famous writers of his country.

A humane citizen of Richmond, Ind., Mr. U. D. Williams, has issued a call for a humane appeal. It saves more all other throat and lung remedies put together. Used as a cough and cold cure, it cures whooping cough, quinsy, hoarseness and pharyngitis, and keeps the lungs and builds them up. ### THOUSANDS TOOK A BATH.

Residents of Berlin Reveal in an Unwonted Luxurious.

Berlin, Sept. 6.—An extraordinary scene was witnessed last week at Wannsee, a residential suburb on one of the lakes through which the Havel flows between Spandau and Potsdam. A portion of the shore has recently been thrown open for free mixed bathing, and on a fine warm day people flocked out of Berlin by hundreds of thousands to take advantage of the facilities thus afforded. During the entire afternoon the water was literally alive with humanity of both sexes and all ages. Accommodation for changing was rudimentarily inadequate to meet the demand, and most of the bathers doffed their clothes, as the expression goes, behind the shelter of a bush. An almost continuous train service and hundreds of motor buses and brakes were quite insufficient to take the multitude back to Berlin, and vast numbers were compelled to make the journey of ten miles or so on foot. All the restaurants and other houses of refreshment in the neighborhood were crammed till the early hours of morning, and as soon as the sun shone, the promenades as a rule on which a light breeze usually blew, were very largely represented among the host.

ALVEOLAR DENTISTRY

When we have our teeth in a person's mouth as they can use them with as much comfort and satisfaction as they could if all their teeth were natural and in good condition—teeth in place of those which have been worn on plates, because neither they nor their dentist knew of our method of supplying teeth without the aid of plates, those people are going to make good use of our service.

NO SURVIVORS ABLE TO ATTEND

No "Lady Elgin Banquet" Will Be Held This Year.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 6.—The story of the wreck of the Lady Elgin on the morning of Sept. 3, 1900, in which 200 of the flower of Milwaukee's young manhood and womanhood lost their lives, will be told for generations in the thousands of Milwaukee homes. It is probable, however, that the last banquet of the Lady Elgin survivors' association at Marble hall has been held. For years survivors of the disaster have gathered in Marble hall for a banquet and the renewal of old acquaintances. The ravages of time have had their effect, and now scarce a dozen remain to tell the story at first hand. And almost all of these are encumbered by age and infirmities that they will be unable to attend a banquet in the year.

Rev. J. J. Keogh, rector of St. John's cathedral, will deliver a solemn high mass of requiem at the cathedral on the night of Sept. 9 for the repose of the souls of the men and women who perished in the wreck. This is in accordance with a custom established in 1894 and kept up ever since.

vain for their wives, lovers struggled frantically to save their sweethearts. There were heroes in plenty. Instances are still recalled without number of the deeds of heroism during those awful minutes while the Lady Elgin sank into the waters of Lake Michigan. But heroism and self-devotion were of little avail in that raging sea. When the dawn brought light and calm it was found that scarce 10 of that happy throng had returned to tell the tale of the greatest wreck Milwaukee has ever known. Fully 200 had gone down with the ship and nearly all sleep in the bosom of the lake awaiting the call that shall reunite them with loved ones.

Year after year for many years now the survivors have gathered at Marble hall to tell again the old-told tale. Year after year the ranks of the association have grown thinner and thinner. Year after year death has reaped the harvest of the years. This year there will be no banquet for the very good reason that there is none of the survivors able to attend. Among well known Milwaukee survivors of the Lady Elgin are John J. Crilly, Charles Bevington, William Dever, Fred Kuotemeyer and Edward Malone.

BRYAN SCORES TAFT ROUNDLY

Attacks Secretary's Views on National Policies in Oklahoma Speech.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 6.—Ten thousand persons heard William J. Bryan here last night, replying to the recent address of Secretary of War Taft upon the Oklahoma-Indian Territory political situation, in Convention hall, and 3,000 people, unable to secure admittance to the auditorium, attended an overflow meeting nearby. Mr. Bryan was enthusiastically received. In addition to scolding Secretary Taft soundly for his personal ambitions above the welfare of the people of Oklahoma, and attacking the views of the secretary of war on national policies, Mr. Bryan declared the constitution of the proposed new state was even better than that of the United States.

Since then her neighbor has complained that ever since she saw the woman she was thrown into a state of nervous excitement, which she asserts, could only be the effect of a malicious spell. ## EDWARD WILL VISIT SPAIN.

Part of the Itinerary for His Trip Next Spring.

London, Sept. 6.—The king's plans for next spring are rather unsettled and no definite steps in this direction are likely to be taken for some weeks to come, until, indeed, his majesty has returned from his Continental tour. It is believed, however, that a visit to Spain, accompanied by Queen Alexandra, will form a prominent part of his majesty's arrangements for next year, and a visit to the country will be the case, it is more than likely that their majesties would travel via Lisbon.

OPIMUM WAR OVER AND WON.

Thousands of Dens in China Closed, and "Dope" Destroyed.

Hongkong, Sept. 6.—The war against opium in China is practically over. Every opium den in Canton has been closed up, and more than 3,000 of them have been shut up in Poochow. The leader of the anti-opium movement in Poochow is a young mandarin, Mr. Lin, of considerable ability, great-grandson of the famous Commissioner Lin, whose destruction of 2,000 chests of opium in 1839 led to the opium war.

SHE CAUSES HYSTERICS.

Alleged French Witch Has an Unusual Effect on Her Subjects.

Paris, Sept. 6.—Lévin, a small village near Bethune, has a witch who, it appears, is able to drive some of the inhabitants of the place into hysterics. Some time ago the poor woman borrowed a bottle from another woman, one of her neighbors. Since then her neighbor has complained that ever since she saw the woman she was thrown into a state of nervous excitement, which she asserts, could only be the effect of a malicious spell.

Long processions of students—the students all over China are strong against opium; an English professor in a Chinese government university said he found the students so anxious of their country's national vice that they did not like to speak of it to a foreigner—paraded the streets with banners, lanterns and flags, and hundreds of shops were decorated with burning and pennants. Many more meetings were held throughout the city. At these meetings of curiosity was begged to address the crowd, which he did amid great applause.

HORSES IN CHINA.

Use is Practically Confined to Shanghai, Tientsin and Tientsin.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The only places in China where horses are used to any great extent are Shanghai, Tientsin and Tientsin. Australians, "walkers," so-called, because they originate in New South Wales, are the most popular breed.

LACK OF AERONAUTS.

Plan to Create French School to Educate Them.

Paris, Sept. 6.—While it may be possible to build any number of aerobically balloons, it will not be an easy matter to find competent aeronauts to man them. This has suggested to a group of French engineers the idea of creating a special school or academy in a certain degree on the lines of the French Naval Academy, for the purpose of teaching aerial navigation.

CAME ALONE FROM MONTANA

Feeble Old Woman Friendless and Destitute in Duluth.

Traveling all the way from Billings, Mont., in an enticed condition and obliged to stop frequently en route for medical attendance, Mrs. Anna O'Neen, a woman well along in years, finally reached Duluth yesterday.

The remainder of her journey home to relatives and friends in Eau Claire, Wis., still seemed a long one, for she was tired out from her trip and chafed when she left Billings was sufficient to pay her way home to Wisconsin, but she used considerable of it when taken sick and was at a hospital in Billings for several days, according to her story, so that when she reached this city she was almost out

MANY ARE BENEFITTED

Reduction in Foreign Postal Rate Affects This Section.

Letters May be Sent for Half the Former Charge.

Thousands of foreigners and citizens of foreign birth residing in Duluth and on the range will be directly benefited by the big reduction in the foreign postal rate, which will go into effect on Oct. 1. Many of these people correspond regularly with relatives in European countries, and this correspondence has heretofore been rather expensive.

Complete information regarding the reduction in foreign rates by the post-office department has been received by the local postal officials in the bulletin of general orders issued by the chief railway mail clerk at Washington.

At present the rate on all first-class matter consigned to persons in foreign countries is 5 cents for every one-half ounce. The new rule reduces this rate just half, so that after Oct. 1, it will cost 5 cents for every ounce of mail matter sent to a foreign country.

When the new rule goes into effect any ordinary letter will go for 5 cents. The volume of mail which passes through the Duluth and range post-offices consigned to persons in European countries amounts to a good deal in the course of a year, and the reduction in the rate will mean considerable to this section.

The main use to which the foreigners put the mails is the sending of portions of their earnings back to their relatives. This is done by registered letter or by money order, but a letter usually accompanies the money.

For a mild, easy action of the bowels, a single dose of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills is all that is needed. 25 cents a box. Ask your druggist for them.

MEETING OF HUMANE SOCIETY

Officer Webber Will Probably Succeed Harry C. Withrow.

On Sept. 18 the annual meeting of the Humane society will be held, at which officers will be elected, reports read and plans for the future discussed.

The society has moved its office from the city hall to the O'Connell block, across the street, and now occupies comfortable quarters there.

It is anticipated that Officer Webber will be appointed humane agent by the society, to fill the vacancy resulting from the death of Harry C. Withrow. He has been acting temporarily.

The department has had numerous calls from school children for clothing, and the demands have been responded to as rapidly as possible.

School on Mill street, and many little ones, who are anxious to attend, have been supplied with comfortable clothing by the society.

IS DULL SEASON FOR RECRUITERS

Practically Impossible to Get Men, Says Chief Yeoman Shaw.

"I have never seen the time during my stay in Duluth when the recruiting business was so unprosperous as it is at the present time," said Chief Yeoman Shaw, in charge of the local naval recruiting office.

Mr. Shaw has only been able to secure one applicant since Aug. 22, and he is not sure that the man is fit for service. Since then he has been visiting the employment agencies every day. At the other two recruiting offices the daily report is that "there is nothing doing."

Last week the marine station did fairly well and shipped out four recruits to Mare Island, Cal. The army shipped out two or three men last week, but this week hardly a man has applied at either of these offices.

"This is ordinarily a dull season," said Chief Yeoman Shaw, "as there is a great call for men for the harvest fields in the West, and also a great demand for men right here in the city."

"But I have never seen it quite as dull in our business as it is at present. The reports that we are getting plenty of men are all fakes. It seems like an almost hopeless business these days, but the men may come in a little better next month."

UNCLE SAM IS ROBBED

Loss of Cash by Trusted Officials of Various Departments.

Theft of $173,000 From Chicago Sub-Treasury Still a Mystery.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald).—Your Uncle Samuel has been having considerable tough luck recently growing out of the loss of cash which has been taken by trusted officials of the various departments of the government, the disappearance of fast train of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad between Denver, Colo., and Oxford, Neb., and said to contain $250,000, being the latest peculation which is sorely worrying postal officials.

Only a short while ago one of the officials in the Boston sub-treasury relieved Uncle Sam of $3,000. The theft of $173,000 in $1,000 bills which occurred about five months ago in the Chicago sub-treasury is still a profound mystery to the government's detective forces, the chief sleuth of the treasury department, Col. John Wilkie, having been continually engaged in ferreting out the criminal who took the money ever since the crime was committed. And the theft of $62,000 from the St. Louis sub-treasury, which occurred nearly a year ago, is as much of a mystery now, so far as the public has any knowledge, as it was when the theft was first discovered.

According to a statement made by an official of the treasury department, the main use to which the public has suffered greatly by reason of the peculations on the part of "trusted" employees. In nine cases have the sub-treasuries been robbed of $10,000 or more, in six of which the thieves have been apprehended and punished and considerable sums of the money recovered. Probably the greatest theft of government money was that of Whitcomb, who stole $1,000,000 from the New Orleans sub-treasury in 1897 when nearly $1,000,000 was taken. When the thieves were apprehended by the government, the money was recovered, the government being still out $68,815.53 on that bold robbery. Another big theft that took place in this city was that of Marden and Johnson, Marden got away with $12,000 and Johnson with $25,000; treasury is out on that enterprise $49,000.

Some thirty years ago an employee of the treasury department, Capt. Howgate, got away with about $18,000, not a cent of which was ever recovered. However, a year or two ago in New York in extreme poverty. The Winslow theft, which was accomplished in 1871, was another big one. Winslow was an "honest" employee in the treasury, and everybody was surprised to discover that he had stolen $5,000 intended for shipment to a Western bank. Winslow got scared out of his wits when some one said to him in fun, "They've caught you at last, Winslow."

That night some one rang the door bell of the home of the secretary of the treasury, A. U. Wyman, formerly a resident of Omaha, now in Duluth, and he opened the door to find the old gentleman tumbled out of his bed in

LITTLE BABY CURED OF ECZEMA

Parents Applied to Hospitals and Doctors but Could Get No Relief—Grew Worse Under Doctor's Prescription—Friends Recommended Cuticura—Result

A SPEEDY AND PERMANENT CURE

"We express to you herewith our best thanks for the cure of our baby from eczema. The eczema appeared when the child was three months old. We applied to several doctors and hospitals, each of which gave us something worse to do every time, but nothing brought relief. A physician recommended a salve which we threw into the fire after two days' use as the eczema became worse so that the baby scratched his face. At last, one of our friends recommended to us Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. A few days afterwards improvement could be noted. Since then we have used nothing but Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and now the baby is six months old and is quite cured. All that we used was one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes Cuticura Ointment, costing in all $1.25. Even the poorest man can pay that instead of throwing it into the doctor's lap. I myself only make twelve dollars a week as a teamster, but I recommend the Cuticura Remedies strongly to all mothers whose children suffer from such diseases. They are cheap, harmless and good. C. a hurry. When he opened the door he found a bundle containing the stolen money, with a few hundred dollars missing.

One of the most ingenious and painstaking thieves was that of an old and trusted messenger of the treasury department, who had access to the treasury vaults where gold and silver coin is stored. He got away with about $800 silver dollars, practically only one to four at a time. Silver dollars are stored away in the treasury vaults in canvas sacks, each sack containing 1,000 silver dollars. The method adopted by Jackson was this: He purchased a Troy weight scale and weighed a standard silver dollar, and ascertaining its precise weight proceeded to get a quantity of lead in sheets and make disks of the lead of the exact size and weight of a silver dollar.

With these lead disks in his possession from day to day he would, as opportunity presented itself, during his hours of duty about the vaults of the treasury, carefully open a sack containing silver dollars, extract two or three, replacing them with the lead disks, and then return the sack to the vault.

When a United States treasurer goes out to office an accounting of the cash under his control must be made at a balance struck before the United States treasury. This petty thievery went on for some years and was only discovered by the shrewdest accident.

The weighing process or counting is conducted by a committee of trusted clerks, appointed by the secretary of the treasury. Upon the occasion of the discovery of the thievery of Messenger Jackson, the weighing of the bags of silver dollars had been about half completed when a sack, mildewed and old, broke in the handling and its contents rolled all about the floor of the vault.

Of course those having charge of the count directed that the sacks opened to find that four pieces of lead to make the even thousand.

There was considerable consternation in the treasury's office. How the lead disks had been substituted for the standard silver coin, which was a puzzle and might have forever remained a secret had not the negro messenger, who turned the trick, lost his nerve and confessed.

As a result the millions of silver dollars were all recounted by hand, piece by piece, and resacked, the operation occupying a force of twenty-five expert counters nearly a year, and by this means it was ascertained that Jackson had stolen some $800 silver dollars substituting lead disks for the silver dollars abstracted.

Another theft whereby Uncle Sam lost a considerable sum of money might in very truth be called a gold brick swindle. The chief assayer in the Philadelphia mint turned this trick some years ago. It appears that gold intended for minage is moulded into shape about the size of the common red brick of commerce and each is worth about $10.00. These gold bricks are stored in United States mints by the thousands, awaiting such time as the government desires to coin the metal.

The Philadelphia mint official conceived a shrewd plan. At intervals he would extract one of these real gold bricks and having erected a retort at his home in one of the suburbs of the Quaker City, proceeded to work the golden metal into small ingots which he had no trouble in selling to goldsmiths. In this manner he got away with nearly $50,000 worth of Uncle Sam's gold before his thievery was discovered. The discovery was made through the process of the usual annual count of stock made in every United States mint.

WANTED HER WEDDING CAKE

Steamer Sails While Bridegroom Hunts for Missing Dainty.

Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 6.—When the steamship Ryndham of the Holland-American line left the pier in Hoboken yesterday a party of five was left behind because one of the women in the party refused to leave without a small box of wedding cake which she had forgotten.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Van Cleave from Duluth, who had just been married and intended to tour Holland and Belgium for a honeymoon trip.

The newly wed couple were accompanied by an elderly married couple and a child. They had, on reaching Hoboken yesterday morning, stopped at Hotel Amsterdam and hurried to the pier just before the steamship sailed.

Just as she was about to ascend the gangplank, the young bride gave a slight scream and the next instant ran back to the pier.

"No," she said, "I won't stir a foot without it. That's all there is to it."

A knot of persons gathered around, wondering what the cause of the young woman's anxiety could be. They learned that she had left a small box containing some wedding cake at her hotel.

The husband pleaded with the girl, but she was obstinate. Finally the husband volunteered to run to the hotel. He got the wedding cake, but when he returned to the pier the steamship was forging out into the stream.

"That's a costly piece of wedding cake," the husband said ruefully, as he handed it to his wife.

"I don't care; I would have been unhappy without it, and besides, I want it for Aunt Adele."

Now the party will wait a week for another ship.

King Edward Congratulates Him for Winning Yacht Race Cup.

Cowes, Sept. 6.—Everyone here has been talking about King Edward's happy little innovation at the royal yacht squadron annual dinner. The story is as follows: The dinner was nearing its conclusion. Conversation was brisk.

The king was talking of the regatta. Suddenly his modesty snapped the thread of his remarks and, rising, exclaimed:

"I rise now to propose the health of his imperial majesty, the German emperor, and also to congratulate him because he has won my cup. I ask you to rise and give his majesty three cheers."

The king led off, cheering in the heartiest fashion. Afterward the incident was discussed over a hundred toasts. Queen Alexandra obtained snapshots of all the most interesting scenes.

EVELETH WALKS MIDDLE OF ROAD

People Passing Along Grant Street Find It Torn Up.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The greater share of the walking that is done in the main business street of Eveleth—Grant street—is in the middle of the road. The cause for this unusual state of affairs is the sidewalk repairing that the city is undergoing at present at the hands of its property holders. The work has gone forth from the city council that new pavements must go in and the business men have as a result, for the past two weeks, been filing the sidewalk in front of their respective businesses with ashes, in order that the general sidewalk may come flush with the new curbing.

Many water pipes have as a result had to be moved in from what now is the gutter. The telephone poles that have been lashed over the corners have been compelled to retreat from three to four feet in each instance. Hollows exist in front of many stores, where workmen are fixing the plumbing. Below one place the proprietor has decided that he must have a drain put in as he says he is bothered in the summer and spring by the chirp of the crickets who are attracted to his place by the damp, marshy clay underneath the store.

It is a common sight to see women walking in the road rather than on the sidewalk. The clatters and rucks that are being used as filling is being hauled from the mines. In unloading many accidents have been averted only by a hair's breadth, as the passer-by resolved no warning that a stone is to be hurled from the wagon into the gully, where a sidewalk is soon to be placed.

ration is assured of better results than it would receive from a contractor. An additional reason for the company's decision to build the dirt cars here is the desire of the operating force to keep intact its mechanical staff at the Payal. So much reliance is felt in it, that plans are under way to build the large dippers that are used in the steam shovels in the Payal shops.

HIS STORY QUESTIONED.

Doubt Expressed by Officers as to Whether Higbee Was Shot At.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officers who have been investigating the case are disposed to question the stories told by Car Tracer, E. Higbee of having been shot at two or three different times while returning to his room from work late at night. One night when he claims he was shot at and exhibited a flesh wound in his arm, it is said that investigation showed he had been shot from the front instead of from behind, as he claimed, and that the bullet, a small one, fitted into the small pistol he carried, in which there were no expended shells. Unless Higbee brings more proof as to his being shot at, it is feared he will not receive much encouragement from officers in the way of hunting down his alleged assailants.

BUILDING CLAM HOIST.

Work on Important Feature of ROR Docks Has Commenced.

Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The construction of the additional clam hoist at the ore docks has commenced under the supervision of Mr. Andre of the United States Steel corporation. The structural steel is all on the ground, and a force of men sufficient to complete the work in thirty days is engaged in building operations. The new hoist will be the third in order on the dock plant, and located at the end of the shore docks. When the new hoist is completed, the unloading capacity of the docks will be increased 4,000 tons in ten hours.

EVELETH WITNESSES.

Two Men Who Will Be Sent Here for the Trial of Ginterella.

Eveleth, Minn., Sept. 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the case of the state against Angelo Ginterella is called Sept. 9 in the district court in Duluth, two witnesses will appear from Eveleth. The charge against Ginterella is murder. The deed was committed July 4, 1906, in Eveleth. Those who were present at the time the crime was committed, include John Andrews and the town's popular "Marty." They have already received summonses to be in Duluth, Sept. 9.

John Andrews was planning to leave town and go to West for the threshing season, but the need of his presence in Duluth makes it impossible the carrying out of his plans for the fall.

FIVE LIQUOR CASES PENDING

Will be Disposed of in Municipal Court Sept. 17.

The semi-monthly term of municipal court will not be a very long one, Judge Windom having disposed of what few cases there were requiring a jury, and next week he will take up the remaining actions. Many of the civil cases have been settled out of court.

There are five liquor cases to be taken up by the court, against Thomas Doyle, William Swartz, P. C. Schmidt, Joseph Ogden and John J. Cavley. These cases are for the violation of the liquor laws in selling liquor without a license or against the Sunday closing laws.

In the action in which P. C. Schmidt is a defendant, it is stated that he is the agent for a brewery company and the license is taken out in his name. The cases will be taken up Sept. 17 and disposed of as rapidly as possible.

WESTERN COAL TRADE.

Eastern Coals Are Extremely Scarce on the Chicago Market.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The Black Diamond, official organ of the coal trade, says: Almost all Eastern coals are extremely scarce on the Chicago market for the moment. The few exceptions are made up of low grade coals sent in on consignment or higher grade coals delivered here through a mistake. The most acute shortage is in standard splints and the high grade smokeless coals, the latter bringing a premium. While the demand for these domestic coals has been increasing in Chicago the coal demand for steam coals and lump from Western mines has also been increasing. This latter situation has produced weakness in the trade for screenings, and it might be said that the screenings market is "all shot to pieces." This condition is natural at this time of the year and it can hardly be said that the situation now is any more serious than it has been in former years. By the same token it can hardly be said that the screening market shows the improvement this fall which was expected. In all quarters the output is being increased, being influenced to a certain extent by the shortage of labor. This condition appears to be general, but it has not, for the time, caused any serious embarrassment. The coal supply, comparatively, is satisfactory.

The attractive trade is just fair. The dealers who bought early have a good deal of the coal on hand, as the consumers have not started to cover their needs. The buying is, therefore, only moderate.

LITTLE GIRL

Will be Adopted by Ohio Man and Will Inherit His Fortune.

New York, Sept. 6.—Mary, Elmhurst, 11 years old, is to become an heiress because her mother died from her father. The child was given, to her mother when the parents appeared before Magistrate O'Keefe in the children's court in Brooklyn.

"I believe that a child needs the constant care of a parent," said the court. "As her father is engaged in traveling, I think the interests of justice will be best served by awarding the custody of the girl to her mother. Elmhurst traced his wife from Toledo to No. 195 Adelphi street, Brooklyn. He took possession of the child, and was then sent to the state prison. It is stated that Robert Palmer, a mutual friend in Toledo, adopt little Mary."

THE RETORT COURTEOUS. Paul Morton, the president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, was talking on La Saviole about the London cabby.

Aansom or a four-wheeler is supposed to be cheap in London, Mr. Morton said, "but let the average American tourist go driving about in one of them day after day, and at the week's end the size of his expenditure will shock him."

"Of course, it is impossible to ride in a London cab and pay only the legal fare of a shilling for two miles. Try cab riding without liberal tipping, and the cabman will assault you with the most brilliant and witty reasons."

"I know a lawyer who, through ignorance, rode from the British mission to the Ritz hotel in Piccadilly, and only gave his driver the shilling required by law."

"The driver looked at this shilling and hit his lip. In the next moment, in a most courteous manner, he motioned to the lawyer to get in again."

"Go on," he said. "Do stop in again, sir. I could not draw you a yard or two further for this fare."

LOVELY DOUGHERTY ISLAND. Pearson's Weekly: Which is the loneliest, most desolate and most inaccessible island on the face of the globe? Many people would doubtless plump for one of the Croziers, which were recently brought into notice owing to the wreck thereon of the Norwegian exploring ship Thetis.

But Hog Island, the westernmost of the group, and the one whereon the wrecked man spent most of his time, is by no means an undesirable place of residence, abounding as it does in hares and rabbits, penguins, albatrosses and sea elephants.

Heard Island, in the same seas, is far more isolated, as well as more barren; but it possesses, as does Hog, a shelter hut for castaways, and it is visited by whalers occasionally. So, too, is South Georgia, but it has no shelter hut, and as it is right out of the track of shipping, may one unlucky enough to be cast away thereon would stand a very poor chance of ever getting off alive.

But in the same seas, is visited even more rarely, and on the last occasion when a ship touched there five years ago.

SUCCESSOR NAMED FOR ARCHDEACON APPLEBY

H. M. Parshlah of St. Cloud, Minn., will succeed Archdeacon Appleby as head of the mission work of the Episcopal church in Northern Minnesota. The incident in St. Paul's Episcopal church last Sunday morning, when Archdeacon Appleby charged the bishop with driving him from his position in the church, caused no little sensation among the members of the Episcopal faith in Duluth. The archdeacon spoke for more than half an hour, and related the history of the controversy between himself and Bishop Morrison, claiming that the bishop had driven him from his position in the church, and claiming that he stood prepared to substantiate the charges. Bishop Morrison is out of the city at the present time, as is also Rev. A. W. Ryan, Mr. Ryan's assistant, Rev. R. S. Read, was in charge of the services at the church at the time.

TWENTY-FIFTH YEAR.

SPECIAL MAIL EDITION FOR: SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 8, 1907.

(ON TRAINS, FIVE CENTS.) TWO CENTS.

WELLMAN MAY ABANDON TRIP TO POLE THIS YEAR ON ACCOUNT OF WINDS

Wants to Reach His Goal and Not Commit Suicide.

Wind Has Been Blowing
From North for Some Time.

Balloon Will be Deflated
Sept. 10 if There is No Change.

New York, Sept. 7.—A special to the New York Herald from Paris says: In the Echo de Paris this morning, M. Robert Chauvelot reports his last interview with Walter Wellman. He says the question whether or not the account will start for the pole will soon be answered. When he left Mr. Wellman, the wind was blowing strong from the north. The American explorer stated that unless there was a south wind by Sept. 10, his attempt would be abandoned for this year. Then the polar night commences.

"We cannot leave," added Mr. Wellman, "for a north wind would drive us south of the archipelago and an east wind up to Greenland. I want to reach the pole and not commit suicide." If, therefore, Mr. Wellman does not find a wind favorable before Sept. 10, he will deflate his balloon and bring it to Paris to wait until August of next year to make his start.

SITUATION UNFORESEEN

Germany to Rely Largely on France's Loyalty in Morocco.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—Germany's reply to France's circular note to the signatories of the Algeiras convention will not be drawn up before Monday next. It is understood in the most influential quarters that Germany will not give a negative reply to the suggestion that the international Moroccan police be temporarily continued from purely French and Spanish elements. Some reservation, however, will certainly be made on the subject. It is fully understood here that the present situation at Casablanca and Mazagan was not foreseen at the time the Algeiras convention was drawn up and requires to be specially dealt with, but Germany will consent for the moment to rely on French loyalty to the engagements entered into. No limitation, therefore, is likely to be placed on the French military movements so long as they are considered to be necessary for the security of Europeans and of the Moroccan ports.

BACK FROM LONG VOYAGE.

Whaler Returns After Twenty-Seven Months With 3,300 Barrels of Oil.

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 7.—Capt. Huggerty and his whaling brig, the Sullivan, are just back from a twenty-seven months' voyage, with a total catch of 3,300 barrels of sperm oil. The Sullivan made a record of 250 barrels of oil in five days. So fast did the whales come that there was no time to boil and all the crew could do was to cut the blubber and stow it until the luck turned. Capt. Huggerty says he saw the biggest pod of sperm whales ever seen in his life—fifty-barrel whales, as far as the eye could see.

MOORS ASK FOR PEACE

Want Hostilities Suspend for Purpose of Negotiations.

Rival Sultans May Yet Come Together in Conflict.

Paris, Sept. 7.—A special dispatch from Casablanca, received here this afternoon, announced that the various Moorish tribes around that place had asked Gen. Druce, the French commander, to suspend hostilities for the purpose of negotiating peace. The general, the dispatch says, agreed to remain inactive until tomorrow, when he will march on Taidret.

The correspondent who sent the dispatch says it is suspected that the truce, in negotiating with the French commander, are only seeking to gain time.

Transfer, Sept. 7.—Events in Morocco are marching on with great rapidity. Yesterday both the sultans, Abdul Aziz and Mulai Hafid, were reported to be leaving the rival capitals, Fez and Morocco City, at the head of armies which had been levied in hot haste, and which may decide within a fortnight the destiny of Morocco's monarchy. The immediate objective of these forces is the ancient city of Rabat, on the Atlantic seaboard, the center of western Islam's national life probably would have an important part to play in the decisive battle upon the struggle for supremacy.

SAW AN OLD MAN ROBBED

Minneapolis Woman Witnessed Hotel Proprietor
Hold Up Man.

Informed the Police and Alleged Robber is Arrested.

Minneapolis, Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A woman, after peering through a window in her apartment into an adjoining building, told the Minneapolis police last night that she saw an aged man robbed, and on the strength of her story, Walter Jackson, a Cuban, proprietor of a hotel at 114 Second street south, was arrested. His alleged victim is Martin Johnson of Rice Lake, Wis. The woman is Lena Olson. Johnson was walking along the street looking for a place to spend the night. He met Jackson, and the latter told him he conducted a hotel, and escorted him to a room on the second floor of 114 Second street.

Lena Olson says she watched through her window and saw Jackson stand the old man up against the wall and empty his pockets. The old man was too feeble to resist. Miss Olson lost no time in notifying the police. Jackson denies that he is guilty.

GOVERNMENT APPREHENSIVE

As to Loyalty of Irish Constabulary Since Belfast Agitation.

Dublin, Sept. 7.—That the government is apprehensive with regard to the coming winter in Ireland, and is doubtful regarding the loyalty of the constabulary, since the Belfast agitation is revealed in the present strenuous efforts to recruit the force. The number of the constabulary has been steadily decreasing for the past four years.

The authorities have set aside a part of the Dublin military barracks as additional quarters for the men, and to the constables and officers throughout the country there has been sent a circular, instructing them to make attempts to secure suitable candidates.

EVANSTON STARTLED BY TRAGEDY IN THE HOME OF A RICH, RETIRED BROKER

MAC LEAN COMPLAINS

That Bandit Raisuli is Not Treating Him Well.

Sleeps on the Floor With Only Carpet for Covering.

Tangier, Sept. 7.—Some of the details contained in the recent letters received here from Capt. Sir Harry MacLean, who was captured early in July by the bandit Raisuli, and has since been held a prisoner, have been divulged, and it is seen that Raisuli has not been treating his captive well. The captives complain that he is suffering from chills, as a result of sleeping on the floor with only a carpet for a covering. Raisuli refused to supply him with a mattress, but the captives are sending me milk as I am afraid to eat anything.

Sir Harry says he is in a tumble-down room, the roof of which on one side is completely lacking. He is guarded by four of Raisuli's men, and the five have only one small kettle for water. It is consequently impossible for the Englishman to wash.

Decker is the son of Frank Decker of rural delivery route, No. 2.

Mrs. Fred M. Fish Found Murdered in Her Bed.

Husband Lying on the Floor With His Throat Cut.

Thought to be a Case of Murder and Suicide.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Fred M. Fish, the wife of a wealthy retired broker, was found murdered in her home at 423 Davis street, Evanston, Ill., early today.

Her husband, with his throat cut, was found unconscious on the floor of the bedroom, in which the body of Mrs. Fish was lying. It is the opinion of the police that Fish murdered his wife and then attempted to commit suicide. He was hurried to a hospital, but has not yet recovered consciousness, and it is doubtful if he recovers sufficiently to make a statement.

The cause of the tragedy is unknown. Mr. and Mrs. Fish were heard by their neighbors in a violent altercation late last night, and it is believed that Fish arose early today, and after discharging a shotgun into his wife's head, hacked her in a horrible fashion with a butcher's cleaver. A servant girl, who was in the house, declared that she heard the report of a shotgun early this morning, and the cleaver with which Mrs. Fish was killed was found lying beside the bed.

Fish had been for twenty years associated with a prominent commission house which recently retired from business. He was in poor health, and for some time had suffered periodical attacks of despondency.

BIG BOATS WILL RACE

Giant Atlantic Liner, Lusitania, Starts on Maiden Trip.

Lucania Will Leave Liverpool at About Same Time.

Liverpool, Sept. 7.—The people of this city and its vicinity today concentrated their attention on what was considered to be an epoch-making event—the departure of the giant Cunard line steamer Lusitania, the largest of the Atlantic liners, on its maiden voyage to New York. Additional interest was given to the event in that the Lucania leaves port at 4:30 this afternoon about two and a half hours earlier than the Lusitania, making possible a trial of speed across the Atlantic between the swiftest ocean steamer with reciprocating engines flying the British flag and the largest turbine steamer. Both vessels will call at Queensway tomorrow morning, but the Lusitania will not enter until the Lucania has cleared, so the older vessel will have a start of at least three hours over the boat which the Cunard company built with the view not only of beating the fastest time of its own ocean greyhounds, but of regaining for Great Britain the blue ribbon of the Atlantic, which was lost to Germany in the decade ago. Of course the officials of the Cunard line say that no race is contemplated, but the engineers and crews of the vessels have been busy for a week past getting everything in readiness with the expectation that the engines will be called upon to do their best on this occasion.

All the accommodations on both vessels have been taken. For the Lusitania 370 first class and 360 second class passengers have been booked and for the Lusitania 450 first class and 455 second class. The lists include many notable people. Among the passengers on the Lusitania will be Robert Balfour, M. P., C. E. Barber, C. G. Dolan, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hay, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goulet, Countess Dunmore, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Lady Victoria Murray and S. C. Perkins. The Lucania takes the team of the Marylebone Cricket club, which will play a series of games in America, and Bishop P. J. O'Reilly.

She will be heard in other cities, however, for she is to remain in this country about a month, and after the convention closes, will lecture on various occult subjects in Boston, Philadelphia and this city.

It is thirty-two years now since Mme. H. P. Blavatsky and Col. H. S. O. Formed in this city the society which has since grown to such proportions. Now that those two are dead, Mrs. Besant is looked upon as the leading theosophist in the world. This will be Mrs. Besant's fourth trip to America.

While He Was Teacher in Prison School at Auburn.

His Career as Teacher
Came to an Abrupt Close.

Now Transferred to Den-nemora on Account of Ill Health.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Alonzo J. Whiteman of Duluth, Minn., has been removed to Dannemora prison from the state prison at Auburn. The climate did not agree with him at Auburn, and either on account of that or the prison fare, his stomach became affected, causing much sickness and discomfort.

Whiteman was sent to jail two years ago for stealing $750 from a trust company of Buffalo. He is a native of Danville, N. Y., and was a graduate of Hamilton college. After graduating he went to Duluth, where he became state senator. He amassed a fortune of nearly a million dollars, but lost it in speculation. The superintendent of the Auburn prison says Whiteman is one of the most intellectual men he has ever met. When first taken to the prison he was put to teaching in the prison school. It was ascertained soon, it is stated, that he was teaching some of the students on the way to work the banks for an easy living when they were once liberated. So Whiteman's career as a teacher came to a sudden close. Then he took up the study of stenography, in the superintendent's office, and now can follow a speaker at 100 words a minute.

GRIEVES FOR HIS DEAD SON

ful for Killing His Boy.

St. Louis, Sept. 7.—Locked up in a cell at the police station awaiting the coroner's inquest, Christian Kelley, Sr., 67 years old, grieves over the death of his son, whom he stabbed to death last night. The son, Christian Kelley, Jr., 20 years old, came home last night under the influence of liquor and was remonstrated by the father. It is claimed by the father that the son attacked him with a chair, and in the struggle the older Kelley, in self-defense, stabbed his son with a pocket knife. The son fell to the floor and died soon after. The tragedy occurred in the presence of the young man's mother and sister.

15 cents for electrolytic copper.

NEW TOWNS GET MAIL

Delivery on Bovey Branch
Will Begin on Sept. 16.

Postmasters Have Been Going After It With Wagons.

Notice has been received here of the inauguration of a mail service on the new branch of the Duluth, Missabe &
Northern from Alton to Bovey.

The postoffice department and the railroad company have come to an agreement and the new service will begin
Sept. 16.

Heretofore, the towns along the Alton-Bovey branch of the D. M. &
N., which was only recently constructed, have had no mail service at all.

There are postmasters at Meadowlands, Silica, Bovey and Coleraine and a few of the other small towns along the main line of the railroad, but various means have been employed for securing the mails.

Bovey and Coleraine secured their mail from Grand Rapids by stage, while the postmasters in the other towns have been making daily trips to Alton and transporting the mail personally to the towns.

Important Announcement!

Aug. Hagberg is the only merchant tailor in Duluth who makes your clothes for cash and saves you money. Because you have the means to purchase good clothes from a first class tailor is that any reason why you should be taxed to pay partly, at least, for some body else's good clothes? Has it ever occurred to you that that is exactly what happens when you have your suit made by a tailor who gives credit?

It is absolutely certain that whenever (in the merchant tailoring business at least) there is an extended credit there is bound to be a loss.

Who pays for this loss? The trade, of course. Because the merchant, when he marks his goods, must add a certain percentage for loss and bad accounts, just as if it was a legitimate expense and that is how you are paying for someone else's clothes when you buy goods from a firm that gives credit.

That is why a cash tailor can save you money on every order.

Our advice to the trade then is this:

Buy your fall suit from us for cash and save money.

Buy your silk trimmed overcoat from us for cash and save some money.

Buy your full dress suit for the coming season from us for cash and save some money.

Our equipment for exclusive high class tailoring is better than ever. This fall we can show you an almost endless variety in both imported and domestic woolsens, and we ought to be able to suit even the most fastidious dresser.

Furthermore, I have the pleasure to announce to my friends that Mr. Aug. C. Smith, a very prominent and able cutter and fitter from Indianapolis, Ind., and of late of Paraga, Mich., will assist us in the cutting department, so that every busy man will have prompt attention, no matter what hour of the day he may call.

Our establishment will also be kept open evenings until 9 p. m. every evening except Sunday until Christmas.

AUGUST HAGBERG,

the merchant tailor, who makes your clothes for cash only and saves you money.

218 W. Superior St. Second floor.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Milwaukee, Sept. 7.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Kenosha, Wis., says James C. Dove of Pleasant Prairie, Kenosha county, who came to Wisconsin in 1837, and who for a half century was prominent in political affairs, died today, aged 82 years. He leaves a large estate.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 7.—John H. Beatty, Jr., for years a well known commercial salesman with headquarters here took his life in the Clarendon hotel house by swallowing a large portion of a two-ounce phial of carbolic acid while in a despondent mood over ill health and being out of steady employment. He was 48, a native of Nashville, Ill., where two sisters are living, and had traveled through the western country for years for a leading shoe house.

THREE MORE VICTIMS OF WRECK ARE DEAD.

Waterloo, Sept. 7.—Three more of the injured in the wreck of the north bound Rock Island railway express train died in the Presbyterian hospital here this morning. This raises the death list from eleven as first stated to fourteen. The wreck occurred at Norris station in this state yesterday morning.

DIED FROM INJURIES. Milwaukee, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Walter Stern, who was with a party involved in an automobile accident Monday night, while returning from Elkhardt lake and who was badly injured when the machine was overturned about a week ago, died today of wounds received in the accident.

MISSIONS DISCUSSED

Swedish M. E. Conference Hears Some Stirring Sermons.

Services for the Young Men and Women of Church.

The Swedish Episcopal conference, in session at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and third street, is holding a missionary session this afternoon.

At 3 o'clock, Rev. Frank Gustafson preached a stirring missionary sermon, which was followed by discussions on the different features of missionary work. Rev. Axel Anderson also gave a talk.

The services this evening are to be for the young people. Sermons to the young men and the young women of the church are to be delivered by Rev. Alexander Strom and Rev. O. F. Lindstrom. The young people's society of the First Swedish M. E. church will attend the services in a body.

At the regular services at the First Swedish church tomorrow morning, Bishop Goodell will preach. Mrs. Goodman will sing. In the afternoon, the bishop will conduct ordination services at the church and will later officiate at the laying of the cornerstone for the new Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, in the West end.

Tomorrow evening, Rev. B. Howe of Minneapolis, and Rev. C. F. Edwards of St. Paul, will conduct the services at the First Swedish church.

Last evening, Rev. A. G. Hiltgren of Clear Lake, Minn., and Rev. G. A. Forsberg of Tread Lake, Wis., were the speakers. A ladies' trio sang several numbers.

The closing sessions of the conference will be held Monday and Tuesday. It is probable that the assignment of preachers for the coming year will be made Monday.

HANGS HIMSELF IN ASYLUM

Duluth Man Commits Suicide in Fergus Falls Hospital.

Thomas Hayden, who was committed to the insane hospital at Fergus Falls last November by Judge Middlecott, killed himself by hanging at that institution on Wednesday of this week, news to this effect having been received by The Herald today.

Hayden entered one of the bathrooms at the institution and either cut or tore a towel into strips, fastened these together and then strangled himself. An attendant had accompanied him as far as the door, but had not seen him inside.

When Hayden failed to reappear from the bathroom the attendants forced an entrance and found him just too late to save his life.

Hayden was 48 years of age and had lived in Duluth a number of years before he was sent to Fergus Falls. He had no relatives in this country, but it is said he had quite a sum of money in the bank at the time he was committed.

It is said that he was a heavy drinker and could not break away from the habit, although he made numerous attempts to do so. The constant brooding of his inability to stop the use of liquor is said to have deranged his mind, and is probably what finally brought him to the point of killing himself.

ASK HIM TO UMPIRE.

President's Son Will be Invited to Act Here.

After the ball game at Coleraine tomorrow, between the Fitwells of Duluth and the Coleraine team, which Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is going to umpire, the president's son will be invited to umpire a contest between a team composed of the striking telegraphers of Duluth and another local team.

The invitation will be presented to the Harvard man by A. R. McDowell, who is also on strike with the other commercial telegraphers at the Head of the Lakes.

It is expected that Roosevelt accepts the invitation to again become the target of the ball players' complaints. The Duluth telegraphers can't fix up a game to be held upon the return of Theodore, Jr., from Coleraine.

SUPERIOR NEWS

SOO BEHIND NEW ROADS

C. E. Wales Admits Fact Which Has Long Been Suspected.

Will Build Flour and Merchandise Dock and Elevator.

The connection between the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota and the Duluth & Thunder Bay railroads with the Soo line, long unofficially an open secret, was practically admitted this morning when C. E. Wales acknowledged that the large tracts of land which he has been buying up in Superior and Duluth, ostensibly for the two embryo roads, were really for the Soo line, which is soon to enter Superior.

In an interview Mr. Wales acknowledged that the land was for the Soo line and, now that they have all they need, he had no objection to making the fact public. He also made known some of the plans of the company for terminals.

The Soo line, according to Mr. Wales, will maintain a large yard in Superior, will construct a flour dock and a merchandise dock and will build a big elevator for its own use. The elevator will be constructed on block 500 on Switzer's tract, and the company is now fighting for the right to enter the tract.

TERMINAL INVOLVED.

Light to Keep Soo Out of Switzer Tract.

The implication of the Terminal railroad in the efforts being made by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific to block the securing of terminal facilities by the Soo line was brought out this morning on the resumption of the hearing before Railroad Commission H. H. Erickson.

President D. M. Philbin of the Terminal railroad was under examination and he was asked for an explanation of the fact that the schedule submitted by the Terminal company submitted to the commission, and the Soo line called for the same rates. Mr. Philbin explained that the other railroads were holding companies of the Terminal company, and that the rates could not be given outside companies. He first stated that the Terminal company had to have to enter over grade crossings, but it was afterwards brought out in cross-examination that it was carrying a considerable sum of money. The principal controversy now hinges on the efforts of the Soo line to secure entrance to what is known as block 500 on Switzer's tract at the head of Howard's pocket. The opposing companies contend that the Soo line has to enter over grade crossings, which would interfere with their tracks. The hearing will be resumed this afternoon.

CLEAR BROWN.

Coroner's Jury Says He Was Not to Blame.

After hearing the testimony of several of the seamen on the steamer Kensington the coroner's jury in Superior yesterday declared Arthur Brown not responsible for the death of Joseph Krantz. Krantz was the fireman on the Kensington and fell down a hatch during a scuffle. It appeared from the evidence that Brown had provoked the quarrel and that Brown had struck him a light blow on the head, which fell backward down through the hatch.

John Johnson was given ten days in the county jail in municipal court yesterday because he tried to pay for a fifteen-cent meal at a local restaurant with only ten cents.

This, and an officer was summoned, with the result that Johnson will have to do hard labor for a ten-day period.

Company to Make Repairs.

At a conference held yesterday between General Manager Herbert Warren of the street car company and Mayor Linley a satisfactory arrangement was made regarding the street improvements asked for by the city council at a recent meeting, and the transit company will make the improvements. At first the company objected to making the improvements for various reasons, but finally Manager Warren agreed to do the work. There are numerous streets about the city which will be fixed up by the street car company.

Exhibition of Paintings.

The exhibition of paintings by David Erickson is now open to the public. It is a rare treat for true lovers of art, and will be freely visited by the painter's many friends and patrons. Several of his most famous moonlight scenes and portraits will be shown. This promising and virile young painter shows the influence of Whistler, under whom he studied in Paris. He has understood his master's feeling for color and the theory of it, and more to the point has been able to express his understanding of it.

WITH MARK TWAIN.

A Woman's Story of the Trip on the Minnetonka.

Long before the report was swarmed over the side of the Minnetonka at quarantine the other day to meet Mark Twain on his return from Europe Mr. Clemens's fellow passengers had found out what some of the reporters learned for the first time, and that was that Mark Twain, except on occasions when he sets out to be humorous, is ordinarily a most serious person. He is no joker in the ordinary affairs of life.

At the same time the fellow passengers learned that when Mark Twain travels he is practically about all there is to the company. He dominated the Minnetonka from the moment she sailed until she arrived, says the New York Sun.

One of Mr. Clemens's fellow travelers was a Western woman, and being a person used to observing things and setting them down she preserved a record of the voyage. Here is what she saw, heard and observed as she wrote it out:

The Minnetonka had not been gone from her dock an hour when the private yacht of the Elder Brothers of the Trinity house, the incident and almost medieval organization which controls practically all the shipping entering and leaving the ports of Great Britain, drew committee on board to say England's last farewell to Mr. Clemens. The yacht kept along with us for several minutes, the forenoon of the trip was over.

They gave three more cheers and then they were gone. The boat people then kindly, affable, an eager watcher of the ship's sports and especially fond of the children, a fondness which centered itself about Dorothy Quigg, the eleven-year-old girl about whom the newspapers have printed so much.

It is growing old gracefully," was the first comment of the passengers. For several days Twain's famous white suit did not come forth. Instead he wore a gray suit and white shirt, a thick white collar and a white necktie, and a gray cap which nearly covered his somewhat bushy gray hair and came well down to the shaggy eyebrows which are getting white now. He kept with him much of the time was on deck his meerschaum pipe, which he smoked lawfully and affectionately. His gray hair was about the only sign of his years. His step was light and quick and he was not at all out of breath. He had in his pocket a small book, which he took out and looked at from time to time. It was the general opinion of the passengers that judging from his appearance he certainly need be in no hurry to "complete arrangements for his funeral."

He was always willing to talk and the passengers drew him out. He was not at all out of breath. He had in his pocket a small book, which he took out and looked at from time to time. It was the general opinion of the passengers that judging from his appearance he certainly need be in no hurry to "complete arrangements for his funeral."

able that he never faced a more thrilling five minutes than he did on the morning of that collision when he heard the order: "All hands on deck! Man the boats!"

It occurred on the third day of the voyage, on the morning of the collision. When there loomed up out of the fog and mist a big four-masted schooner, the Sardinia, close on the Minnetonka's starboard side and bearing down at a lively rate. By the quick maneuvering of the Minnetonka the force of the impact was greatly lessened, so that the schooner did not strike a second blow, punching a hole in the side of the schooner and the Minnetonka's side a hard scarping as she dragged along.

The collision gave us quite a shaking up and the order for all hands to come on deck was obeyed instantly. The passengers appearing in pajamas, bathrobes, to hand in the first excitement. The lifeboats were swung out and completely manned for lowering and for a few minutes we had visions of bubbling about in the fog in these small boats until picked up by some passing vessel. Every one seemed self-possessed and only one or two women showed signs of hysteria.

Mr. Clemens was one of the first on deck, clad in a bathrobe, slippers and a white towel around his waist. He was in what was going on but was entirely calm and apparently not disturbed in the least. He was looking at the schooner and the order for all hands to come on deck was obeyed instantly. The passengers appearing in pajamas, bathrobes, to hand in the first excitement. The lifeboats were swung out and completely manned for lowering and for a few minutes we had visions of bubbling about in the fog in these small boats until picked up by some passing vessel. Every one seemed self-possessed and only one or two women showed signs of hysteria.

"I know we are all right," returned Mr. Clemens, "but how about the ship?" "We will find out soon enough," replied Capt. Layland, and then the Minnetonka swung about and made for the schooner. We cruised about a long time sounding the whistle, but no trace of the boat was found and we were obliged to abandon the search. She left a place of iron plate and some pieces of wood torn away from the Minnetonka, and that was all we knew of her, all hands saying that no serious harm had come to her.

Mr. Ashcroft, Mr. Clemens's traveling companion, drew up some resolutions of testimony to the captain and crew which were signed by every passenger on board, expressing "deep gratitude for and appreciation of the unflinching care" which they had exhibited.

However, give rise to the most exciting and sustained arguments on the voyage. It was the best time I ever had in my life," he said repeatedly. He dwelt especially upon the beauty of the Oxford and on the beauty surrounding it.

"The birds were not disturbed by it, but fluttered along with it and seemed to enjoy it as much as anybody. And the swarms in the river were undisturbed by the life and color and gaiety, but acted as if used to it and unconsciously took their part in and added to the beauty and joy of the picture."

Then there was the incident of the collision at sea, about which much has been said, but only in a general way. The detail of this far having escaped print. What ever Mark Twain's experiences as a Mississippi pilot may have been, it is probable that he was not a very good one.

"I am sorry to disappoint you," he said, "but as a matter of fact Mr. Clemens doesn't wear pajamas at all, but a night shirt, a sort of double-breasted night shirt, a cotton one with a flannel over it, and it was this double garment that he had on at the time of the collision, and over it he slipped his bathrobe. His cap and slippers completed his costume. His bathrobe is a yellowish affair, but it isn't pink and it isn't blue and it isn't pajamas."

Soon after breakfast that morning Mr. Clemens appeared in the familiar gray suit and expressed concern about the missing schooner, and frequently expressed the wish that we might learn of her fate.

After that a discussion arose on the ship as to whether the humorous things said by Mark Twain derived their humor from the manner in which he said them, or from the life of the usual ship's concert and he told a story. He said: "I remember once that I started on an extended walking tour in the Black forest.

My companion was a clergyman of reckless disposition who was not over careful what kind of company he kept. Our first step was to buy peddlers, for we wanted to tell our literary friends at home just how far we walked. Our next step was to secure railroad tickets. We had a good excuse, because, you see, we had a lot of ground to cover that day, and it was a matter of judgment that decided us to do that part of our walking tour by rail. It was strange, but some way we never find it possible to get along without railroad trains for the rest of the trip. It was the best walking tour I ever had."

Mr. Clemens wore his white serge suit and even for the first time on the ship and the passengers felt more of their curiosity satisfied. The degree of Master Clemens's goodfellowship was confirmed upon him then and there, and the passengers left the ship with regret at saying goodbye to him.

FISH ALASKA'S GOLD MINE.

Washington Star: While Alaska is primarily known for its gold production, perhaps its next largest industry is fishing. The fish commission has established a number of statistics there and is keeping a keen track of the development of the business. With the great natural resources of its waters, Alaska is a gold mine for the fishing industry. The value of the fish catch in the feeding of the whole Pacific coast, besides having a profitable export trade.

In the year 1906 there were 12,397 people engaged in the fishing industry. Of these 7,246 were employed in the canneries and 5,151 in the fishing boats and the rest were engaged directly in fishing or in transportation. The total investment in the business was $3,835,485. This represented only plants and equipment, not the cost of the fish. The cash capital which had previously been reckoned as a part of the investment.

TILLBERG DIES, STRICKEN ALONE

Disappearance of Section Foreman Settled by Finding Body.

Ely, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Tillberg, section foreman at Robinson Lake, nine miles south of here, was found dead about a mile from the Robinson Lake railroad station Friday by searching parties who had been hunting for him since Thursday morning. Tillberg had started from home at the section house to go down the track to where his men were at work. It is supposed that he was suddenly taken ill and sought a safe and cool place to lie down, and that death overtook him soon after, as his body was found in the bushes not far from the track, and about a mile from his home. Deputy Coroner Gleason was notified, and after investigation it was decided to not hold an inquest, as an autopsy revealed the fact that he had been stricken by heart failure. He leaves a wife and children. The remains were brought to Ely for interment.

tion 20, Ely. They were taken through the mine there and shown the development work in progress. While the shaft and drifts were passed through small pockets, no extensive ore body has as yet been shown. This is not surprising, as the walls have not been reached in any direction, and the drifts are very few and short. Moreover the shaft has not penetrated to the depth where extensive deposits were shown up by the drills. Mr. Cole and party were very much impressed with the showing at the mine, and think that the mine will be shown up with more extensive development work.

HIS HEART TOO LARGE

Erring Husband is Ar- raigned for Following a "Stranger Idol."

Son of Erin Anticipates Court—Sets His Own Fine.

Gilbert Jones, arrested on the charge of drunkenness, was arraigned in municipal court today and sentence was suspended for sixty days, the young man being given a warning by the court that in case certain allegations as to his conduct made by his wife were repeated and found true, he would be given a term in the county jail.

Mrs. Jones called at police headquarters yesterday and stated that her husband has become enamored of another woman and has been keeping company with her to the neglect of his family. The police have had similar complaints from the wife before and warned both the young man and the woman in the case.

They were on the lookout for the "Benchwarmers" yesterday, but she took warning, it is presumed, and went to Superior until the affair had blown over and the angry wife cooled off.

It develops that Jones has provided for his family and there is no complaint in that respect. The pair, in company with others, went to Pike Lake the other evening, and according to reports, had a highly interesting time.

The wife learned of this and called on the police for assistance in bringing her erring spouse home last evening. He was arrested, and is claimed, was still under the influence of liquor when taken into custody. He did not deny the allegations, but stated that he would reform and realized that he had made a fool of himself.

John Hakala and Charles Johnson, charged with drunkenness, were given the maximum sentence, $25 and costs, amounting to $27 or twenty-five days in jail. The two men were arrested yesterday charged with larceny, but the complaint was later changed to drunkenness.

They were accused of entering the restaurant of a blind woman, named Swenski, on Lake avenue south, and helping themselves to certain toilet articles, such as brushes, etc. They admitted they were drunk, and in view of the circumstances, the court handed them a stiff sentence.

Charles Ryan felt grieved that he should be accused of being drunk and pleaded not guilty. His case will be disposed of today.

Joe Siegel, charged with assault upon his wife, was arraigned this morning, and the case was set over until 10:30 a. m. He pleaded not guilty to the charge. His wife alleges that he has beaten, bruised and maimed her on certain occasions, and has committed being for such alleged offense committed on Aug. 22.

It is not often that the court permits a prisoner to sentence himself and set the amount of his fine. In such a case, as happened in municipal court this morning.

When Judge Cutting called the name of Charles O'Neill, a rosy-cheeked son of the Emerald Isle, arose smiling, and before the court could state the charge, he cheerfully called out, "guilty."

The court smiled. "Guilty of what?" he asked. "Guilty of being a son of a gun," he answered. "Why, drunk, yer honor, of course that's what I am, low."

As this was the charge and there was no other report in the case, the court set the fine at $1, any costs, in accordance with O'Neill's "decision," and the Irishman was satisfied.

Frederic Holland, arrested on the charge of drunkenness, second offense, was given a fine of $5 and costs, or five days.

FINDS REST WITH MONKS.

Newspaper Man Leaves Strenuous Life and Goes Into Seclusion.

Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 7.—George Fishby, one of the best known general newspaper men of the West, has entered the Trappist monastery at Mount Melary, just outside of this city, and will soon take the habit and cowl of a Trappist monk.

Mr. Fishby, who has given up the things of life to know only the peace and the perfect calm of the life of a Trappist monk, Fishby is a graduate lawyer, but never practiced his profession, and using his fund of knowledge along legal lines simply to perfect him in his newspaper work.

To forsake the newspaper life on a metropolitan daily for the absolute seclusion and quietude of a Trappist monastery is a wonderful change, but notwithstanding the strangeness of the new life the young newspaper man appears happy and has entered into the quiet retreat with apparent unconcern that his step should be considered novel in the least.

COUNTRY IS PROSPERING

"Nothing Wrong That I Can See," Says Bede.

Rivers and Harbors Committee Will Visit City
Sept. 24.

"There can't be much wrong with the country when railroad travel is as heavy as it is now," said Congressman J. Adam Bede, who is in the city today.

"I have been all over the West and the Southwest, and it is almost impossible to get a seat in a railroad coach, in many parts of the country."

"The crops are looking fine, in spite of reports to the contrary. The Texas cotton crop was a little late when I was there, but I understand it has come along since then. Down through Missouri the country never looked better."

Mr. Bede has just completed a summer lecture tour, speaking at many Chautauqua assemblies in all parts of the Middle West, and has spent the greater part of the past week at St. Paul, attending the state fair and paying one of the best known general newspaper men of the West, has entered the Trappist monastery at Mount Melary, just outside of this city, and will soon take the habit and cowl of a Trappist monk.

LA FOLLETTE, OCTOPUS CHASER

(Copyright, 1907, by E. W. Newman.)

If in the political world the expected should happen and it should become as disputable to be an octopus chaser and trust buster as it now is to be a corporation lawyer, this man will be a statesman out of a job. He is a Bryan of the Republican party and a radical of the radicals. He was a "reform" governor, and did not fall downstairs, a misfortune that frequently overtakes reformers in office. As an octopus chaser in the senate he separated from the Republican pack, and even got ahead of the Democratic pack. He is a candidate for president and will be a "also ran" in the Republican national convention of 1908. Except as to 16 to 1 and the degree of revision that should be subjected to the tariff, La Follette and Bryan are in perfect accord, and I have not one particle of doubt that each of these two eminent statesmen is the second choice of the other for the office of president of the United States.

When I first saw La Follette he was a slender man of youthful appearance, with more voice in proportion to avoirdupois than any other man I ever saw. He was then a member of the Forty-fourth congress, 29 years old, and his specialty was the tariff, a question that he treated with lungs only. Carlisle was speaker and he explained in the senate. There was an enormous surplus in the treasury that was swelled daily by the custom receipts and the collections of internal taxes. William K. Morrison was trying to curtail the revenues by reducing taxes, but La Follette had a different idea. He proposed a tariff on the Democratic camp and defeated the project. Big Iron Kelley was the titular leader of the Republicans, but Ross and McKinley were the real commanders, seconded by Burrows and Cannon. La Follette was a factor in the defeat of the Republican side, almost as fringed in his eloquence as Dave Henderson, who then had the bloody shirt in his keeping, and had never forgot the vehement and patriotic eloquence of the Hon. Henderson, a native of Scotland—when, to quote Southern traitors, he exclaimed in an ecstasy of hyperbole: "From highland pass to lowland moor, treason never found judgment in Scotland's breast." The rebel brigades yelled "wampus" in derision, and the "truly noble" supporters of the tariff, who were a "truly abridged Henderson" in those days.

As I said, Randall destroyed the Morrison bill of the Forty-seventh congress, and Pittsburgh sent out to Illinois and bought Morrison sent to the Illinois legislature for old John Baker, who became a Silver Republican ten years later and voted for Bryan, but the Fifteenth congress was also Democratic, and Carlisle its speaker. In December, 1887, President Cleveland sent a tariff message to congress that made the tariff absolutely paramount. It was followed by the Mills bill, which Randall was unable to defeat in the house. The debate on that measure was able and brilliant. La Follette was then an advocate of a tariff, but he was with incidental revenue, a policy quite as discredited as it is unconstitutional. We have it in the tariff, and the tariff is the duty law, under which the people pay the manufacturer $10 of protection for every dollar they pay into the treasury for revenue. It is this octopus that does more mischief in twenty-four hours than the railroads do in twenty-four days.

The presidential campaign of 1888 was fought on the tariff. Mr. Cleveland would have been re-elected if Mr. Watanabe had not contributed vast sums of money from his wealth and dubious earnings to the tariff octopus. Matt Quay took charge of the money and sent it over to Bryan in charge of Dave Martin. It was all over but the shouting as soon as Martin crossed the bridge. Had Grover Cleveland been re-elected in 1888 the tariff would have been reformed on a Constitutional and honest basis and the 16 to 1 frenzy would have been averted.

But Harrison was elected. The Republicans set out to do it on Republican lines—that is, they increased tariff duties to discourage importations and bestow additional graft on the tariff octopus. By this time La Follette's lungs had talked him to a seat at the council board of the ways and means committee, where the McKinley tariff of 1890—and of odious memory—was hatched. He took a prominent part in the debate and was quite an astonished man when the country got a whack at his work in November, 1890, and gave the Democrats the greatest and complete victory any party ever achieved in the United States. One of the consequences of that victory was a solid Democratic delegation in the Fifty-second congress from Wisconsin. La Follette himself fell in the ranks of monopoly of greed, and of graft, for of these is a protective tariff composed.

And now La Follette turned octopus chaser and has a certificate of pure patriotism and able statesmanship from Lincoln Steffens, Ray Standard Baker, and that set. This Mr. Baker is now down South investigating the race problem. He sees everything and observes nothing. He will go home more hopefully, if not quite so denately, ignorant of the subject than when he started. It is seems that old man Philatus Sawyer was boss of Wisconsin. He was a sawmill man, very rich and dead in politics as well as pine logs. He had taken a fancy to La Follette and aided to further the young man's political fortunes. It came about, however, that La Follette discovered that old Sawyer was not the right sort of man and there was a big row. I have forgotten whether the quarrel came before or after La Follette got to be governor. Be that as it may, the young reformer downed the old boss and became even more himself. Report has it that La Follette did some injurious things to the corporations, that he wrought mightily and smote the Philistines hip and thigh. Railroads

GOOD NEWS

Many Duluth Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Duluth are glad to learn that prompt relief is within their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading: Leander Snodice, rug manufacturer and carpet cleaner of 1701 Michigan street, Duluth, Minn., and living at the corner of Michigan street and Eighteenth avenue west, says: "Some six years ago I gave a testimonial in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills because I felt so well pleased with the prompt relief from trouble with my kidneys and back which the use of this remedy brought me. I had been annoyed with constant dull pain across the loins and through the kidneys. To stoop or attempt to lift anything was sure to bring on sharp twinges of pain. The action of the kidneys was irregular. I tried many remedies, but found little relief and no permanent benefit. The treatment with this remedy completely drove out the whole trouble, and as six years have passed without any return of the complaint I consider my cure permanent and complete. crust and butt out of all paternalism. Here we are on the brink of socialism, and by 1924 this republic will have to fight for its very existence against socialism, which can point to the paternalism of the Republican party, chiefly the tariff, as precedent for its frenzy. Mr. Bryan's "ultimate" government ownership and operation of railroads is but the legitimate fruit of the paternalism we have had for forty years. The Beveridge child-in-law bill, which Mr. Bryan indorses, is pure paternalism and a total annihilation of the rights of the citizen.

La Follette purposes to reform the tariff by the friends of protection. As James W. Gardner pertinently said, there will be no reform of the tariff until it is accomplished by the friends of the taxpayers. When the Republicans reform the tariff, Nelson W. Aldrich will boss the job in the senate, and John D. Rockefeller will superintend it in the house. They will reform it "up" as McKinley did in 1890. When rowdy negroes carry safety razors the Republicans will reform the tariff.

There is to be a long session of congress in this town beginning Dec. 2—tremendous anniversary and maybe glorious sun of Austernitz with that day rise, auspicious of the career of some great statesman, will lead us out of the wilderness, again onshore the constitution, and save the representative republic from the clutches of the wild. He is not yet visible to the naked eye.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. A great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has advanced, and now we know that Catarrh is not a local disease, but a constitutional one, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Dr. J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for a cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

How much do you lose every month when you have no tenant for that house or apartment or business premises? You are losing money. Enough, don't you think, to buy a good many lines of "For rent" advertising in The Herald.

On the Republican side of the hedge the situation is more interesting. Now, before there were so many candidates, active and receptive—Taft, Fairbanks, Hughes, Knickerbocker, Cortelyou, Cramme, Crane, Shaw, Spooner, Foraker, Scott, and La Follette. Then there is the third-term talk, and everybody knows that Roosevelt can't have a wink or a grin. Taft would be the strongest man of the whole lay-out on the day of election, but it is doubtful if he can get the nomination. The opposition to the administration will concentrate on Fairbanks or Cannon or Knox, possibly on Hughes, never on Cummings or La Follette. At this writing the Cortelyou boom has the floor, much to the gentleman's disgust, who would gladly have postponed his ascent until corresponding time next year. There is a tradition that he is a regular Napoleon of politics, and that veteran bosses stood back of him with the faces of candidates, and present a few convincing arguments briefly and to the point. | Water and light plant fund | 17,250    |

Permanent improvement fund left open until next meeting, Thursday, Sept. 12.

With but two exceptions the estimates of City Comptroller McCormick for the year 1908 were endorsed by the conference committee, at the meeting yesterday, and the tax levy will in all probability be kept down, or only slightly increased, as indicated in The Herald some days ago. The public works fund was reduced $1,000, and this amount added to the health department fund. The same amount, $1,000, was taken from the Public Works fund and added to the municipal court fund, because of the additional help employed in this department. Otherwise, the estimates of the city comptroller were adhered to with the exception of the permanent improvement fund, which was left open to discussion, and will be decided upon at the next meeting of the committee, to be held next Thursday.

The permanent improvement fund was the subject of general discussion, members of the committee, the Commercial club and heads of the different departments being present and offering opinions.

It is admitted that a slight increase in the tax levy will be necessary, in order to make some necessary repairs, especially repairs to bridges in West Duluth and along Grand avenue, and this is a standing complaint, but this would be very slight, and the matter was left open at the meeting of the committee, who is chairman of the committee.

City Comptroller McCormick was present and informed the conference committee that at the end of the year there would be $14,500 balance in the improvement fund, and with the tax levy of $400,000, his estimate, this would make a sufficient fund to make the improvements desired. He thought it would be better to have the fund in the public works fund at the end of this year, and offered a suggestion that the permanent improvement fund from the public works fund to be used for the proposed city hospital.

The hospital question was discussed and, as intimated in these columns, a hospital, to cost $100,000, and with the tax levy of $400,000, would be provided for.

Alderman Haven was present and addressed the committee upon the $37,000 bridge fund, recommended by the committee of the council, of which he is chairman. He made a strong appeal to have the fund included, but it is stated that this fund will not be included unless the tax levy is increased.

It was generally admitted that the bridges in West Duluth are in a deplorable condition, and the necessity of improving them was talked over. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that in order to obtain revenue from the new steel plant, there must be an extension of the street car lines.

TELEGRAPH COMPANY SUES OPERATOR S.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The Postal Telegraph company yesterday began suit against the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America on the grounds that the latter had refused to pay for transmission of messages.

According to officials of the telegraph company no answer was made when bills for the telegrams were presented to the union. Upon inquiry they were told that the union had refused to pay for transmission of messages, unless the telegraph company would certify that the messages had been transmitted without sending a "chaser" after every message. The company refused.

The messages in question were filed at the company's office since the strike began. The case was set for Sept. 15.

ATTACKED BY MOOSE

Eastern Party Has Exciting Adventure Near Thunder Bay.

Passengers of Steamer Bartow Were Camping When Attacked.

An interesting story was going the rounds among the marine men at the Head of the Lakes yesterday as a steamer, traced to its source was found to have originated from the new steamer Bartow of the Erie Steamship company, which was lying at the Alifouk dock taking on ore. The story concerns Capt. White of the Bartow and a party of friends making the trip up the lakes on his boat.

The Bartow is one of the new boats put into commission this year and is owned by the Erie Steamship company of Erie, Pa. On this trip the big boat carried as passengers Mrs. Thomas Shannon of Little Rock, Ark., the daughter of E. D. Carter, president of the Erie Steamship company, and a party of her personal friends. They were all enthusiastic over the pleasure of the trip up the lakes and will repeat it, they say, as often as possible. As is usually the case the Bartow carried a load of coal from the lower lakes consigned to Port Arthur and while she was lying in the harbor at that point discharging the fuel a fishing trip was arranged for the guests on board.

Through the courtesy of Capt. J. H. Whalen president of the towing company of that port, the party was taken to a good fishing spot. The Bartow left last night for Lake Erie ports.

THE MUSKEG SWAMPS OF NORTHERN MINNESOTA ARE NOT BARREN WASTES--GOOD, ROUND DOLLARS CAN BE TAKEN OUT OF THEM IN THE FORM OF CELERY--DRAINAGE IS THE SECRET--WHAT G. G. HARTLEY IS DOING PROVES THIS IN A PRACTICAL MANNER

CLEARING ON THE HARTLEY FARM.

Celery culture at a profit of from $500 to $2,000 per acre on the muskeg swamp lands around Duluth is the possibility that is held out to those who within the next few years are willing to grasp the opportunities offered to supply a constantly growing market at the Head of the Lakes. For years the big swamps of Northern Minnesota have been scorned as worthless, or, if one saw any possibilities in the muskeg, they regarded the expense of drainage an insurmountable obstacle.

Through the efforts of a Duluth citizen, one of the worst muskeg swamps in Northern Minnesota, a vast tract stretching for miles on either side of the Great Northern Railway company's branch to Cass Lake, beginning about five or six miles northwest of Floodwood, is fast being transformed into a vast productive farm, and it will not be many years before the immense bog on which the railroad spent thousands of dollars to keep its tracks above the water, will be reclaimed, and the land, owned by G. G. Hartley of this city will be considered one of the model farms of the state.

The secret of Mr. Hartley's success in drainage, his farm in the present condition is a splendid example of what proper drainage will do for the big swamp districts of Northern Minnesota.

When one considers that practically all the effort that has been put forth to bring the Island Farm up to its present stage of development dates not more than a year and a half to two years back, the result must be regarded as almost wonderful.

Drainage the Secret.

An ardent believer in the possibilities of Minnesota swamp land, if they could be drained and subjected to the right care, Mr. Hartley purchased what he considered one of the worst swamp tracts in this district, with the intention of proving his theory. By persistent effort he has succeeded in reclaiming state aid in the project of swamp drainage in Northern Minnesota, and some of the state ditches already cut, his land and the water is being carried off to the Floodwood river in one direction and to the Mississippi river in another. Lateral ditches, about a quarter of a mile apart, constructed by the owner, feed into the state ditches, the latter being of a width and with a depth of water that would float an ordinary-sized boat.

Much of the ditching work was only completed this year, but the results speak volumes for the system. Where a few years ago there was from several inches to a foot or more of water over the land, where this spring, even, the ground was a bog that would not bear up the weight of a man, four horse teams attached to a heavy bog plow are now walking up the old bog turf and loosing the sticks and roots which are pulled out and burned. Mowing machines are run without trouble over vast meadows of grass that were under water a year ago.

Celery Producers.

The greatest success, however, that has been scored by the owner of Island Farm is the establishment of the fact that the muskeg swamps of this country are the greatest celery producers of the country, Michigan not excepted. The Island Farm is raising celery this year for which the commission houses on Michigan street in Duluth are paying a premium. It is of a quality that exceeds the celery shipped to the Head of the Lakes from Michigan, or from California, during the winter season.

That the present season was a backward one for market gardening of any sort is a matter of general knowledge. Owing to the prolonged cold weather last spring, the gardeners were several weeks later than usual in setting out the greenhouse plants, which celery is a grown plant, and the result is a notable example. On the Island Farm celery was planted in late June, where, in ordinary seasons, it should have been set out in May, thus insuring two crops in the season. In spite of the drawbacks, it should have been set out in May, thus insuring two crops in the season.

Before the present celery crop was raised, Mr. Hartley went to some expense to enrich the soil with manure, much of which was shipped from the Head of the Lakes. The result is claimed that swamp land, to be productive, must be enriched, but Mr. Hartley, to the soil, had a quantity of it shipped to Duluth, just as it was taken from the bog, and in it raised excellent celery.

Next year the celery operations on higher figure. The $500 estimate is made on a market price of 25 cents per dozen bunches. The winter market price for celery has reached 90 cents per dozen in Duluth.

On the Island Farm the old method of hauling the celery is not followed. Instead, the plants are boarded as they grow, and the bleaching process is said to be far more satisfactory. There is a greater economy in the boarding process, too, in the long run, for the ground that would be required for one year's hauling celery will support three rows of boarded celery. This is no small item to be considered when the acreage is limited.

One of the pictures which The Herald herewith presents gives a general view of one piece, comprising two and one-half acres of celery field. To the right can be seen the state ditch and a stack of hay cut this year with a mowing machine. In the left side of the picture is shown the washhouse, where the celery is washed and crated for the market.

In the background men and teams are breaking up the bog ground, burning the sticks turned up by the bog plow. This land will next year be available for other celery beds or any other use that the owner desires to put it to. Celery, however, is not the only thing that grows well in the muskeg ground. Experiments, limited as yet, show that the soil is splendidly adapted to cauliflower, potatoes and other garden truck.

The northern muskeg swamps are comprised on the surface of a quantity of rotted vegetation. In the clearing process much of that is burned. The moisture underneath the surface, which when the bog plow gets in its work the real soil underneath is turned up.

Before the present celery crop was raised, Mr. Hartley went to some expense to enrich the soil with manure, much of which was shipped from the Head of the Lakes. The result is claimed that swamp land, to be productive, must be enriched, but Mr. Hartley, to the soil, had a quantity of it shipped to Duluth, just as it was taken from the bog, and in it raised excellent celery.

Next year the celery operations on the Island Farm are to be more extensive, just how much the owner has not yet determined.

During the past year about 300 acres of the vast tract he owns has been cleared, and about 200 acres have been broken. Other experiments than celery growing will be attempted on some of the new land next season.

Revenue in Clearing.

It is not to be supposed that the clearing of the land is attended by all expense and no revenue. In fact, Mr. Hartley, in the present clearing operations, which are on a large scale, for the crews at work on the place have averaged from seventy-five to eighty men all summer, is acquiring a good revenue from the poplar, tamarack, cedar and spruce that is found in profusion over some of the area. There is a market for everything that is cut, and, as the owner declares, he is getting pay for everything "down to the pin feathers." The conditions about the big swamp are identical with those in the clearing of the state, and the work of clearing can always be turned to a process of profit, to a greater or less extent.

The experiment conducted by the owner of Island Farm means a great deal to the city of Duluth, if practical use is made of the knowledge already gained.

Everybody in and around Duluth knows that there are great industrial possibilities in the big swamp. The plans afoot, which will mean a tremendous increase in Duluth's population, to the young people's meeting is to be held at 7:30 p. m. The entertainment in the church on Friday evening, Sept. 13, to begin at 8 o'clock.

At the first Norwegian Lutheran will double within the next five years. In order that a larger population can exist here there must be more ample provision made to feed the people with food products raised nearer home.

Importing Food Supply.

In spite of the movement that has been made in recent years for the development of the agricultural and dairy possibilities of the country around the Head of the Lakes, it cannot be disputed but that the people of Duluth and Superior and on the ranges are being fed almost entirely on food products that are shipped in here from considerable distance by rail.

No change is expected in the woolen situation, buyers operating less far into the future than would be the case if funds were readily obtainable. No change is expected in the woolen situation, buyers operating less far into the future than would be the case if funds were readily obtainable.

Need Car Line.

The district mentioned, if cut up into farms of from one to three acres, would support, on a conservative estimate, 1,000 families. The land could be purchased by a company, perhaps, very cheaply at the present time. The swamps could, by systematic effort, be properly drained and then resold in small tracts of from one to three--not over five acres, at $50 per acre. All this is possible if there could be an electric car line running from Woodland through to the Jean DuLuth farm. Such a line would provide transportation facilities for working men, who could buy an acre or two of land, on which their families, with little effort, could do market gardening for profit, while the head of the family could get to and from his work in the city. The electric car line would not only provide means of transportation for the workmen, but would open a way to get the garden produce into mission houses of the city will not buy the produce of the market gardeners in this vicinity is not true. It is true that they will not buy produce that is of an inferior quality, or which is badly put up, for the local commission men cannot afford to keep them under wages to cut out and put in condition for their trade garden truck that is dumped on them from the commission houses in this city, and at the going prices, it would be no object for the commission men to refuse to buy garden truck raised close to the city, when they are now buying vegetables at a distance, and on which the freight and refrigeration charges eat a considerable hole in the profits.

It is claimed by men who are now shipping produce into Duluth from nearby points that the railroad transportation charges are not exorbitant. There may have been a time when the charges were much too high, but that was before the country here began to raise garden truck. In any quantity to be shipped to the market. As fast as localities in Northern Minnesota have been developed into producers for the city markets, the railway companies, it is claimed, have shown a disposition to meet the shipping problem and establish new rates that will admit of transportation under a fair basis to all concerned. The railroads are as much interested in the development of Northern Minnesota as the private interests, for as the country is developed into farms or gardens, more business is provided for the railway lines.

money, was acquitted by the judge last yesterday. She was accused of having received from Chester B. Runyan, the defendant, teller of the Windsor Trust company, $5,000 of the $22,000 he stole from the bank. One of the jurors said the jury agreed that the testimony of Runyan, who was the principal witness against Mrs. Carter, be ignored on the ground that he was a self-confessed thief. Mrs. Carter admitted getting $5,000 from Runyan, but said that as soon as she knew it had been stolen, she returned it to him and then betrayed him to the police. She denied that she demanded or received an additional $10,000 as the verdict Mrs. Carter was released. She said she had not decided whether she would demand the reward for Runyan's capture, which amounted to $7,400.

Staple lines of footwear have been more active. New England producers receiving fair supplementary orders, but the volume is somewhat behind the last previous season. Manufacturers are confident that buying will soon be liberalized, however, the urgency of mail orders for immediate shipment demands low supplies. Leather is still better demand and prices of sole are firmly held. A single pair of 150,000 pairs of hosiery sold to one Eastern shoe manufacturer was an evidence of confidence in the stability of prices that did much to encourage other buyers to operate. And numerous smaller transactions followed. Low supplies of heavyweight sole leather gave especial strength to that section of the market.

Increased activity is reported in the hide market, prices having declined to a position at which tanners are willing to operate freely.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Business Exceeds Activity of Last Year in Many Sections.

New York, Sept. 7.--It. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Aside from conservatism in preparing for remote requirements, directly due to stringency in the money market, the volume of business is satisfactory. Trade exceeds even the activity of last year in many sections, and as the crops are secured there is a demand for goods at leading jobbing markets that makes the outlook bright for fall. Wholesale dry goods sales are nearly completed in the South, and merchants are now hurrying shipments forward to meet the autumn demand. The week's results are encouraging, but the outlook is somewhat irregular because of the holiday, and interruption to telegraphic communication, but complete reports for August indicate that the midsummer month compared with last year shows an average of about $3 per ton higher than a year ago, which in turn was about 10% above 1904. Among the especially noteworthy contracts of the week were large orders for steel rails and steel of structural

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

ARE BUYING THEIR COAL

Some Crookstonites Are Heeding Warning of Coal Concern.

Are Filling Their Bins With Fuel During Warm Weather.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. A. Buckingham, manager of one of the local coal companies, has received a letter from the Northwestern Fuel company at Duluth stating that there is liable to be a coal shortage before the middle of the coming winter and recommending that the local dealers secure a large supply at the earliest possible date. All summer the railroad companies of the state have been laying by a large supply of coal shipped directly from the docks. This action on the part of the railroads will enable them to supply a larger number of cars to be used in distributing coal through the Northwest country. The local fuel dealers have no large sheds in which to store their coal so are unable to buy a very great supply at one time. It is estimated that this fact the amount of coal that has been shipped in here this summer has been far in excess of previous years. The local consumers in order to avoid any inconvenience from coal shortage this coming winter have had their coal bins well filled.

At the present time and for several months past it has been an impossibility to purchase coal at a low price. The dealers extend little hope for an improvement in this direction so that many of the people will be obliged to burn coal exclusively this winter. For fuel, the people have been denuding all summer the local wood secured from the saw mill.

LOOKS LIKE IRON NEAR MARINETTE

Reported Discovery of Rich Vein at Chalk Hills.

Marinette, Wis., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great interest is manifested here in a reported discovery of a rich vein of iron ore at Chalk hills, four miles from here. Eugene Zimmermann of Cincinnati, the father of the success of the Chester, and a Menominee capitalist, are behind the exploratory work. It is said that a vein of ore has been discovered at a depth of only fifty feet. The diamond drill will be sunk several hundred feet deeper, and it is thought that a rich mine will be opened.

Parties interested, when seen yesterday, admitted that some very gratifying discoveries had been made, but refused to talk for publication.

TO END IN DIVORCE.

Marriage of Sir George Northedge of Marinette County Not Happy.

Marinette, Wis., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the love match of Sir George Northedge of England and the daughter of a Scottish general will end in a divorce court in Marinette county is now probable, as Sir George yesterday filed papers asking for separation and alleging cruelty. He declares he has been driven from home by his wife with a cutting knife. Mrs. Northedge has retained lawyers to fight the divorce. The marriage, which has resulted so unhappily was made in Scotland many years ago. The wife was once lady in waiting to Queen Victoria, and she still has the rich robes which she wore on ceremonial occasions. She fell in love with the younger son of an English lord and married him in spite of the opposition of her parents. The couple, after they came to this country, and settled for a time in Kentucky, later coming to a small farm at Marinette. The wife, however, was not content with the quiet life and she was known of them, although Northedge was elected to the justice of the peace at the last election.

The facts regarding the couple came out during the recent illness of his wife, although Northedge always signed his name "Baronet." He served in the Civil war in this country and lost an eye. He is nearly 60 years old.

UPPER MICHIGAN

THOUSAND DEER ON GRAND ISLAND

Also Moose on Cleveland-Cliffs Big Game Preserve.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is estimated that there are now no less than 1,000 deer on Grand island, the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company's big game preserve in Lake Superior, off Marquette. The island, containing about 14,000 acres, is boot-shaped and possesses many bays. It is a natural breeding ground for deer, moose and other forest animals, as well as for grouse and other birds, while the bays and inland lakes are natural waters for many kinds of fish. There are at least eight full grown moose, and several calves of these animals have been seen this summer. The elk are increasing rapidly. There are some bob, but these are rarely seen.

A twenty-four-strand wire fence encloses the northern portion of the island and prevents the animals escaping to the mainland. However, deer are occasionally seen swimming to and from the island, and it is quite probable that more come in than go out, as in the game preserve hunters do not worry them. There were hundreds of native deer on the island when the company was first organized, and many of these are outside the fenced portion.

Court Temporarily Checks Foster County From Selling Securities.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge C. A. Pollock, acting for Judge Burke of the Fifth judicial district, has issued a temporary injunction restraining the officials of Foster county from issuing bonds for the purpose of raising money for the contemplated erection of a courthouse for Foster county, at Carrington. The order is more returnable before Judge Pollock at Fargo, Oct. 3.

A short time ago the people of Foster county voted on a bond issue to be used for the erection of a new courthouse and jail building. The majority for the bonds was very slight, and it is alleged that irregularities exist in the conduct of the election which would tend to annul the issuance, and in addition it is claimed that the present courthouse building is in every way ample for the conduct of the county's business for several years to come.

Minot, N. D., Sept. 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Engineer Henderson, who was on Engine No. 1,623, several days ago when his machine collided with another engine in the yards at Devils Lake, causing an expensive wreck, has reported to the railroad. On the contrary he is at his home nursing the wound he received, consisting of a broken leg and a cracked rib. He says that the failure of the air brake on his engine to work was responsible for the collision.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

TREASURER HAS PLAN FOR Emergency Bank Note Currency for National Institutions.

Pittsburg, Sept. 7.—Before the Pennsylvania Bankers' association here yesterday, Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, submitted a plan for an emergency bank currency.

He described it as an "amendment to the national bank act permitting any national bank that has not less than 20 per cent of its capital invested in United States bonds to take out emergency bank note currency to an extent not exceeding 50 per cent of the amount invested in United States bonds; that the issue be made on five, six and nine months, dating from Aug. 1 or Sept. 1, or any other date, according to the needs of the crop moving period; that the collateral or security for these issues shall be, if desired, state or municipal bonds, according to the standard of the states of New York and Massachusetts for savings bank investments. These securities to be accepted at 70 per cent. The acceptance of other than United States bonds makes them more easily obtainable for banking purposes. They can be easily secured from private individuals at a very low rate of interest, probably not exceeding 1 per cent.

The matter of working out the details is of little moment, if the principle is recognized, he said.

aged 80 years, was fatally injured at Church's Ferry, when a Great Northern work train ran over him and cut off both of his legs.

Fargo, N. D.—W. E. Berner has been appointed to the position of trainmaster on the Fargo division of the Northern Pacific. Mr. Berner's place as trainmaster on the Minnesota division. This change is simply an exchange of positions between the two officials.

EIGHT THOUSAND IS SECURED BY ROBBERS.

Frankfort, S. D., Sept. 7.—One of the largest bank robberies ever perpetrated in South Dakota was pulled off here early Friday when burglars dynamited the safe in the James River bank, getting away with $8,000 in cash and many valuable papers.

Seven charges of dynamite were used in blowing up the vault, and the safe. Persons availed by the explosion were prevented from interfering by guards who were stationed at the front and rear of the bank. Frank Fitzpatrick, a hotel guest, who sought to break through the line of guards, was shot. His wound is not dangerous.

Many shots were fired to hold off lookers at bay. After looting the bank the robbers broke into a section house on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad and secured a handcar on which they made their escape.

It is possible that the robbers are seeking the robbers.

"BRIGHT EYES" NOT WORKING

Mrs. Vanderbilt Says She is Not Under Spirit Control Now.

New York, Sept. 7.—Mrs. May S. Pepper-Vanderbilt, leader of spiritualists, appeared as a witness again yesterday in the lunacy proceedings brought against her husband, Edward V. Vanderbilt, by his daughter, Miss Waverly Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt had previously testified that under the control of a spirit, "Bright Eyes," she was able to read unopened letters and learn secrets unknown to the lay mind.

Yesterday Mrs. Vanderbilt was challenged by counsel for Miss Vanderbilt to read unopened a sealed letter which she handed her. Counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt protested against the question, but Commissioner Ketchum held that it was material. Mrs. Vanderbilt could read the letter through the aid of the unseen "Bright Eyes." It would clear up all the questions in the case. The letter was handed to the witness.

"I cannot read it," said Mrs. Vanderbilt. "I am not under the control of 'Bright Eyes' now."

PLENTY OF CARS

To Move the Crops and Coal, Say the Railroad Men.

St. Paul, Sept. 7.—J. M. Hannaford, vice president and traffic manager of the Northern Pacific, and Charles Bunn, general counsel for that road, assured Interstate Commerce Commissioner Lane that there is little probability of a car shortage and coal famine in the Northwest this winter. The railroad officials told Mr. Lane that about $8,000 of cars would be needed to move the crops, and that the company has about 43,000 of its own cars on its lines and 10,000 foreign cars.

Some elevators with a capacity of 100,000 bushels have been built along the line, said the railroad officials, and about 200,000 bushels' capacity are now being built. They said that the company had taken all possible precautions to insure that the crops and coal would be moved 50 per cent more coal this summer than last.

There is now 1,000,000 tons of coal at the head of the Lakes, and three months more of open water.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.

A. J. Nussbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, but the prescription I received did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I happened upon the 'Foley's Honey and Tar' in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used 'Foley's Honey and Tar' with the same success." Sold by all druggists.

TWELVE ARE KILLED

In Wreck of Express Train on Rock Island Railroad.

Cars Jump the Track and Collide With Freight.

Waterloo, Iowa, Sept. 7.—Twelve persons were killed and twelve injured in the wreck of an express train on the Rock Island railroad at Norris, Iowa, yesterday. The train, which was northbound, jumped the track while going at full speed, and collided with a freight train standing on a siding.

The dead: P. B. CLIVER, Waterloo; WILL GOODMAN, Waterloo; JOHN N. WATSON, Waterloo; C. L. LANDPHERE, Shell Rock, Iowa.

W. O. JOHNSON, Dike, Iowa; E. R. CHRISTY, Minneapolis, Minn.; E. L. POVANTOJA, Hammond, Ind.; UNKNOWN MAN, a laborer, Hammond, Ind.

THREE UNIDENTIFIED MEN, Waterloo; J. A. Newell, Illinois Central conductor, Waterloo; John Smith, Waterloo; J. H. O'Keefe, Marble Rock, Iowa; J. H. Douglas, Waterloo; Thomas Evenson, Mora, Minn.; O. H. Martin, mail clerk, West Liberty, Edward St. Pierre, Minneapolis; Trocien Crisneh, St. Paul; Albert Mason, engineer, Cedar Rapids; A. L. Welchover, Hinman, Cedar Rapids; F. Kinch, engineer, Cedar Rapids.

Some of the dead and injured were in the smoking car, which was immediately behind the baggage and mail car. The smoking car was completely demolished, there being not one piece of wood left large enough to make a top for an ordinary kitchen table. The dead and injured were strewn about among the wreckage.

The northbound express was ten minutes late at Norris siding, which is a small station, three miles north of Cedar Falls, Iowa, and there a southbound freight train was awaiting the express, which came thundering along at a terrific speed in an effort to make up time. Just as the engine of the express was about to pass the freight train the trucks of the express jumped the track and the engine crashed forth terrific force into the engine of the freight, wrecking both engines and telescoping the baggage and mail cars and demolishing the smoking car in which a number of men were riding.

It was among the occupants of this car that the only injuries and fatalities occurred. The passengers in the two day coaches, following the smoking car, escaped with only a violent shaking up.

DIVORCE DECREE GRANTED TREZONA

Evelth Man Secures Freedom From Wife in District Court.

John J. Trezona of Evelth appeared before Judge Dibel in district court yesterday and secured an absolute divorce from his wife, Ida Agnes Trezona. The case was one that had been postponed from Wednesday, at which time neither of the parties to the case were present.

A number of letters written by Mrs. Trezona to the plaintiff were admitted as evidence and read to the court. In these letters Mrs. Trezona admitted that the life she was leading, up in one of the border towns, was a dishonorable one. She also wrote of a man friend who wished to take her to California. Another friend offered to give her a good home and all the money she wanted.

Other letters written by Capt. Penna to Mrs. Trezona were introduced, having been on file in the district court as evidence in a case brought several months ago by Trezona against Penna for alienation of his wife's affections.

Many enduring terms were included in these letters, and in them Penna asked Mrs. Trezona to visit him in some other city where they might live as man and wife for a time.

No defense was made in the case, and the decree was immediately granted by the court at the close of the trial. Attorney Hollister of the law firm of Davis & Hollister represented Trezona.

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night death ended the sufferings of little Johnnie Van Buren, the 2-year-old child who fell from a chamber window to the sidewalk Thursday evening, striking upon his head and receiving injuries, which at the time it was feared would prove fatal. The child died at St. Mary's hospital, and hope of his recovery were very remote yesterday, concussion of the brain or a hemorrhage being feared.

OUTLOOK WAS NEVER SO ENCOURAGING AS NOW

Z. T. Mullin of Washington is Enthusiastic Over Duluth Realty Investments—Week Has Been a Good, Average One in Spite of the Labor Holiday—Good Inquiry for Acreage.

"The outlook was never before so encouraging as now for people who have money invested in Duluth, in real estate or otherwise," said Z. T. Mullin of Washington, D. C., a prominent easterner who is extensively interested in Duluth real estate. He is in the city for a few days, registered at the Spaulding. "More things that will work toward the future benefit, welfare and development of Duluth will materialize this year than during any similar period in the town's history."

"I have been coming here every year for the past twelve or thirteen years, and have watched the city's growth with interest. Every year has shown an improvement over the one preceding, but during the last three or four years the advancement has been particularly noticeable, and this year it is especially so. There is a general tone to the business atmosphere this fall in Duluth that never was felt before. Everything points so strongly to rapid growth and development that the worst pessimist that ever lived would brighten up if he had money invested here. Property values are sure to increase in value, and I can think of no better investment in Duluth real estate."

"The coming of the steel plant, the development of the water power of St. Louis as carried on by the Great Northern Power company, and the construction of three new lines of railroad into Duluth, are the great factors just now that are contributing to her advancement. All these are of vast benefit to the city. Perhaps the location of the steel plant has brought Duluth more prominently into the public eye than any other one thing, for it has been extensively advertised. Everybody in the United States that reads the papers at all knows the steel plant is coming to Duluth, and the intelligent persons also know that so important a project would not come here if Duluth did not have the right geographical location.

"More or less has been known of Duluth in the East for a good many years, but it was never talked of so much as since the report was sent out that the steel plant would come here. Steel can be manufactured here with even greater profit than in the East. I believe this will be demonstrated conclusively. This is the logical point for its manufacture. Coal can be brought up the lakes more easily than the raw ore can be taken down, and by more easily, I mean more cheaply.

"Business is good all over the country just now. I see no reason why prosperous times should not continue indefinitely. The tightness in the money market affected no one but the Wall street speculators, and the remainder of the country was not injured in the least. This tightness is virtually over with now, anyway, and I look to see things in the money market back to the normal in a very short while. The situation is rapidly getting back to the normal now, and is much easier than it was a short time ago."

While the local real estate market has not been especially active this week, there has been a good business considering the fact that the week included a legal holiday, and that realty brokers are not complaining. A number of trades have been closed this week, involving property for improvement, and negotiations have been started for other deals that are likely to be closed very shortly. The inquiry for acreage continues to be one of the features of the present condition of the market, and some sales are being made right along of lands near the city. Outside interests that own considerable of the centrally located city property are turning their attention somewhat to acreage just outside the city, believing that such land offers opportunities for good investments in spite of the building movement this summer in the way of apartment houses and flats, there seems to be a larger demand than supply. There is a dearth of good places, at moderate rentals, and much complaint is being heard from new families that are coming into the city.

The big improvements that have been made to London road property by C. A. Congdon and J. Uno Senneius have attracted the attention of many to the desirability of the property along the lake, below the highway, for residence purposes. There has been a strong inquiry developing for good building lots on London road, pretty well out, and some important trades are now in the process of being closed. It is understood that Henry Bridgman of Bridgman & Russell, has purchased a property, 207 by 320 feet, below London road, at Forty-seventh avenue, from A. J. Thompson of Titusville, Pa. for $4,000, on which a residence will be erected next year. The property is described as lots 12 and 13, block B, London addition.

J. T. Michael of the St. Louis hotel is said to have purchased lots 1, 2 and 3, block C, London addition, adjoining the Bridgman purchase, on the east, on which another improvement is being contemplated for next summer. The ground is now being cleared up.

Clinton Markell is reported to have purchased a lot on the upper side of First street, near Twenty-second avenue, with a view of improving the same with a handsome residence the coming year. Mr. Markell recently sold his residence property, at the corner of Second street and Fourth avenue east, to R. B. White- sides.

P. McDonnell has purchased from A. J. Polinsky 55 feet at the southeast corner of Eleventh avenue east and Third street, for $2,700. The property is described as part of lots 1, 2 and 3, block 61, Fordland.

E. M. Hallowsay has sold Joseph Chretien a residence property below Helm street, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues west, for $1,400. The property is located in block 11, Helm's addition.

Josephine Johnson has purchased a residence property on the lower side of Third street, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west, from C. S. Stearns, for $1,250. The property is located in block 3, Helm's addition.

Knute Lundstrom has sold a residence on the lower side of Michigan street, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth avenue west, to W. Westerdahl for $2,525. The property is located in block 3, Helm's addition.

Mary Foster has purchased thirty acres of land near Proctor, through the office of Stryker, Manley & Buck, for $1,600.

Fred Jetz has bought two houses and lots in West Park for $1,100, the purchase being made through the office of W. M. Prindle & Co.; through the same office a vacant lot on Central avenue, West Duluth, has been sold to a local party for $1,500; a West Superior street improved property has been sold to another local buyer for $3,600, and a residence property has been sold on West Fourth street to Charles Hallock for $2,300. W. M. Cauliff has purchased a property on West Second street, comprising four houses and lots, for $5,000. Prindle & Co., representing the seller, have disposed to a purchaser represented by Little & Nolte, two lots in Bay View front division, for a consideration of $15,000.

The contract for a $7,500 barn for R. B. Whitesides on the property he recently acquired from Clinton Markell, was awarded this week to L. J. Kilpinen. The plans were made by Bray & Nystrom, the architects.

The architects will take figures next week on a six-room brick grade school house to be erected at Eveleth, Minn., building costing $30,000. The architects will take figures next week on the superstructure.

A FROST IS PREDICTED

Weather Indications and Foreign Demand Puts Wheat Up.

Flax Has a Good Budge in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Sept. 7.—Wheat had another advance today on the strong foreign demand and predictions of frost for the Canadian Northwest. Cooler weather for the entire spring wheat belt is predicted. The foreign buyers were big buyers of wheat in the American market today, and this, as yesterday, was a great factor for higher prices. A large amount of durum wheat was sold for export in Duluth by local exporters. Liverpool closed higher, Duluth 14c higher and 1/2c higher in Chicago and 1/2c higher in Minneapolis. The May option closed 1/2c higher in Duluth, 1/2c in Chicago and 1/2c in Minneapolis.

December corn closed 1/2c higher in Chicago and 1/2c higher in Minneapolis. December oats closed 1/2c lower in Chicago and 1/2c lower in Minneapolis. The September option closed 1/2c higher in Duluth, 1/2c in Chicago and 1/2c in Minneapolis. The September option closed 1/2c higher in Duluth, 1/2c in Chicago and 1/2c in Minneapolis.

Flax trading was active after the first hour of the session of the Duluth market today. September wheat opened 1/2c lower at $1.04, declined to $1.03, and closed at $1.03. October wheat opened 1/2c lower at $1.03, declined to $1.02, and closed at $1.02. November wheat opened 1/2c lower at $1.02, declined to $1.01, and closed at $1.01. December wheat opened 1/2c lower at $1.01, declined to $1.00, and closed at $1.00.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

The Mohawk Breaks All Records of Production During August—Important Operations at the Arcadian Are Now Under Way.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 7.—The production of the Mohawk Mining company for the month of August was 532 tons and 1,600 pounds mineral. This breaks all past records for the Mohawk. In July the production was 522 tons mineral and 1,400 pounds.

The product of the Wolverine Mining company for the month of August was 507 tons and 500 pounds mineral. In July the production was 522 tons mineral and 1,400 pounds.

The estimated product of Calumet & Hecla for August was 4,100 tons refined, 222 tons refined, 134 tons refined and 134 tons refined. The estimated product of the Wolverine Mining company for the month of August was 507 tons and 500 pounds mineral. In July the production was 522 tons mineral and 1,400 pounds.

Unquestionably, the most important operations ever started on the Arcadian property are now under way. A new vertical shaft, six by ten, has been commenced on the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 25. It is now down thirty feet, and will be sunk 200 feet. It is located 3,000 feet east of the Arcadian vein and 1,000 feet west of the sandstone. It will be cased east and west, which will give a crosscut of the property from the Arcadian vein to the eastern sandstone. The shaft is located on a prominent strike of the Arcadian vein. Drilling and crosscutting is being continued in the present exploration shaft located about 1,500 feet east of the Arcadian vein. Power will be supplied from the present equipment by means of a five-inch line line.

Director Isaac H. Moser, of the Quincy Mining company, says: "The Quincy Mining company produced a little over 500 tons of copper for the first six months of the year. The company has not made any sales of copper since the middle of March."

INCREASING OUTPUT OF ORE

Is the Record of the Warren District—All the Mines Working With a Full Complement of Men at Present—Prospecting Proceeding on a Large Scale.

Bisbee, Ariz., Sept. 7.—A slight increase in the production of the Dena-Arizona, the newest producer in the district, and the gradual increasing of the output of the different large mines of the district have marked the past week in the mining industry in this section. All of the mines are working with a full complement of men, and prospecting is being carried forward on a large scale.

There has been no materially new feature at the Copper Queen properties during the week, except that the work of driving drifts which will converge at the new shaft, and which will be the arteries through which the ore will be carried to the central point in the new system of hoisting, is being prosecuted vigorously.

At the Calumet & Arizona there has been practically nothing of interest, the entire attention being devoted to the opening up of ore bodies found some time ago.

Work at the various shafts of the Superior & Pitsburg company is being steadily pushed, but aside from the enlarging of the pump battery at the Junction, little of more than passing interest can be mentioned.

At the Shattuck-Arizona the average ore output of about 400 tons a day is being maintained, but underground there has been little change from the week. Above ground the most important happenings is the preparations for the life of usefulness of the new shaft, which has been installed.

Sinking at the Dena-Arizona has reached the desired depth of 1,200 feet in the shaft and preparations are being made for cutting the station on the shaft and for driving the drifts in the bottom of the shaft.

BALLAKLAVA A LIVELY SPOT

Vast Amount of Work Done Last Month and Surface Equipment is Being Placed in First-Class Shape—East Butte Extension is Striking its Seventh Shaft.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 7.—There is not a more lively spot in the camp at the present time than the Ballaklava mine. The mine is now being developed to a depth of 1,200 feet. The mine is now being developed to a depth of 1,200 feet.

On the property adjoining the Pennsylvania on the south, the East Butte extension of the Col. Seligman claim is being developed to a depth of 1,200 feet. The mine is now being developed to a depth of 1,200 feet.

The North Butte Mining company is drifting on the Edith May vein at the 1,800-foot level and is crosscutting to the Jessie at the same depth. The mine is now being developed to a depth of 1,200 feet.

The Butte Coalition output runs between 1,300 and 1,400 tons a day. There is a rumor that the company will soon begin operations on the Alice group of mines, in which it owns a controlling interest. It is also being developed to a depth of 1,200 feet.

THE CANANEA DISTRICT

Titles for Bonanza de Colre Property Received and Work of Development Will be Started by Thomas F. Cole and Associates.

Cananea, Mex., Sept. 7.—John Talbot has returned to the city from the Cananea district, where he was to visit the Leadville properties which he has under development for the Calumet & Arizona interests with very satisfactory results.

On his return to the city, Mr. Talbot found the titles here for the Bonanza de Colre 700 per centum, deeded north of the smelter. Arrival of the titles means that the completion of the few formal steps which will be concluded soon, the big work which has been planned for the exploitation of this property will be undertaken.

Mr. Talbot enters enthusiastically into the work of bringing this district and vigorous development is assuredly ahead. Roads have been completed to and over the property, shaft sites selected and everything made ready for a start, which has only one which has been developed in the last several months and are constantly adding to the big body. Shipments from these shafts are on the narrow gauge. They could readily be made by the present daily output for the Douglas smelter.

COPPER GULF'S GOOD SHOWING

Much Development Work Done and the Mine Also Has Been Made a Steady Producer—The Recent Election of Officers.

Globe, Ariz., Sept. 7.—There is considerable local interest in the Copper Gulf Development company of Silver City, N. M., a totality of Messrs. Howland and Smith, who promoted the Globe Consolidation, is general manager of the company and also a director and his many friends in Globe will be pleased to learn that he is making good in his new position. The Silver City Independent says of the progress at the mine and the election of officers: "The Copper Gulf Development company, operating the Virginia and other properties in the copper belt in the district, recently closed a most successful year. The richness of the Virginia mine has been known for years, as it was one of the first properties in the district to show large bodies of ore. The new company which acquired the property in 1905, under the management of Mr. Howland, has done much development work and in addition has made the mine a steady producer. It is now producing about 100 tons of copper a day. The company has been sending out the ore, but it must be in the neighborhood of a carload a day. E. A. Wayne, who is general manager of the company, has proved himself a capable man."

The first annual meeting of the company was held in Silver City last week when the directors present visited the scene of the company's operations at Leadville and made a thorough inspection of the property and the work being done. Everything was found to be satisfactory and Mr. Wayne was commended for his management. He was again appointed general manager. The following members of the company were present: Thomas A. Merritt, T. H. Merritt, L. M. Merritt, C. F. Joyce of Duluth, Minn.; H. B. Howland, H. A. Smith, Bisbee; E. A. Wayne, Silver City. The following composed the officers for the ensuing year: President, L. B. Ketchum; Vice President, H. B. Howland; Secretary, E. A. Wayne; General Manager, E. A. Wayne; Treasurer, H. A. Smith; and Walter A. Harrows of Pennsylvania from the board of directors.

GUGGEHEIMS AND COBALT

Belief That They Will Soon Control a Large Part of the Good Mines—Elk Lake Center of Interest Now.

New York, Sept. 7.—A Toronto Special Agent reports that there is a growing feeling among those interested in the Guggenheim interests in the Cobalt district, that the Guggenheims are about to acquire a large part of the really good mines. The first step, it is believed, will be the acquisition of the Cobalt mine, which is now being developed to a depth of 1,200 feet.

property Sup. McBride is crowding work ahead as fast as possible. The pump station on the 800-level of the Cananea shaft has been practically completed in excellent time and the big Prescott pump will be lowered into position shortly. October will likely see everything in readiness on this level for the beginning of the extensive crosscutting and drifting which is to be done in thorough exploration of the lower ground from the shaft. This work has been commenced from the 800, but has been conducted only slowly because of the expectation that water may be encountered at any time, which will provide more of a flow than the present pump equipment is equal to. As soon as the new pump is installed, a steady flow of water may be going to make a mine out of it which any body of water that may be found, but until then caution is necessary. At the new Cananea shaft they are working down to the level of 600 feet. The shaft has not had chance as yet to make any positive showing, but the indications so far found are good. In the upper limestone tunnels they are continuing in the work of the ore which has been developed in the last several months and are constantly adding to the big body. At the new Cananea shaft they are working down to the level of 600 feet. The shaft has not had chance as yet to make any positive showing, but the indications so far found are good. In the upper limestone tunnels they are continuing in the work of the ore which has been developed in the last several months and are constantly adding to the big body. Shipments from these shafts are on the narrow gauge. They could readily be made by the present daily output for the Douglas smelter.

The pump station on the 800-level of the Cananea shaft has been practically completed in excellent time and the big Prescott pump will be lowered into position shortly. October will likely see everything in readiness on this level for the beginning of the extensive crosscutting and drifting which is to be done in thorough exploration of the lower ground from the shaft. This work has been commenced from the 800, but has been conducted only slowly because of the expectation that water may be encountered at any time, which will provide more of a flow than the present pump equipment is equal to. A UNIQUE DISPOSITION OF LACE TRIMMINGS

Busy Days for the Importing Dressmakers and Custom House Officials - Demi-toilettes Among the First Arrivals Coats Grow Longer and There is a Stunning Long Vest.

These be the days when interest re-awakens—or does it ever sleep?—in the major matters of the costume. In mid-summer such minor details as neckwear, hairpins, and belts seem vastly important. But once September 1st comes round 'tis the serious things of the wardrobe that engross us—the length of our fall suit coat, whether or not to have long sleeves to our prospective restaurant frock, just how short to have the skirt, and what size, shape and color to choose in a fall hat.

The importing dressmakers are arriving on every steamer, as well as the regular pleasure travelers who always take the precaution to supply early fall wardrobe needs during the summer sojourn on the continent. Every maid and mistress just arrived from Europe must submit to the close scrutiny of her acquaintances, and the serious cross-questioning of her intimates, each and every one of them bent on knowing all she does of the new fashions and fancies. The dressmakers are calling up their favorite customers over the phone to "come down and see some charming things that came this morning," and the customs men are busy from morning till late afternoon over their chignons and rich velvets and priceless furs.

"Dresses" Are Again in Style.

A dressmaker who specializes on simple costumes of refined character, "dresses for American ladies" one French designer terms them, is showing some fascinating new models this week. A study of them will make one well posted on what will be seen this fall and winter in the smart cafes, at private and semi-private luncheons, afternoon bridge parties and the like. From these one will note that the simplicity ushered in a year or more ago by Paquin is to continue in favor, a blessing for which every lover of artistic dressing should give thanks.

In these demi-toilettes there is a decided tendency toward simple skirts, sometimes quite untrimmied about the bottom, and again embellished with some very simple ruck or band treatment. A Dorian model in hand-drawn shows a most charming skirt. It is very full, and laid into the hand in large forward turning pleats, this latter being a point worth noting. The skirt is cut in six gares, and in each gare are laid two five inch tucks running with the grain of the cloth. The tucks are so placed that they form a saw-tooth border. The effect is simple, yet extremely elegant, and would be successful in any of the soft light weight fabrics, such as chiffon cloth or voile. In a transparent fabric this skirt of course takes on a drossier aspect, the double folds of the tucks standing out plainly as a trimming scheme.

The New Draped Bodices and Sleeves

The bodice of this costume also contains many instructive features. It shows one of the many new draped treatments that we are promised as a feature of the winter modes. The full pleated blouse is draped over a well boned fitted lining, the V shaped neck and the wide armholes outlined with velvet bands heavy with silk and soutache embroideries. The sleeve is also draped, and this being the distinctly new thing in sleeves, is deserving close attention. The plain lines of the kimono and Japanese sleeves that have monopolized things all summer are, we are told, to be largely replaced by draped effects. The sleeve to this handsome costume is extremely simple, being composed of two pieces of the cloth arranged with the opening on the upper arm, and the lower part of the drapery caught together with a small velvet bow over a straight lace undersleeve. There is a high collar and V shaped vest of lace, the latter outlined with a chiffon scarf which is knotted softly at the bust line and falls in lace trimmed ends to below the waist.

The New Princess Models.

The princess dress is by no means missing from the new fall models. Indeed, the one piece and the two piece costumes divide honors about equally. The Princess-Emple is noticeable, and another form of princess which has portions of the skirt extended up to form a part of the bodice. Such a model is sent in by Lohouvier, and is developed in a shadow stripe mohair in an exquisite shade of violet. The back pieces of the skirt are extended into bretelles, which cross diagonally in the back, full wide over the sleeve tops, and drape to the waist line in front. The bodice portion proper is of violet chiffon, laid in lace tucks, and accented pleated. There is a V back and front of white lace, and this is outlined with white satin striped with violet velvet. Buttons are an important feature of this costume, being used on the side back seams, and in holding the bodice in place. They are covered with velvet and cord edged.

Japanese and Jumper Ideas Continue.

These two costumes are indicative of two distinct types of demi-costume, of each of which we will see many variations during the season. They embody many points of newness, but so cleverly introduced that one feels no shock. There are Japanese sleeves and jumper ideas aplenty among the new models, but these lack the novelty of the draped effects above described.

Longer Coats and the New Vest.

Not are the suits lacking in surprises. First, there are the lengthened coats. Starting at 39 and 34 inch lengths, the coats have gradually descended until they reached the knee, and are "still going" as the small boy says. But the distinct novelty feature of the imported suit coats is the long vests. It is the fashion of George Washington's time, or of Louis XIV. revived,—the masculine fashion drawn into feminine use. Vests that reach to within a few inches of the 40 to 44 inch coat are not unusual. The coat itself may be comparatively simple, but the vest is heavy with richest embroideries and trimmings. Or, it is of rich brocade, bound with tarnished gold braid, the material and trimmings exact reproductions of those employed in the waistcoats of the courtiers of Louis' gay court. There are frequently smart little pocket flaps at the waist line, or below, to enhance the old time appearance.

Imported Waistcoats.

The dressmakers, by the way, have brought over these waistcoats all made up, to use in suits they will make for their patrons, and they solemnly inform us that nothing like this fabric can be had on this side of the Atlantic, though one has a suspicion that the good old brocade patterns in some of the high class upholstery shops will be mastered into service before the season is over, to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

Lace Jabots.

With these long coats and quaint waistcoats nothing could be more appropriate than the full or jabot of lace, with which the front of many of the new waists are provided. If not a part of the waist proper, this bit of frilliness may readily be added, and still be found a most attractive addition to toilettes of this character.

Description of Illustrations.

An Elaborate Afternoon Costume in Mauve Cloth.

The Eton coat is by no means banished from Fashion's favor. It will be seen all winter at various dressy functions, and in secret wear their wearers will simply don a heavy outer coat or cape over the small Eton for carriage wear. This costume is of fine broadcloth, the skirt laid in box pleats, which are braided half their depth with a heavy silk cord. The little coat is on square lines, and is composed of cloth and flannel, and heavy with a braided pattern of the silk cord which appears on the skirt. The sleeves are of the cloth, and also braided. There is a touch of brilliant embroidery on satin outlining the coat, with rows of soutache and narrow fancy braid arranged in bands and scroll patterns. It is on the vests of these coats that the trimming is lavished: Sometimes this vest is almost solid with braiding and embroidery. Again, as in the illustration, the vest is of a quaint, heavy brocade band or a dull gold zaielon. The sleeves are full length and are finished with large monquaire cuffs, stiffened and braid trimmed. The hat is a green felt, trimmed with velvet and an enormous pom-pom almost covers the crown.

How One French Maker Develops the Princess.

This model is by Lohouvier, and has many novel points in its details. It is a shadow stripe English mohair, so fine and soft as to be readily mistaken for silk. In color it is a brilliant violet. The costume is cut on princess lines, the skirt having a straight back seam that at the waist curves in to a bias meeting, from

Directoire Coat Suit in Olive Green Velvet.

Long coats are a distinct feature of the season's fashions. They run from 40 to 50 inch lengths, and those sent us from the east have just a suggestion of fitting in the back. The trimming of these coats is extremely simple. In the costume illustrated both coat and skirt are braid trimmed, a wide hand-made braid outlining the coat, with rows of soutache and narrow fancy braid arranged in bands and scroll patterns. It is on the vests of these coats that the trimming is lavished: Sometimes this vest is almost solid with braiding and embroidery. ### Fashion Notes.

The craze for cameo jewelry grows apace. Those possessed of heirlooms of this nature are congratulating themselves thereon, and the less fortunate are saving their pennies to buy, or trusting that a lucky birthday, or far away Christmas may bring them the wanted treasures. It might be well to say that "cameo" pertains to the cutting and not to the shell, and some very decorative cameo effects are wrought in the inexpensive pink conch shell.

The prominence the front lace corset is taking is worthy of note. In the beginning its use was naturally limited, since the price of front lace models was so high as to be prohibitive to many. Now, however, some of the clever manufacturers have gotten up well made front lace styles to sell as low as $2.50, so that the woman of moderate means needs not to be deterred from enjoying the comforts that this method of corseting is said to bestow on its followers.

The little Japanese silk frocks that have had such favor among smart dressers all summer are to run through the winter as house frocks. In white they will be worn by young girls for party frocks, and in the pink and white and blue and white and green and white stripes will replace more pretentious fashions for house dresses. They are eminently practical if made simply, since they launder as well as a piece of linen.

There is a new petticoat in the shops that will be appreciated by the thin sisters. It is provided with a padded yoke that bulks the figure out to pleasant curves, cannot wrinkle about as does a bustie sometimes, and is in one with the petticoat, doing away with the extra garment.

FOR ONE FEETICK MAKER DEVELOPES THE PRINCESS

Much and Heavy Jewelry Worn.

The fashions in jewelry change almost as rapidly as they do in Easter bonnets nowadays. Stones of huge size, when considered as precious gems, are now being mounted in London, New York and Paris for the most refined and fashionable ladies. These huge stones are being put into necklaces, brooches and bracelets, and the amount of jewelry which is now considered perfectly proper for a lady to wear would have been considered barbarous and vulgar five years ago. As many as three different styles of necklaces are worn this year by fashionable women, six brooches are not thought too many, and half a dozen bracelets are thought to be eminently proper by the best judges in London society.

Kings now show a decided tendency to become large and clumsy. Any number of them may be worn in fact so many that the hands of London's most fashionable women when attired in their rings are just about useless. They could not even pick up a handkerchief, as they cannot bend their fingers weighted down with large rings. Large diamonds are preferred for the little fingers, and artistic designs of thumb rings are being worn that stretch from one knuckle to the other. The corsage can be completely hidden with jewels in many and curious designs. Turkeys, dog collars, necklaces and stomachers are some of the forms in which the present fashionable love for jeweled ornaments find expression.

Unique Disposition of Lace Trimmings.

This costume shows another of the clever two-in-one effects. The material is a rose satin with trimmings of lace dyed the same shade. The skirt has inset V's of the satin tucked and outlined with the lace. The upper portion is formed of tulle, which extend up on to the bodice. The bodice portion is of finely pleated satin arranged over a vest of net. There is a draped under-sleeve of lace and also a rich arrangement of the lace at the bust line. The narrow collar and sleeve bands are of dark brown velvet, the brown contrasting prettily with the rose tint of the satin.

A Season of Exquisite Colorings.

Dark, but by no means somber, are the colorings fashion approves for fall. Never have we seen a wider variety of shades accredited "good" by that capricious dame.

First and foremost in novelty and beauty is the purple family. Every shade and tone, from the full rich royal egg plant dahlia, peonia, and those tones known to the French as coccus, pavot, enlaine, and abesse.

Purple is a startling color, and some how we always feel that it cannot "take" well; yet it comes to us this fall in models with the names of the master-designers of the world attached, and since some of New York's best dressed women are favoring it, it certainly looks as though more people than royalty would be clothed in purple this winter.

The "soft" shades, it must be confessed, are more attractive than the clear purple, and vastly more becoming to the majority of complexions in this harsh climate of ours. The egg plant, or aubergine, as the French term it, is a soft pinkish tint that combines charmingly with light blue, and harmonizes delightfully with almost all the fashionable furs.

Greens in all shades, but particularly in the bronze and leaf tones, are slated for the favor this fall and winter. Green was the leading color in Paris last winter, but did not reach prominence here. The favor decided last season, it will doubtless attain to, this. The bright emerald green tones, shades sometimes termed Marie Louise, will be strong as an accessory color, in late and trimmings.

Blues we have always with us, they are so sensible, you know. However, it is not their practical qualities that brings them forward this season, but a genuine fashion vogue. The new shades are certainly worthy of the attention they are inspiring. They are the lighter tones, Naxtine and Copenhagen, and some marvellous deep blues that seem to contain black, so very dark is the tone. Purple and bluebust some of these are called.

The puce shades are most novel. These will be largely used in millinery, and to a lesser extent,—because of their novelty,—in costumes and suits. Japanese blues, those sharp clear tones, are known as "Japan" and "Tokio," and various other names.

Then there are the wine shades,—the burgundies, sherrys, and clarets, those beautiful deep red tones that are so appropriate to the winter season. These run into rose shades in their lightest tones.

Brown is always more popular in America than it is in France. It will continue to enjoy popular favor all winter, though it will not have the widespread vogue it has enjoyed for several seasons back. Brown in combination, that is, in stripes and the new silk mixtures, is even more popular than the plain tones. The very dark shades, dead leaf, wood brown, and burnt bread, are smart; then there is a medium shade called Yule and Nankin.

Old Gold is one of the novelty colors of the season, but it is, of course, only in accessory color, and appears mostly on hats.

Greys in the metal and "religious" tones, will have some prominence, being especially effective when properly combined with furs.

Indeed, one noticeable point in the fall colors is the charming way with which they combine with all the fashionable furs and some of the finer fur cloths. The fur seems to bring out all the beauty of the fabric tones, and the fabric color in turn, enhances the richness of the furs.

Outmeal Croquette. — Warm one cupful of cooked oatmeal in one tablespoonful of milk; add the beaten yolk of one egg and one tablespoonful of salt. When cool shape into small ovals, roll in crumbs, dip in beaten eggs, roll in the crumbs again and fry in smoking-hot fat.

How to Wash Blankets.

A clear, brisk and breezy day should be selected as the time to wash blankets. Two tubs half filled with hot water must be in readiness, one containing enough shaved soap to make strong suds; a part of a cake of soap may be laid in the other. Add to each tub a quart of water in which half a cupful of borax has been dissolved.

Place the blankets in the first tub and work them about until they are free from dirt. Wring out as much of the soap water as possible, and put them in the second tub, washing again as in the first. Then rinse in weak suds and send them through the wringer, adjusting the rollers so that they will squeeze the water out thoroughly.

Fold the blankets lengthwise several times to an even width, and they pass through the wringer without difficulty. Hang them out at once to dry, carefully fastening them on the line so that they may not drag out or snare. It must be remembered that the waters in which they are washed should be of the same temperature.

The blankets must be absolutely dry before they are taken in. They should then be folded carefully and placed in a clean white sheet, large enough to completely cover them. No ironing is necessary. A marble table top or a board may be laid over them to press them down.

Cynical folks who sneer at the faith of young lovers, only show what bad losers they are in the game of love.

DRAMATIC AT THE LYCEUM

Chauncey Olcott in His New Play, "O'Neill of Derry",
Will be Seen in Duluth Five Nights Beginning Tuesday--Mack-Leone Company Returns.

The scene of "O'Neill of Derry," the new dramatic play by Theodore Burt Sayre, in which Augustus Pitou presents Chauncey Olcott at the Lyceum, is the famous old wall town of Londonderry, and the action takes place in the latter part of the seventeenth century.

In choosing a period ante-dating by at least a century and a half all other Irish dramas, the author has kept before him in "O'Neill of Derry" a motif which would have been equally strong and moving were its scenes set in the time of any other country or any other people. It is purely a romantic play with a historical basis for its story. Bryan O'Neill, played by Mr. Olcott, is a reckless soldier of fortune, an expert swordsman, who has been roaming over the continent of Europe, vanquishing all who have met him, and who, after an absence of many years, returns to Old Londonderry. He is a good-hearted, humorous, witty Irishman, bearing no man ill-will, but across the channel has come to him tales of the prowess of Hugh Farrell of Londonderry, unbeaten with the fells, and yet undefeated himself, seeks an encounter to determine which is master. But there has been much duelling in Londonderry, so much in fact that Sir Graham Croft, English governor of the town, has published an edict, announcing as a penalty therefore, death at a rope's end.

Sir Graham Croft, a merciless official who secured his wife through his clannishness to her father, driving her affianced lover, Laurence Desmond, to France, has come upon information which convinces him that Desmond has returned to Londonderry to hold a rendezvous with Lady Croft and lay a plot of villainy by which a prisoner in the jail is given his liberty provided he will provoke Hugh Farrell to fight a duel with him, the object being that with Farrell's life as a forfeit, his half sister, Kate Fitzroy, Lady Croft's confidante, may be forced to reveal Laurence Desmond's hiding place. Unwittingly Bryan O'Neill, meeting the wretched convict in an inn and being told of his pardon conditional upon fighting Hugh Farrell, offers to take his place and even then has to insult Farrell before he can provoke him to fight. Meanwhile the situation is further complicated by O'Neill, who, knowing Desmond and acting in his behalf, meets Miss Fitzroy, to receive a message, and who falls desperately in love at first sight, never dreaming that she is the half sister of the man he is to fight. O'Neill fights Farrell, dangerously wounding him, and mistakes for Desmond himself is pronounced an outlaw. How the young swordsman outwits the constabulary, baffles Sir Graham Croft, and wins the love of Kate Fitzroy in spite of the fact that he has fought a duel with her brother, is unfolded in the four absorbingly interesting acts. The stage pictures are beautiful and during the action of the play Mr. Olcott, as Bryan O'Neill, sings four new songs.

"THE OTHER GIRL."

Mack-Leone Company at Lyceum Sunday and Monday.

Anything from the pen of our own Augustus Thomas is deserving, and usually gets a generous amount of attention at the hands of American playgoers, and so it is with no little interest that the Lyceum patrons will look forward to the production of "The Other Girl," by the Mack-Leone players. "The Other Girl" was written and used with success by Nannette Comstock and Lionel Barrymore, making a run of five months on Broadway, and later touring the East, where it was met with crowded houses everywhere. The Mack-Leone company will give it an elaborate production.

"The Other Girl" will be the offering at the Lyceum, Sept. 8 and 9, starting with a matinee Sunday, and a special ladies' matinee on Monday. For the benefit of those who cannot attend the Sunday matinee, the popular Mack-Leone prices will prevail.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

The New Century Girls, W. H. Longstreet's Own Show, Will Appear at the Local Burlesque House Next Week.

The Metropolitan's own show—the New Century Girls—will open a week's engagement at the Metropolitan tomorrow afternoon. There will also be matinees during the week, on Tuesday, Thursday (ladies' day) and Saturday.

Almost every theater in the Empire circuit is interested in one or more shows which play the wheel, and the New Century Girls is the one which is under the general supervision of W. H. Longstreet, manager of the beginning of the season in New York, from which place all the wheel shows start, but a watchful eye is kept on it from Duluth in the season and out of it.

From a synopsis of the entertainment furnished by the advertiser, it is known as "A Thief in the Night."

AT THE BIJOU

Ten Big Features Will be Included in the Program at Duluth's Popular Theater, Next Week--
Kellie and Dixon Head the Bill.

Commencing Monday afternoon, the Bijou will offer its patrons one of the biggest and one of the best vaudeville shows ever seen at the popular theater. There will be ten first-class features.

Heading the bill will be Edward Kellie and Sidonne Dixon, presenting the beautiful and dainty comedy playlet, "The Merry Wives of Windsor." The following review from the Chicago Tribune's vaudeville critic is sufficient recommendation for this classic playlet, which is a direct from the Majestic theater to the Bijou circuit:

"Next came two strangers to Chicago in vaudeville, Sidonne Dixon and Edward Kellie. They are strangers no longer. Their vehicle, 'The Merry Wives of Windsor,' proved a worthy number. Miss Dixon has a pleasing personality, her methods are easy and natural and she is possessed of a sweet, well cultivated soprano voice. It is to be regretted that she has little chance to display 'The Merry Wives' in its entirety, in a manner and a happy laugh that is highly infectious. You have to laugh when Kellie does."

The three Alavettas, comedy acrobats, will present one of the best gymnastic acts ever seen in Duluth. Their acrobatic tricks are of the most difficult kind, while the comedy portion of the act is extra good. A singing act of much prominence will be given by Lloyd Evans. They are authors of many of the popular songs that are being sung the country over. During their week's engagement they will render several of their latest song hits, clever comedians, as both are popular hits in the Indian song, entitled "You're An Indian, He's An Indian, I'm An Indian, Too."

A good single comedy act will be presented by Sam Goldman, the well known Hebrew comedian and story teller. Goldman's funny sayings in Hebrew, which he has always made him a favorite in vaudeville.

A good novelty will be offered by Henderson and Ross, who are said to be marvelous on the bounding wire. A good comedy sketch will be presented by Byrd and Vance, entitled "How Do I Know?"

"In Old Kentucky" was originally produced in St. Paul in 1892, has been played every year since that time, and still remains one of the most successful offerings on the American stage. It will be at the Lyceum Sept. 18, 20 and 21.

"The Rork company's production of 'Coming Thro' the Rye' began the season in Bridgeport, Aug. 23. It will be at the Lyceum this fall.

The Duluth Lyceum, following out the policy of previous years, will add to its list of attractions the coming season several of the best known artists in musical lines. Among those arranged for so far are Sousa's band, Sunday, Nov. 24; Ernest Schelling, Monday, Nov. 18, and Kubelick, the violinist, Dec. 1. Negotiations are also pending with several of the best prima donnas in the country, and perhaps a celebrated tenor, with whom the people are familiar. It is intended to have a list of high class musical events as complete the coming year as it was last year.

Isabel Irving made her first appearance in the Clyde place play, "The Girl Who Has Everything," at Scranton, Aug. 23. The part is that of a young woman of society, who has been left to care for her dead sister's children. She will visit Duluth this fall.

Speaking of Ibsen, it may be noted that his principal exponent this season will be the talented Russian actress, Mme. Nazimova. The Russian actress, who came to the United States in 1898, has since that time been a constant presence on the stage. Her plays, "The Master Builder" and "Hedda Gabler," will be presented in the season. Mme. Nazimova there also will be a play, "The Master Builder," by Ibsen, and "Hedda Gabler," by Ibsen. The Russian actress, who came to the United States in 1898, has since that time been a constant presence on the stage. Her plays, "The Master Builder" and "Hedda Gabler," will be presented in the season.

These are busy times also for the Hippodrome, New York's largest place, which opens for the season tonight and this means that all hands and the cook will be as busy as it is permitted men and women to be in the meantime. The two spectacles with which it closed last spring, "Neptune's Daughter" and "The Master Builder," will be presented in the season. The Hippodrome management to make it possible for some daring couple fond of excitement to have the hands of Hymen under their feet in the big Hippodrome tank, sheltered under one of the diving bells, in the disappearing normal scene in "Neptune's Daughter."

Harlemites will have a long season of grand opera. Jose Van den Berg has secured a brilliant prospectus for the Van den Berg Opera company, of which he is the managing director. The season of 1907-8 in the West End theater, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and West End avenue, will open on September 2 with a matinee. Among the artists engaged are Mme. Noidi, Miss Jennie Linden, Schwartz, Miss Dahl, Miss Amelia Norton, Miss Mae Calder, Miss Grace Bellamy, Miss Albertine Marguland, Miss Pauline Perry, Messrs. Albert, Hubert Wilke, Robert Peters, Joseph, and William Schuster. The musical director will be John Bramm, assisted by Herr Braume, formerly principal director of the Stadt theater, Hamburg.

Charles Frohman has decided to open John Drew's annual season at the Empire theater in the city, on Wednesday, Saturday evening, Aug. 31. Instead of Monday, Sept. 2, as has been Mr. Drew's customary time of opening, ever since he has played his annual engagement at the Empire theater.

Joe Weber announces Monday, Oct. 7, the date for the reopening of Weber's Music hall, Edgar Smith, the official theater writer, has written the new named, but will follow the form of the burlesque popular, Weber's seasons. A feature of the hall's new season will be the continued two year ago. The new place will be given a fortnight's performance preliminary to New York opening, the premiere being listed for New Haven on Sept. 22.

The 132nd year of "The Rivals" will be inaugurated by Joseph and William Jefferson on Monday, Sept. 23, in Plainfield, N. J. The tour includes about every playhouse in the East, and the play will continue until the latter part of June of next year, when it will be devoted to the Far Eastern marine provinces.

Louis James will offer a new and unique version of Shakespeare's merry play, "The Comedy of Errors," for the coming season, appearing in the dual role of the two Dromios, the first time in the history of the drama who one star has essayed the part of both. He will continue to play Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor." Frederick Paulding has been specially engaged to stage the productions and play leading parts.

The plans for Comedians new endowed theater have been completed and forwarded to the Herr Director. The stage will be novel in character, embodying all the improvements now in existence in the best theaters of the world. There will be one performance of opera comique each week, the plays of Shakespeare, Moliere, Schiller, Goethe and all the great dramatists of far back as Sophocles. It will be two years before the first performance can be given.

"The Honeymooners," George M. Cohan's whirlwind musical comedy, which began an engagement on the Amsterdam theater roof on June 5, finished its long run last Saturday night. It has been a popular success from its start and has played to capacity houses at every performance. Mr. Cohan takes his first vacation in several years, and the "Honeymooners" will be sent on tour, with Willie Dunlap playing Mr. Cohan's part.

Charles Frohman's plans for this season have started out well in the start line. A massive Great Dame appears in "When Knights Were Bold," Francis Wilson's play, and one of the realistic rural plays, "The Dairy Maids," is a duck, turning the rehearsals of the musical piece the duck has been living comfortably in property room in the small court yard adjoining the Empire theater and has been in charge of the property man. The other afternoon, at a very quiet moment when Mr. Frohman was rehearsing the principals, a voice was heard from the property room, "Say, Bill, it's raining. Go out and bring in that duck."

When "Fascinating Flora" leaves the Casino, New York, for a tour of the principal cities, it will have had a five move had run to its credit at the celebrated play-

The Brahams are shadowgraphic artists, and they do Central park of any of the celebrated places of interest. This is a most interesting picture, with its wealth of musical numbers, pretty girls and excellent cast, has reaped a harvest second to other vaudeville offerings. The Brahams, Boston, on Labor day will be the first other playhouse to welcome the big New York summer success in its entirety of original cast and production. All the song hits are the result of trial of the merits of both music and comedy. This gives the play the full complement of the best numbers to be had from the best writers.

Miss Alice Ritchie, whose very womanhood is attested by her art in gowns, is at the head of the company playing the title role.

Daniel Frohman, who first brought Jan Kubelick to America in the season of 1906, has announced another tour for the famous violinist in this country, under his management.

It is a fact since his first visit to America Kubelick has risen from the position of the most astonishing prodigy in the history of the violin, to absolute supremacy with his chamber instrument. At 27, an age when most men are beginning their life work, he stands as a master. Americans were among the first to recognize his prodigious talent in its immaturity. Kubelick is happy to be able to return to the new world this season and give them the benefit of his perfect art.

Since his second American tour Kubelick has toured Europe and appeared with his usual success in Germany, France, Austria, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal. In Madrid King Alfonso and Queen Victoria were among his admirers. In London he played at the royal palace. Similar honors were conferred by the virtuoso to comply with all the demands for engagements in England, Scotland and Ireland. His final recital at Queen's hall, London, May 29, 1907, found the vast auditorium crowded to its utmost capacity, and the press was unanimous in praise of his playing. The virtuoso, who has been playing at the prominent French and English seaside resorts.

Kubelick will leave for this country about Nov. 1, his first concert is being given at Duluth, Nov. 10, at the Hippodrome, New York, to be followed immediately by concerts in Chicago, Nov. 14 and 15. Concerts will also be given in all the prominent eastern and western cities of the Northwest, the Pacific coast, Mexico, Cuba and the South, in all about 125 appearances.

Is America lacking in the production of great musical genius? It was the question of a musician who was asked by Kaiser William, who considers himself somewhat of a judge of music and musicians, a denial of the charge that America is in this wise deficient. His answer was that America is not lacking in the production of great musical genius, but that America is in this wise deficient.

Three years ago Miss Elvyn made her debut in Berlin, where she had been under the instruction of Leopold Godowsky, to whom she had been sent by the late Carl Wulfsberg of Chicago, America's greatest exponent of Beethoven. After four years of tutoring, she followed with concerts in Paris, London and other European cities and steadily and surely her reputation grew. It is rather an anomaly that the American public, widely known among the musical people of Europe, is but little known in her own country.

This condition will be altered during the coming season, for an American pianist, Her American debut will occur Oct. 31, when she will appear with the Thomas orchestra in Chicago. Subsequently she will visit a number of American cities and it is probable that Duluth will be included in her tour. No American ever came home under more pleasant auspices. Honored with numerous decorations and with the praise of the critical and daily press, Europe accompanying her, the beautiful and talented young woman will make her bow to the American public under most fortunate circumstances.

Miss Elvyn was born in Sherman, Tex. At an early age she was brought to Chicago and while yet a child created great interest among musicians by evidence of a mastery of the piano remarkable in one so young. Luckily the recognition of her genius was supplemented by careful instruction. The training was taught to fly, until she might soar alone.

The piece that Miss Elvyn has won for herself cannot help but excite the pride of Americans. The consideration of her technique will be left to the critics who have been lavish enough in their praise of her virtuosity to the great American public will be the fact that this young girl went to Europe a stranger and by the force of her talents commanded the respect of the most critical, made herself a welcome performer at the foot of thrones and disproved the old European theory that the fire of musical genius burns on only one side of the Atlantic. Even those who were most in the great world of music is small will feel like taking off their hats to this splendid American girl who in her own particular field of endeavor has helped to carry the stars and stripes abroad.

DUTY TO THE CONVICT. Everybody's: It does not need any argument to convince fair-thinking men that the state has no right to impair, much less to shatter, the health of those whom it imprisons for their improvement or to safeguard its own welfare. Therefore, it goes without saying that all of our penal institutions should be thrown open to sunlight and pure, fresh air, and that they should be protected against all disease-breeding germs. The work done behind their doors should not be such, in quality nor quantity, nor performed under such conditions and rules as to be injurious to the body, mind and soul of the inmates. Relief from the drudgery and the confinement of toil in the factory may be found in the out-of-door employment offered by a penitentiary farm.

The newer and more enlightened public opinion is everywhere condemning the letting out of convict labor by contract. But, regardless of the question whether or not our prisons are made self-sustaining, we may go still further, without going too far, and say that the goods produced by a convict should be disposed of that they may be given him in the shape of coin of the realm after his release, or may be thrown open to sunlight and pure, fresh air, and that they should be protected against all disease-breeding germs. The work done behind their doors should not be such, in quality nor quantity, nor performed under such conditions and rules as to be injurious to the body, mind and soul of the inmates. Relief from the drudgery and the confinement of toil in the factory may be found in the out-of-door employment offered by a penitentiary farm.

PICTURESQUE BISHOPS OF EPISCOPAL CHURCH

DENTAL SCHOOL IN ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S PARISH HOUSE, NEW YORK, BUILT UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF THE REV. DAVID GREER, NOW BISHOP COADJUTOR OF NEW YORK.

(Copyright, 1907, by Dexter Marshall.)

It is nearly a year now since the Protestant Episcopal church made public its plan to commemorate the planting of the Church of Jamestown, Va., three centuries ago by means of a "Men's Offering." The contributors are to include boys of all ages as well as men connected with the organization, and the aim is not so much to secure large individual giving as to include them all. As October 5, the date set for announcing the result, draws near, it is becoming evident that the offering will be well worth while. It is believed that it will total a million dollars at least, and that no other enterprise of the church is going to suffer from this special one.

The raising of a million-dollar fund, much of it contributed in dimes, nickels and even in one-cent pieces, without cutting in upon anything else, never could have been accomplished without a good deal of effort. And, naturally, the bishops of the Episcopal church are in the front rank of those who have labored to bring about the desired result, with the clergy and laymen supporting them most loyally. As a matter of fact, no movement in this church ever has had a more unanimous endorsement than the Men's Offering of 1907.

Two Great Missionary Bishops.
The presiding bishop, Daniel Sylvester Tuttle of St. Louis, who has taken special interest in the offering, is one of the most interesting men in the United States, entirely apart from his episcopal office. He is 70, and the number seven has been a significant one throughout his whole life. He was born in 1837, was graduated from Columbia in 1857, and at the early age of 30 was consecrated missionary bishop of Montana, Utah and Idaho. In 1867, he served in this place nineteen years, his transfer to the diocese of Missouri coming in 1886. Had he remained only part of a year longer the transfer would have come in 1887; as it was his work in St. Louis was hardly under way before the beginning of that year.

Efficient Talbot, now bishop of Central Pennsylvania, who followed Bishop Tuttle in the inter-mountain missionary field, is by nine years the younger man. Bishop Tuttle, whose diocese now lies west of the Mississippi river, was born in the East, at Windham, Greene county, N. Y. Bishop Talbot, whose post is now in the East, was born west of the Mississippi, at Fayette, Mo. Dartmouth was his college, but, like Tuttle, he got his theological degree at the General Theological Seminary in New York. The number seven is not wholly absent from the salient dates in his career; he was graduated from college in 1870, consecrated missionary bishop in 1887, and transferred to the Central Pennsylvania diocese, the seat city of which is Bethlehem, in 1897. Both these missionary bishops have written instructively and entertainingly about their missionary years—Tuttle in his autobiography and Talbot in the volume entitled "My People of the Plains."

Tuttle is rather stout and short. He is bald and wears a patriarchal beard. Talbot is taller and shaves his face clean. Both know a joke when they see it, both know how to make jokes and neither is prone to be annoyed when the joke is on him. One of the first jokes played on Bishop Tuttle in Wyoming was perpetrated by a friend who happened to live in a new town where the bishop was to speak for the first time. The joke was in the notice of the speaking, which said that "Jung" would be "taken up at the door." This playfulness bothered the bishop at first, but he accepted the explanation that the "only way to get the boys to come out" was to suggest the possibility of a scrimmage.

He played a pretty good joke himself on some poker players that he surprised in a certain camp on his first visit there. He stood looking at them while they "opened" a jack pot, remaining "calmly quiescent" until about 300 was up. Then he put his hand over the pile and "allowed" that they could do no better than to drop the game right there and give the three hundred to the Lord. They knew who the bishop was, had felt ashamed of themselves all along and promptly gave up their wealth.

The Dog-Loving Bishop.
Salt Lake City was Bishop Tuttle's headquarters during seventeen of his nineteen years as a missionary bishop, but he was well known all over this big field, visiting as many places as possible every year and traveling unnumbered thousands of miles on foot, in the saddle and by stage. It was hard work, no doubt, but he didn't mind that; he had learned to work hard while in the seminary, through which he earned his way as tutor and otherwise.

Not a whit less interested in the Men's Offering than these famous former missionary bishops is William Croswell Doane, William of Albany. He is eight years the senior of Bishop Tuttle and a native of Boston. His father, George Washington Doane, was Protestant Episcopal bishop of New Jersey, and the late George Doane, one of his sons, was a noted prelate in the Roman Catholic church, with the title of Monsignor.

The bishop of Albany has long been famous because of his love for dogs; he is the bishop who agreed with Ruskin that the dog's attitude to his master is as reverent as the ideal man's attitude should be to the Almighty. Many good, copy-making stories of Bishop Doane have been told. Once, they say, when he called upon a new comer in Albany who was not at home at the moment a servant told the lady of the house upon her return that "A man named Doane" had called and left his card, adding:

"He had three dogs with him—one of 'em a powerful big one, mum—and he looked like a bit of a sport, to be sure."

The bishop never has admitted the truth of this yarn, but he laughs as heartily as any one when it is told in his presence. The "powerful big dog" mentioned by the servant was a gigantic St. Bernard, which was famous for years. It was the dog's characteristics which led the bishop to make his oft repeated remark about the reverence dogs feel for men. For years the bishop was accompanied on most of his walks by three dogs, the big St. Bernard, some sort of a terrier and a small white and excessively unhand-some bulldog.

Bishop Doane has had charge of the Albany diocese for thirty-eight years; he lacked three years of forty when elect to the place. He looks exactly like an English ecclesiastic, being one of the few bishops on this side of the Atlantic who wear the shovel hat and leggings which form part of the characteristic garb of the Anglican bishop. Bishop Doane's work in Albany has been noteworthy. Although not an especially imposing building, All Saints' Cathedral, which he built there some years ago, is considered the most complete and best appointed church edifice in the United States, as the first church he ever built was one of the quaintest. This was the Northeast Harbor, on Mount Desert Island, on the Maine coast. It was built of slabs and was open to Christians of all denominations, including Catholics and Unitarians, from the adjacent islands. It was known as St. Mary's by the sea, and long since was superseded by a handsome stone church, which included in its features the wooden cross erected many years ago at the chancel end of the original slab-built place of worship.

Bishop Doane is a man of remarkable memory. Attached to the cathedral at Albany there is a girls' school with nearly 300 pupils. It is among his duties to visit the school weekly, when the girls file past him and shake his hand. If one of the pupils is not in the file at any visit he learns the cause and is sure to remember next time to mention it, with such inquiry when she shakes his hand as, "Well, Jane, how is the sore throat that bothered you last week?"

He is very popular with the girls. Once, after a rather prolonged absence abroad, he visited the school a day earlier than he was expected, and the girls jumped upon the tops of their desks and screamed their welcome. The dean of the school doubted whether the bishop would appreciate exactly that style of greeting, and sought to quiet them a bit. But the bishop liked the exuberant way the girls showed they were glad to see him and waved his hand benignly.

"Let them go on, the rogues," he said; "let them go on."

The bishop of Albany includes a keen sense of the humorous in his make-up. On one occasion, when he had a large class to confer with, he sent to a New York bookseller for copies of a well known Episcopal text book, entitled, "A Pure and Contrite Heart," only to receive this postal card by the return mail:

"No Pure and Contrite Heart in stock, nor can one be found in city." The bishop of Albany promptly sent the card to the bishop of New York and asked him if he was aware of the real situation in the most populous diocese in the United States. Bishop Doane has written two or three books and a number of hymns, the most noteworthy of which is "Ancient of Days."

New York's Senior Bishop Picturesque.
Like Bishop Doane, Henry Codman Potter, bishop of New York, is the son of a bishop, his father having been the Rev. Alonzo Potter of Pennsylvania. The present bishop, 72, and was made head of the diocese twenty years ago, succeeding his uncle, Bishop Horatio Potter, whose coadjutor he was. The Potter family is of Quaker origin. It was in 1833, only two years after he had been made a full fledged bishop, that Henry Codman Potter preached a sermon before President Harrison, then in New York in attendance upon the Constitutional centennial, that made the whole country sit up and take notice, and caused much resentment in certain quarters. His subject was political corruption, and, while Bishop Potter has been spoken of as occasionally favoring the rich and powerful, he certainly was not accused of favoring any one in that particular sermon. It was a subject of wondering talk for years. Later he had much to say about the saloons, which brought severe condemnation from the total abstinence folk upon his head, and three years ago he was prominent at the opening of the "Subway Tavern," a novel sort of drinking establishment at the corner of Mulberry and Bleeker streets, near a station of the then newly opened Subway.

The place had half a dozen special features. It was said that it was owned by a company founded on the principle of Earl Grey and his English associates, who started the Central Public House Trust in Great Britain, for the purpose of building up a chain of "good saloons." One Joseph Johnston, Jr., was the proprietor. He included the bishop to be present at the "dedication" of the tavern, along with several other well-known personages. Potter making the chief address. The drinkables served at the Subway Tavern included soda water, as well as beer and whisky, and there was a big lounge room in the basement, furnished with chairs and tables of "mission" type, where free lunch was served with drinks, both hard and soft.

The bishop's connection with this entertainment called forth all manner of protests and not a little ridicule, but he never flinched. Evidently he believed he had performed an act of positive merit in standing up in stock, nor can one be found in city.

The bishop's experiment of establishing a "cathedral mission" or pro-cathedral at Stanton street nine years earlier where he spent two months each summer among the East side poor for several years, received general commendation and, in fact, most of his moves have obtained the seal of popular approval.

He was a leading force in getting the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine under way on Morningside heights, and he has been its mainstay ever since ground was broken for the edifice fifteen years ago. Undoubtedly in future years it will be considered a monument to him, in some degree at least, as he certainly hopes it will be. He is a man of fine figure, erect and polished; an agreeable speaker and always well dressed. He has done many unexpected things, but his attire has always been conventionally itself.

Bishop Potter's second marriage, to the widow of Alfred Corning Clark, the sewing machine millionaire, was celebrated in 1900.

The Bishop a Business Man.

Bishop Potter's coadjutor bishop, David H. Greer, who was advanced from the rectory of St. Bartholomew's—"the Vanderbilt church"—four years ago, is ten or eleven years younger than his ecclesiastical superior, and, perhaps, the most businesslike bishop in America. It was his organizing and administrative capacity, together with a certain all-round level-headedness, that made it possible for him to build the great parish house on Forty-second street for St. Bartholomew's. Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, to be sure, furnished the money, but she never could have done so had not the men of her family, together with most of St. Bartholomew's millionaire members, approved of Dr. Greer's plans.

They knew that with opportunity he could do something exceptional in the institutional church line, and he did not disappoint them. The parish house of St. Bartholomew's speedily became one of the most noted and most useful institutions of its class in this country or any other. Better yet, it was so well founded and organized that it continues to hold its pre-eminence.

Dr. Greer was offered a chance to be bishop of Western Massachusetts several years ago, and also of Rhode Island, but he declined in each case. He is applying business principles as closely as bishop coadjutor as he ever did as rector; he is as thoroughly grown up in the general extension and growth of the Protestant Episcopal church in New York as Bishop Potter is in the erection of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. In Bishop Greer's office there is a big table on which is spread a map of the diocese of New York which strikingly resembles the maps that were a feature of the office of the secretary of war at Washington while the trouble with Spain was on.

Tacks of one color stuck on Greer's map show where flourishing Episcopal churches are located; tacks of another color show where missions have been planted; tacks of a third color show where he thinks churches ought to be established. In the borough of The Bronx, where the churches are too poor to put up parish houses, Bishop Greer has provided one for the benefit of all the churches there.

Both Bishop Potter and Bishop Greer are in favor of using the proceeds of the "men's offering" largely in church extension, perhaps in the business-like way of expending a good proportion of it in the purchase of real estate contiguous to various church sites that may be acquired and holding the property for a rise to be sold ultimately for the benefit of the church. Both also are making every effort to increase the men's membership of their church, and it was because the struggling church of the intersection on Washington Heights, Manhattan, had so largely increased its men's membership that they helped the rector, the Rev. M. H. Gates, in his plan to have his church taking over into "Old Trinity's" great parish. They are interested also in the new organization known as the Vestry auxiliary in the Church of the Intercession which includes the vestry and acts as governing body of the church. It is quite possible that other Episcopal churches may introduce this novel governing body.

Bishop Greer is never ecclesiastical in his dress, nor is he ever pretentious. Once, when he was to confirm a class somewhere, he got into the carriage provided for him, but the driver did not start his horses. Greer finally asked him why he did not drive on. "I'm waiting for the Lord Bishop of New York, sir," replied the Jehu, a recent importation.

"Well," said the bishop, "I'm it. Drive on!"

Far East and Far West.
Two of the most interesting ecclesiastics in the entire country are Charles Scadding, bishop of Portland, Ore., and William Lawrence of Boston, Mass. Bishop Scadding began his clerical career in Toronto, first met Dr. Rainsford, who was so much of a figure in New York for many years, in Canada, and later became one of Rainsford's assistants at St. George's church in the metropolis. Toledo was Scadding's next field. Leavenworth, Ill., his next. He was chosen bishop of Oregon a year or more ago, while serving there. He is a fine organizer and is great on detail. He is a man of wide acquaintance, William H. Crane, the actor, being one of his closest friends. Scadding is a devoted fisherman, a born naturalist and is very popular in his diocese.

Bishop Lawrence comes of the immensely rich mercantile Lawrence family which gave its name to Lawrence, Mass. He is the son of the late Amos Lawrence, and was chosen to succeed the late Bishop Phillips Brooks in 1893. He has a Harvard degree and studied theology at Andover.

It was expected that he would accept some rich church on graduation, and he could have done this easily, for he was known to be a man of unusual talents, in addition to being highly connected. He chose instead to enter the missionary field in Lawrence, where he labored among the working men in the only Episcopal church of the town. Later he became dean of the Cambridge Theological Seminary, holding that place till made a bishop.

The division of Massachusetts into two dioceses was due to his efforts; it had been opposed in the western part of the state, but he overcame the opposition by seeing to it that the new western diocese got $100,000 extra endowment. Bishop Lawrence is 57, is immensely popular with the laymen of his diocese, plays lawn tennis with enthusiasm and has written several books, including a "Study of Phillips Brooks."

Some Interesting Southern Bishops.
The bishop of Louisiana, Davis Sossamon, with headquarters at New Orleans, is one of the younger ecclesiastics, being only 48, and when raised to his present place in 1891, only nine years after his ordination, was the youngest Protestant Episcopal bishop in the United States, then being only 33. He is a native of Houston, Tex., and was educated at the University of the South, Savannah, Tenn. As a student he gave abundant promise that he would be a pupil orator of unusual caliber. This promise has been fulfilled. His sermons are rare combinations of grace and strength, and some years ago, when he spoke before the church congress held at Boston, he completely captured the "Brahmins" of that Yankee center of conservatism and "culture." He is a man of fine presence and is held in extraordinarily high esteem in his own diocese.

The bishop of Dallas, Tex., Alexander C. Garrett, is one of the older ecclesiastics, being 76. He was born in Ballymoe, County Sligo, Ireland, and educated at Dublin University. He served as a curate in Hampshire, England, for three years after his ordination, but in 1859 was sent to British Columbia as a missionary among the Indians, where he did pioneer work quite as thrilling as that done by other Bishop Tuttle or Bishop Talbot.

He remained there eleven years, when he was called to San Francisco in 1870; from there he went to Omaha to be dean of Trinity college, and then, in 1874, was made a missionary bishop again, this time in Northern Texas. He is a man of great breadth, as becomes one of his wide experience, and has written a number of books.

Edison Capers, bishop of South Carolina, celebrated because he was a Confederate general in the Civil war, entered the priesthood in 1867, when he was 30, two years after the close of hostilities, having served as secretary of state for South Carolina in the meantime. He is unique among ecclesiastics, his career having included service in war, politics and the church.

Bishop Satterlee's Institutions.

Henry Y. Satterlee, bishop of Washington, D. C., is best known now for the great cathedral which he hopes to build at the national capital, and which, because it is to be located there, will be national in a sense. As designed by Vaughn of Boston, and Bodley of Liverpool, England, it will be the finest church edifice on this continent, and is to cost from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. Its site overlooks the city. The buildings of the cathedral "quadrant" have been started at an expense of about a million.

Twelve or fifteen years ago, when rector of Calvary church, New York, Satterlee was famous for his institutions which he established on the East side. They included the Galilee Mission, the Olive Tree Inn and a grocery store for the poor of

The law looks pretty weak to the Minneapolis fight promoters. A little thing like a governor's mansion doesn't bother them. Now they come forward and pull off a fight with a dozen deputies at the ringside.

HAS MADE TRIP TO TWIN CITIES IN AUTOMOBILE SEVEN TIMES THIS YEAR

C. H. Davis Tells Best Route to be Followed.

There is Now a Good Road for Entire Distance.

C. H. Davis, Jr., of Duluth is a most enthusiastic automobilist. In his trip, gray Packard runabout, which he describes as "a powerful brute," he has gone nearly all over the state. He has made the trip between the Head of the Lakes and the Twin Cities seven times this year in his Packard and in other years in other cars that he owned. He went down in a car the first time four years ago.

Many automobilists have made the trip from Duluth to the Twin Cities, or have attempted it. Some of them have got off on wrong roads and had no end of trouble. Mr. Davis has made the trip so many times that he is familiar with it and he has consented to give The Herald a guide, which will undoubtedly be of great interest to motorists.

The following is the route to St. Paul that Mr. Davis advocates:

"Go from Duluth to West Duluth and over the hill there, which is only one road over the hill. Keep on the road until the first fork and then turn to the left, going to the left, take the reading: 'Thompson, three miles.' Then swing to the left on a winding road to Thompson. The road in there is rather bad just now. Carlton is two miles beyond Thompson and the distance from Duluth to Carlton is twenty-two miles.

"In Carlton, go past the station and out on the Atkinson road, which is pretty good. Atkinson is a distance of seven miles. Through Atkinson take the first turn to the left, over the track and follow on a rough road to Mahlowa. Stay on the left of the track for a distance of two miles out of Mahlowa and then cross to the right. There is some very pretty scenery in there. Then swing back to the left again, and when a mile and a half out of Mahlowa, swing over the hill at the left into Barnum. Keep to the right on the main street over a bridge and swing to the left, going to the tracks, and then follow the tracks through to Moose Lake. The road is fair.

"At Moose Lake, go past the station and swing to the left for a distance of three blocks, to the lake shore and then to the right and come back to the tracks again. Follow the tracks on the right hand side on a pretty hilly and sandy road to Sturgeon Lake, which is six or seven miles from Moose Lake. From Sturgeon to Willow River, keep on the right hand side of the track. There is a good sandy road. "Through Willow River, stay on the right side, crossing a small bridge and swing to the left when you come to the tracks. Five miles from Willow River to the left, follow the tracks to the river and then swing to the left through the woods. There is a good sandy road. "Out of Rutledge you will find a hilly and winding sandy road. There is a cemetery with a wooden arch over the gate about a mile out of town, which might be borne in mind as a landmark. The road is winding. You cross another bridge and look out for five stumps along there—and then, after going down a big hill, take the first turn to the left and follow for five miles on a good road. Keep on until you come to a sign, which reads: 'Sandstone, seven miles to Rutledge, eight miles. Avoid the road to the right, which leads to Finlayson, over a rough road. Keep on to Sandstone, where the road is good.

"At Sandstone take the government road—it is grown over a little and rocky, but far better than the alternative thoroughfare—to Hinckley, a distance of twelve miles from Sandstone. After eight or nine miles on the government road, swing to the right for two miles, where you cross the other Duluth or St. Paul. "In Hinckley go past the principal hotel and follow the tracks on a sandy road to Mission Creek. Cross the tracks at the station to the right hand side, where you get a ordinary road to Barnum, eleven miles from Hinckley. "At Barnum, do not keep to the straight road at the right, but cross the tracks to the left, where you get a good road to the right and then turn to the left, going for two and a half miles to a good road, which is a little church or a schoolhouse at the left.

"After crossing the government dam take the first turn to the left and then to the right and keep on this until you are within one mile of Back Creek. Then swing to the right for one mile, and before coming to the track, go to the left and you get a good road to Rush City. Rush City is seventy miles from St. Paul. It is a good place to stop over night. If you start late from either Duluth or St. Paul. "In Rush City go past the Grant hotel, down the hill for two blocks, swing to the left for one block and then make a sharp turn to the right. Keep on the road for four miles and then swing sharply to the right where the road is out quite a bit and is sandy. Then cross the tracks and follow on the left for one block and then to the left, where you are within two miles of North Branch, swing away from the tracks to the right and then take the first turn to the left into North Branch.

"Through Forest Lake, swing to the left and then take the first turn to the right. Follow the most used road, first turn swing over to the right and into Forest Lake. The road is bad along there. "Out of Rutledge you will find a hilly and winding sandy road. There is a cemetery with a wooden arch over the gate about a mile out of town, which might be borne in mind as a landmark. The road is winding. You cross another bridge and look out for five stumps along there—and then, after going down a big hill, take the first turn to the left and follow for five miles on a good road. Sheepshead Bay, Sept. 7.—Beacon Light, a 7 to 1 shot, won the Turf Handicap, mile and three-sixteenths yesterday, and in doing so made a new track record for the turf course, by running the distance in 1:22. This is a new record for the turf course, and is a very good one for a horse of his class. The race was won by a neck. Miss Crawford was a length before Acrobat.

Minnesota Has Five Big Games, Four at Home.

Complete Schedules of All the Important College Teams.

Football begins this month. That is, the teams will assemble, the first practices will be held and the men will begin to prepare for their tests on the gridiron, which will come late. Carlisle will be in the field first of all prominent teams, with a game Sept. 21 and Ohio state and Otterbein will play the first Western game Sept. 22, but the members of the big nine will not get into the thick of the fight until some weeks later.

Minnesota will be favored with four of the five games on the Minnesota schedule. The team will play its first scheduled game Saturday, Oct. 12, when it will meet Iowa State at Minneapolis. One week later, Nebraska will be at Minneapolis, Saturday, Nov. 2. Chicago will play the Gophers at Minneapolis, and Nov. 16 the Carlisle Indians will go to battle with Minnesota. The following Saturday, the Minnesota schedule closes with the Gophers at Madison.

Nov. 16 is the date on which the East and West will be pitted against each other for a supreme test. While the Indians and Gophers are playing at Minneapolis, Michigan and Pennsylvania will be competing at Ann Arbor. The Pennsylvania game is the only big one on the Michigan schedule this year, and every effort will be made to retrieve the disastrous defeat of last year.

Chicago has two big games, that with Minnesota and the other with the Indians at Chicago, Nov. 23. Wisconsin plays Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa State and Purdue, while Chicago meets Illinois, Indiana, Purdue, the Indians and Minnesota.

Of all the teams, Carlisle has the hardest schedule, calling for strong opponents and the wear and tear of much traveling. There are twelve games on the Carlisle list, including Harvard, Princeton, Penn, Minnesota and Chicago, including a jump from Boston to Minneapolis.

The Army football managers have made a change this year. The team went against the Navy last year worn out from struggling against strong opponents, so Princeton and Harvard have been dropped. Yale was retained, however, and Cornell added. Harvard has but one game from home, that being at Annapolis.

Harvard does not play Princeton or Pennsylvania; Pennsylvania does not play Yale, nor Yale Harvard; so the only way to compare non-competing elevens is to go by scores against common opponents.

In the East the Indiana will play for the purpose, meeting Pennsylvania, Princeton and Harvard. Pennsylvania plays Brown, and the scores of the three games will be a good index of the relative strength of the teams.

Yale and Cornell have a common opponent in West Point.

In the West Minnesota and Chicago meet, and Minnesota meets Wisconsin. Carlisle will meet both Minnesota and Chicago and Carlisle meets Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania plays Michigan, so the championship of the West will have to be fought at Annapolis.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

SAMMY'S HAIRBREADTH ESCAPE FROM THE INDIANS.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

A great many years ago when the states lying west of the Mississippi river were still in a very wild, uncivilized state, there were many venturesome men who took their families into the new country to find homes. They remained as close to the outer line of civilization as was possible, but that did not make them secure from danger, for to the westward were roving Indian tribes that occasionally went on the war-path, raiding the frontier settlements and often massacring the entire population, even to the children and infants.

Among the early settlers of Central Kansas there was a family by the name of Green. Their only child, a little boy of ten, was named Samuel—Sammy for short. Their home was a rude log cabin on the bank of a very pretty and well-wooded river, and much of the time was spent by Sammy and his mother fishing. Their table was supplied by game and fish, the only meat the settlers had except on an occasional day of bacon brought from the "trading post" (a small town of a few dozen houses situated on the old Santa Fe trail).

And so the summer days passed, Sammy and his mother fishing, working the garden, and picking wild grapes and gooseberries, while Sammy's father worked in the fields, preparing provender for the coming winter. And throughout the entire spring, summer, and first fall month, there was not the sign of an Indian. Indeed, the settlers now supposed themselves safe from the red men, for the government had taken a strong stand in regard to the Indian, his territory and his annuity, and amicable relations were supposed to exist between the pale-face and his brother.

One day late in September Mr. Green decided to go to the "trading post" for some necessary farming implements. As the town was some distance away he could not possibly return before evening. He made an early start, being well on the way before the sun was up. Sammy and his mother got through with their small household duties, picked the cow in fresh grass, plucked a trough of water from her, gave feed and water to the chickens and pigs for the day, dressed themselves in their Sunday best and started for a neighbor's farm some three miles distant. It was their intention to visit there for the day, Mr. Green coming for them with the wagon as soon as he should return home.

The forenoon passed pleasantly enough. Mrs. Green and the neighbor talking while they sewed and the boys playing "Indian" in the yard. But they found the confines of the yard too small for their exciting game and wandered off toward the river, which was about half a mile distant.

They had played for some time when suddenly George, one of Sammy's young hosts, stopped in the midst of the game and shading his eyes with his hands, looked toward the West. "As sure as I'm a foot high," he exclaimed, "there are Indians! See 'em coming over that rise yonder! And I do believe they've got war paint on 'em."

Sammy and Fred, the latter being George's brother, looked in the direction of George's pointing finger. And there, sure enough, coming over a slight rise of ground were a dozen or more Indians, riding single file. But at that distance it was quite impossible to ascertain about their plans. George had vivid imagination and fancied he could see the signs of war on the faces and half-naked bodies of the red men even at a distance.

"We must run for our lives!" cried George. "We've got to go like grown-ups. Lightning, too, for if they see us they'll whip up their ponies and come like a prairie fire."

There was nothing more said, George making the start for home with Sammy and Fred following. They ran, half-bent, through the rank grass and tall sunflowers, dodging their forms low to the ground and never looking back. But the view of the Indians. But the Indian's eye is a night-visioned one, and it is said he can see a ground squirrel running through the grass a mile away.

And there, sure enough, coming over a slight rise of ground were a dozen or more Indians.

However true or untrue this assertion may be it is a fact that no human being—of any race—can hide himself from the keen and watchful eye of a red man unless he is covered by something more than prairie grass and sunflowers. So it was that the three boys had scarcely gone a dozen steps, dodging from clump to clump of sunflowers, and half-crawling in the grass, when the eyes of the Indians caught them.

And the boys, now thoroughly frightened, saw that they had been discovered. "What can we do?" hoarsely whispered Sammy, lying flat on his belly and beginning to crawl towards a bunch of protecting sunflowers.

"Git for the house as fast as we can," answered George. "We've been seen, so there's no use wasting precious time trying to hide ourselves. Come, let's run as fast as we can right in the open."

Sammy, to his horror, saw George straighten up and start afresh towards the house, and Fred followed his example. But not so with Sammy. He could see that the Indians were urging their ponies to swifter speed and were making a direct line towards the boys, aiming to cut in between them and the house. Sammy remained on his belly, crawling from bunch to bunch of sunflowers, but instead of going after his fleeing comrades he vented his fury towards the ground about him. He crawled right up to the point where he thought now was to hide inside a little cave that led into a ledge of rock which overhung one bank of the river. The place was not far away and he felt that he could reach there and be secure, for the Indians would turn their attention to his running comrades and doubtless forget that there had been a third boy. But in the event of their remembering him, and trying to pursue him, they would just search about in the weeds and grass, never thinking to look for him down about the river.

Sammy succeeded in reaching the ledge of rock, but before creeping into the cave—which had always been a source of mystery and menace to him till now—he turned about and peered through the underbrush that skirted the river bank. He could see the house of the Friends very plainly, and knew that his mother and Mrs. Friends had seen the approaching Indians, for the door and the windows on the side of the house that he knew her by the color of her dress—running out to meet George and Fred, doubtless wondering what had become of her own, little son. He saw her stop to speak to the boys, then on she came towards the sunflowers where George had evidently told her Sammy was hiding.

George and Fred went on home, but the Indians were galling on them and threatened to cut them off from safety. Seeing his poor distracted mother running right into danger brought Sammy to his senses, and he quickly came out to a point where he might see him. With a loud whistle he called her attention to his location, and waved his arm for her to go back to the house. But this the mother did not do. She came on and on towards the spot where her precious boy was hiding, although she must have known that she would be overtaken within a few minutes—even before she could reach him—by the rapidly-riding Indians. George and Fred in some miraculous way, reached their home and Sammy could see the door open to receive them after which it closed quickly.

So now there was Sammy's poor mother alone exposed to the red danger, for Sammy was so near to the cave that he could slip from sight instantly and crawl back around the cave's curve and be safe from prying eyes. And George and Fred were safe within four walls with their mother who had a good shot gun which she knew how to use if called upon to do so to protect her children, herself and her home.

Sammy now regretted from the very depths of his heart that he had not gone out with his comrades, for he had not been able to gain the house and safety and have prevented his dear mother running such risks as she was now doing for his sake.

The Indians did just what Sammy feared they would do; they came rushing up to his mother and surrounded her. She paused and looked from one red-skin to another, making imploring gestures with hands and eyes. Then, turning her face towards Sammy—but not looking in his direction, she called out: "Hush, hush, hush, in the cave. Make no outcry. If I'm carried off help father to follow after me. But run into no danger yourself." Of course the Indians did not know that the poor woman was speaking to her little son some two hundred yards distant. They supposed she was making some plea for mercy. One of the Indians rode round and round her, making some talk with the others who stood a still. Then stooping down he pointed towards a brightly-colored ribbon she wore in a bow at her throat. Quickly the anxious woman tore it off and presented it to the Indian, who evidently was a chief. He took the bit of color and fastened it to his head dress which was composed of wild birds' feathers. Then, seeming well pleased with his new adornment, he opened his mouth and pointed down his throat, afterward turning his eyes on the farm house and making a motion of drinking. Sammy's mother nodded her head and spoke a few words in an Indian tongue which meant: "Come, friends, you shall have to eat and drink." It proved that the words she spoke belonged to these Indians' language, for the leader replied to her, though she could not quite understand what he said, only knowing the meaning of a few words that she spoke. But the Indians drew their horses apart and motioned her to go to the house, they accompanying her. At the door she was let in and immediately the door was closed in the Indians' faces. But from the window she, in company with Mrs. Friends, handed out milk and bread and other food, such as they had on hand. The Indians ate and drank greedily, after which they signified their desire to enter the house. But Mrs. Green and her hostess quickly barred the small window, motioning to the Indians as they did so to depart. But the red-skins, however, for the leader, on a sudden from outside might be expected. She merely fired into open space to let the enemy know that fire-arms were in the house and people there were aware how to use them.

Well, the report of that gun was sufficient. The way these Indians rode away from that farm house was a sight. But to Sammy's dismay, they straight to the river and stepped not twenty feet from his cave. In fact, one Indian dismounted and came right to the cave's entrance, jabbering in his strange tongue as he thrust his head inside to look about. Sammy, round a little curve in the cave, and lying prone on his face, held his breath. He was wild with fear, for he was afraid that his feet might still be in sight. But after a few minutes he had the satisfaction of hearing the savage hand ride away, fording the river at a point a little above where he lay. Then he could hear them going on southward, and knew they must be bound for the Indian Territory. But though Sammy knew the Indians were now far away and could not see him should he come from his hiding place, he was so frightened that he remained in the black, close little cave till a deeply-loved voice called at the entrance: "Come out, darling. It's only mother!" And then, stifled in every joint, Sammy crept, feet foremost, from his hiding place.

"That's what I call a hairbreadth escape," he panted to his mother as she kissed him greedily.

"And now we'll go to the house and enjoy the good dinner Mrs. Friends is preparing for us," said Mrs. Green. "I fancy we'll all eat with a good appetite, now that the excitement and danger are passed."

"I'll not eat with an appetite till papa comes with his gun," said Sammy. "But, by cracky, mamma, it's too bad you had to give that old Indian your pretty ribbon bow. We'll have to get you another one when we go to the trading post."

Sammy Tankee.

He was a queer little Chin-ee. He wore a long queue, wore his back. His name was Sammy Tankee. And his shirt hung loose like a sack.

His papa did wash-ee wash, wash All day at a very big tub. The kids would splutter and foam, As the elder Tankee would rub-rub.

And little Tankee said each day: "I shall grow up as fast as I can. And soon be big like papa. And become a rich wash-ee wash man."

Naughty Little Silly.

Little Silly plays in school, And never learns a lesson. She whippers, too, against the rule. Oh, it is most distressful!

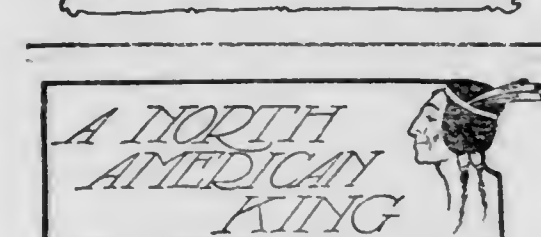

At home she pouts and sulketh in, And her mother she annoys. Not one thing doeth she do to please, She spoils and breaks her toys.

She cries for sweet cake every day, And frowns on bread and milk. She says she hates her cotton frocks, And wishes they were silk.

Oh, she is a most trying child! As naughty as can be. 'Tis hoped the girls who read this tale Are not so bad as she.

A small black bear Met a small black boy. They both opened their eyes in fear. They both turned & ran As fast as they could. Each saying, "I've No business here!"

Over three hundred years ago one of the many kings of the North American continent ruled over that part of the country now known as California. His name—given to him by the Englishmen who found him—was Hiah. Now, a great many would call Hiah a Chief, but in the land where he reigned he was indeed a king, as were all the other great chiefs of the numerous Indian tribes.

When Sir Francis Drake landed in California he found there a very friendly tribe of red men governed by Hiah. So pleased were these simple people with the coming of Drake and his men that they gave over their beautiful land to them. They thought the blue-eyed and fair-skinned men to be gods from the other world, the world that they called the "Happy Hunting Ground."

But after a few weeks visit in this strange land Drake and his men sailed away to hear the tidings of their great discovery to Queen Elizabeth in England. And the red men were left to mourn for the gods whom they had hoped would remain with them forever and govern them and heal all their sick, as only gods could do.

And Hiah, that trusting, friendly king, or chief, did not live to see his people conquered by a heartless white race that seemed to forget that this great country belonged to the red men. He doubtless thought that the gods who had so honored him by their presence for a few weeks were too good to exist on common soil, and had therefore betaken themselves again to that mystic realm somewhere in the clouds.

How Pussy Earned Her Board and Keep.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

One morning in the early spring Frankie and May found a wee grey kitten in the road as they were on their way to school. Frankie took the poor mewling little wail in his arms and stroked its silky fur, saying: "Now, little Miss Pussy, what shall we do with you? It is almost school time and we cannot return home with you, for in that case we should be late to school, and that would never do. And it is out of the question to take you to school, for Teacher would not permit you in the room; I would make the pupils laugh, you know. So, we must do with you? We certainly aren't going to leave you in the road to die or be run over by some wagon."

The little kitten listened to Frankie's reasoning and seemed to understand the problem of disposing of it; but all it said in its own foreign lingo was, "Mew, mew, mew!" But the manner of its saying "mew" was quite enough to touch the heart of anyone; and Frankie and May's hearts were very easily touched, too. So Frankie said to his sister:

"Why don't we drop her in Miss Clark's house and ask her to keep this little tramp till we come along from school in the afternoon?"

"A good idea," acquiesced May. "And you'd better let me carry the little dear, for girls know so much more about kittens and lilies and dolls than boys do." Frankie reluctantly delivered Miss Pussy into the arms of his sister, and they hastened on their way, soon dropping out of the big road into a lane which led to the home of a quaint old maiden lady by the name of Miss Clark. The old lady was on the porch of her pretty farm house when the children came up, and it was not long till the kitten had changed hands. Miss Clark kindly agreeing to keep it and feed it during the day.

That evening when Frankie and May stopped at Miss Clark's for their new possession—the stray kitten—they found it sound asleep on a mat in the sun, so full of good rich milk that it could hardly move itself. "It's a fine cat," declared Miss Clark, smiling on the little grey ball as it slept. "It's been a gluttonous, I'll admit, but circumstances almost forced that. You see, a kitten so small as this one must have something to eat very often, and evidently it has been without food during the whole night, and in that starved condition it over-ate. But it is young yet, and must learn manners later. It will grow up to be a great help to you on the farm. I can tell from its shape and general appearance that it will earn its board and keep."

Frankie and May were pleased to hear Miss Clark speak in such praise of their new-found pet, and after thanking her sincerely for her great kindness to them and their kitten they hurried home.

"Oh, my dear, what did you bring that kitten here for?" asked the mother on beholding the little furry creature held so closely in May's arms. "You know we have no real need of a cat, for the traps keep us well supplied with mice, and Sport catches any rats that might bother the corn cribs or the chicken coops. So, what use can we have of a cat?"

"Well, mamma, we may not need the kitten, but—the kitten will be great need of us," said May. "You see, we found it mewling in the road this morning, and we couldn't leave it to starve or get killed. It has no home so we've got to give it one."

May's mother blessed her and replied indignantly: "You are a dear good-hearted little daughter. And my boy is just as good," she added, turning to Frankie. "So, since the kitten must needs have a home, and ours is a good one, let it be welcome. But you must not neglect it, my dear children. I shall leave its care to you. It must be fed and kept clean of fleas, you know."

"Oh, we'll watch it all right," declared Frankie. "Besides, it may prove to be of great value to us, for Miss Clark says it's a specimen of cat, and will prove worth its board and keep."

The mother laughed as she went on with her preparations for supper, and the children took the kitten late the back yard to introduce it to Sport, the dog. "He must be taught to understand that this rovin is shared by a newcomer, and that he must be friendly with the joiner," declared Frankie.

And so the spring had worn away, and the summer had followed it, until fall setting in. But the kitten was no longer at the home of Frankie and May. A great cat by name "Pussy" was there now. And, as you may have guessed, this same Pussy had once been that little kitten.

That was found one morning on the roadside crying: "Mew, mew, mew-w-w!" How she had grown one could hardly guess. When Pussy was three months old she was so fine and big that Frankie and May had given her a birthday party, having Miss Clark, several of the neighbor children, old Sport, and the canary. Pussy had been taught to recognize the rights of the canary just as Sport had been taught to recognize the rights of Pussy.

But now, in her seventh month, Pussy had done nothing to show that she was earning her board and keep, as Miss Clark had predicted she would do. To be sure, she was a great pet and spoiled the children a lot of pleasure. And Sport had found her very companionable after the first few days of antagonistic spitting and claw-showing. But she had never been seen with a mouse, nor had she shown any disposition to guard the chickens from the hawks that came down to menace them, although both Frankie and May had repeatedly tried to train her to do so.

And so she had arrived at a pretty good age without having done anything to cover herself with glory. She was a nice, sleek, good-natured and affectionate cat. And that was about all one could say for her. Nevertheless, she was a decided favorite, and no one thought her in the way or begrudged her the sweet milk she drank or the bits of meat she ate.

However, there came a time when Pussy proved herself well worthy the splendid home she had been made a member of.

It was a September night, cool and clear. But owing to the frost in the air Pussy had been given a snug place in the cellar to sleep. And when Frankie and May put her bed there they thought it a fine place for her as the mouse trap had been down there so long that the mice had grown to know it held great peril for them, and in consequence they had stopped looking at the nice sweet cheese placed in the trap so temptingly, but satisfied themselves with nibbling at the crumbs that were put on the numerous shelves in the cellar.

After being left alone for a time Pussy decided to go about on an exploring expedition. She did not run away, but very long, however, for a queer, smothering odor filled her nostrils. In the corner where Frankie and May had fixed her bed there was a stream of something black bearing itself toward the ceiling. And shortly afterward a little tongue of red, glowing and giving light to the cellar, leaped after the vaporous cloud that was growing and filling the entire room. Now, Pussy knew that something was wrong, and radically wrong, too. She found it hard to breathe and something made her eyes sting. She went up the cellar steps at a bound and began meowing justly and scratching at the door which held her a prisoner. How long she scratched and meowed she had no way of knowing, of course, but it probably seemed a long time to her in that densely smothering atmosphere.

Now, May's room was right at the head of the stairs on the second floor, and the cellar which Pussy fought so hard to get out of was directly beneath the stairs and opened into the first-floor hall. As May slept she

He opened the cellar door to be met by Pussy, half suffocated, and a volume of smoke.

Two Old Proverbs:

dreamed she heard some one knocking at her door. Then she dreamed Pussy was at her side meowing. She awoke with a start and sat up in bed to make out what the noise was that seemed to come from the hall down stairs. Yes, she could hear it plainly. It was Pussy meowing with all her might and scratching and throwing her body against the frail wooden door of the cellar stairs. May bounded out of bed and ran into her mother's room, saying: "Pussy is fighting to get out. I'm afraid a big rat has got into the cellar and has had a fight with her, injuring her badly, maybe. Come, mamma, and go with me to let Pussy out."

"Oh, it's just Pussy's dislike to her new quarters," laughed May's mother. "But since you will be worried all night unless we let her out—But, what's that? It sounds like smoke!" And in another instant both of May's parents were hurrying down the stairs with May and Frankie in the rear.

Frankie, whose room adjoined his parents', was awakened by their excited voices and had sprung out of bed to ascertain what was the matter. "It's coming from the cellar!" exclaimed the children's father, and he opened the cellar door to be met by Pussy, half suffocated, and a volume of smoke. And then it was found that quite a fire was burning in the corner close to the stove ashes that the servant had carelessly dumped there. The ashes had evidently contained some live coals that had ignited a pile of old lumber and papers.

It required the combined efforts of both parents and children to extinguish the flames, and to restore order once more in the cellar.

"If that fire had got another ten minutes start of us," said the father, "it would have been impossible for us to have saved the house. It had almost reached the well-seasoned fire-wood a few feet away. Once that had got started the entire house must have burned to the ground."

"And it might have cost the lives of some of us, had we been sound asleep," admonished the mother, resting from her labors, her face covered with grime and perspiration. "You see, it would have set us off from the stairs and the smoke would have suffocated us. My, what a narrow escape!"

"And did you stop to think to whom we owe our escape?" asked May. "None other than dear old Pussy. She awoke me by her scratching so furiously on the door and meowing so loudly. So we owe our lives, maybe, to her. And surely, we owe to her our nice and comfortable home."

"Which all goes to show that Miss Clark knew what she was talking about when she said Pussy would yet make herself well worth her board and keep."

Long life and much good milk to old Pussy, say!" And the meows and May joined Frankie's enthusiastic praise of old Pussy who had that night, all unwittingly, been the means of saving the lovely home, and human life, perhaps. And from that night to the present day old Pussy has been the favorite four-legged member of the household. And it is safe to say that she cannot understand why she is made so much of by the family and the family's friend, especially old Miss Clark who will insist on saying, "I told you so."

Irish Wit.

O'Rourke's employer became talkative about his success in the day, telling the jolly Irishman that his forefathers came over in the Mayflower.

"Winn was that, please, sir?" asked O'Rourke, much interested. The Mayflower descendant gave the date, to which O'Rourke replied with a poor disguise of contempt. "Winn, sir, wasn't it your pardon, yer family was a mere mushroom of yesteryear. I lately seen inside of a family pedigree that filled hundreds of pages, and near the middle of it it says: 'About here the Lord created Adam.'"

JAPANESE INVESTIGATOR WITNESSES THE REAL THING

Came to America to Investigate Anti-Japanese Outrages.

Is Involved in Fierce Rioting at Vancouver, B. C.

International Complications May Arise From the Trouble.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 9.—A dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer from Vancouver, B. C., says:

Following a riot Saturday evening, in Vancouver, in which Chinatown and the Japanese quarters were raided and damage done amounting to $15,000, a further demonstration occurred later in which Kishi Kiro Ishii, chief of the bureau of foreign commerce and head of the Japanese consular service and Consul Naburo Hisamitsu of Seattle, were the central figures and in which riot a number of people were bruised and injured by broken bottles and flying bricks in the hands of a frenzied mob. Baron Ishii and Consul Hisamitsu finally made their escape from the mob and the affair was immediately cabled to Tokyo.

Coincident with the riot was the arrival of a steamship having on board at least 500 Japanese. With a common impulse the mob surged to the water front and as soon as the Japanese came down the gangplank, they were met by the rioters. Seven or eight of the Japanese were unceremoniously picked up and thrown into Burrard inlet.

Still further rioting occurred when a crowd of about 4,000 laborers started on the war path, but were finally quelled by the police after about twenty arrests had been made.

Last night Chinatown was roped off and the quarters of the Orientals guarded by the police. Baron Ishii gave out an interview and stated he had cabled to Ambassador Kaneko at London appraising him of the stirring events here.

Indemnity from the city to the amount of $25,000 has been offered. Mayor Bethune declares the indemnity will not be paid and the affair will be taken up with the Dominion government.

Saturday night's rioting was the worst in the history of Western Canada. International complications are looked for.

New York, Sept. 9.—Akikuro Ishii, the director of the commercial bureau of the Japanese foreign office, who was involved in the anti-Japanese riot at Vancouver, came to this

"CLOSED DOOR" ASSOCIATION

Which Conducts Camp Meeting Bitterly Opposed by Residents.

Ocean Grove, N. J., Sept. 9.—Property owners and lease holders here to the number of 200 have held a mass meeting to protest against the "closed door" policy of the camp meeting association, which denies them representation in the organization. Its meetings are for the purpose of taking up and framing the grievances the residents declare they have suffered for years under the rule of what Rev. Mr. Boswell terms "a religious oligarchy."

At the meeting the Rev. J. I. Boswell, the leader of the protestants, was successful in having a committee named for the purpose of taking up and framing the grievances the residents declare they have suffered for years under the rule of what Rev. Mr. Boswell terms "a religious oligarchy."

Resolutions adopted demand a complete financial report for the last decade.

FISHERY TREATY THE SAME AS LAST YEAR.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The modus vivendi to regulate fishing by Americans in the treaty waters of Newfoundland, which was concluded in London by an exchange of notes between Ambassador Reid and the British foreign office, was made public yesterday by Acting Secretary of State Adee.

Mr. Reid's note, reciting the agreed terms of the modus vivendi, is dated Sept. 4 and the British reply, while dated Sept. 6, was not delivered to Ambassador Reid until Saturday night. The modus, so arranged, is in terms and fact a substantial renewal of last year's arrangement.

Pizarro, in the chamber, made the charge that the revolutions in the provinces were fostered by certain senators, among the president of the senate, hence the challenge.

TOM JOHNSON,
Mayor of Cleveland, Who Will Have the Fight of His Life for Re-election, Being Opposed by Congressman Burton, Who Has the

ADVANCE IN WAGES

In Principal Industries in 1906, Shown by Labor Bureau.

Retail Prices of Food Also Advanced in That Period.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The annual investigation of the bureau of labor into wages and the retail prices of food, the report on which has just been placed in the hands of the printer, shows that in the principal manufacturing and mechanical industries of the country average wages per hour in 1906 were 4.5 per cent higher than in 1905, the regular hours of labor per week were 0.5 per cent lower, and the number of employees in the establishments investigated was 7 per cent greater. The average full-time weekly earnings per employee in 1906 were 3.9 per cent greater than in 1905.

During 1906 wages were increased generally in nearly all industries, forty of the forty-one industries covered by the investigation showing some increase. The greatest increase was in the manufacture of cotton goods, where the average wages per hour in 1906 were 11.2 per cent higher than in 1905. In the manufacture of electrical apparatus and supplies the increase was 10.1 per cent. In street and sewer work done by contract the increase was 8.7 per cent; in iron and steel, Bessemer converting, 8.5 per cent; and in the manufacture of iron and steel, 8.4 per cent. In the manufacture of bar iron the increase in wages per hour was 6.9 per cent, and in the building trades 6.1 per cent. Briefly stated, two industries showed a decrease.

MIDDLE WEST MAY CONTROL

Great Trade With South America if Waterway is Built.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—"The great Middle West will control the trade of the entire west coast of South America, when the Panama canal is completed, providing the deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf is constructed. Otherwise it will be Japan, Germany and England which will exercise away over this vast empire to be opened up."

This statement was made yesterday by John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics, who has been in Chicago for several days conferring with men interested in the deep waterway proposition. It is his contention that the federal government should lend all the aid necessary for the construction of this ship canal to make the great advantages of the Panama canal available to the Mississippi valley.

Barrett said: "It is not excessive to estimate the value of the products which these republics will then be purchasing from foreign countries at $500,000,000. The major portion of these supplies will come from America. If the great manufacturing centers of the Middle West are provided with water transportation, it requires no stretch of imagination to connect boats or barges loaded in Chicago, Joliet or other points, making the entire trip, America has been slow to improve its waterways, much more so than any other of the great powers, and it is time we woke up to the advantages to be obtained."

OPERATORS ARE UNEASY

Demand Men Now Working Under Contracts be Called Out.

Matter Will be Settled at Meeting on Monday Evening.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—A meeting will be held tonight by the members of the C. T. U. A. to consider the calling out of the operators now employed in the brokers and newspaper offices of this city, and the men working on leased wires.

Yesterday a petition was in circulation among the members of the organization, demanding that the officers call out these men, regardless of the existence of contracts or agreements signed since the commencement of the strike.

The petition says in effect that the signers deem it necessary "that every member of the union be called upon to cease work immediately, notwithstanding any contract which has been signed, believing that any contract made that compels one brother to work to the disadvantage of another is better broken than kept."

Prompt action is demanded of the union officials in calling out the men. The program to be followed will be settled at the meeting tonight.

HEIRESS TO MARRY GREEK

Girl Who Adopted Grecian Fads to Wed a Poet.

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 9.—Miss E. Palmer, daughter of Mrs. Robert Abbe of New York, will be married here today to Angelo Sikelianus, a Greek, who won recognition in this country for his poems and philosophical writings.

The marriage is causing interest, not only because of the union of the American girl and the Greek poet, but because of the social prominence of the bride's family, and her own unconventional ideas in the matter of dress.

Possessed of an independent fortune in her own right, Miss Palmer has traveled much. On her last voyage she returned from Europe, Aug. 31, aboard the Lorraine, and was the most observed person in the crowded first cabin because her attire was that of a Greek maid of the days when Greece was the home of art and literature.

Clad in the loose robe of Tyrian purple, cinched just above the hips with a loose belt, and wearing sandals on her bare feet, Miss Palmer had to bear constant curious scrutiny from her fellow-passengers. She told her friends that she had adopted her unusual attire principally because of its comfort and her belief that it was the most healthful.

STEAMER ASHORE.

The San Gabriel Aground in Fog and Will be Total Loss.

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—The steamer San Gabriel, which sailed from San Pedro day before yesterday for Umpqua in ballast, ran ashore on the point of the bay today during a heavy fog. It is believed that the vessel will be a total loss.

The San Gabriel carried a crew of fifteen men. The San Gabriel was in command of Capt. Green, who preceded Capt. Doran of the ill-fated Columbia.

FARMERS ARE HAVING A HARD TIME TO GET HELP.

Will Give $500 Per Day to Help Them.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—"The great Middle West will control the trade of the entire west coast of South America, when the Panama canal is completed, providing the deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf is constructed. ## WIDESPREAD DEMAND MAY CAUSE ROOSEVELT TO RUN

THE FAMOUS CLIFF HOUSE,
Located on the Coast at San Francisco, Burned to the Ground Early Sunday Morning.

FRENCHMEN REQUESTED

To Revoke the Order of Expulsion Against American.

Paris, Sept. 9.—The American embassy has formally requested the French government to revoke its order of expulsion in the case of James Norton Winslow of New York, who recently was given twenty-four hours notice to leave France for alleged violation of the gambling laws in connection with the new club at Dinard. Mr. Winslow claims he did not manage the club, but merely innocently served on the entertainment committee. When the authorities of Dinard took steps to close the club Mr. Winslow was not granted a hearing and he went to London, where he consulted with Ambassador Reid, who officially communicated on the subject with Mr. White, the American ambassador here. Foreign Minister Pichon has instructed the proper authorities to make thorough investigation of all the circumstances in the case.

O'LEARY'S 1,000-MILE ENDURANCE WALK.

Cincinnati, Sept. 9.—During the night Dan O'Leary, the old time champion pedestrian, continued steadily his endurance test of walking one thousand miles in 1,000 consecutive hours at Norfolk, a Cincinnati suburb. Notwithstanding his 63 years, O'Leary, with all his might, quick as lightning he seized his wrist with her left hand, dropped her pistol, and gave the burglar a blow on the point of the jaw that knocked him sprawling.

When he, dizzy and cowed, slowly got on his feet, Miss Jeanette, almost within arm's length, had him covered with her pistol.

Aroused by the struggle, Jacobus, his wife and three children ran in the room. Jacobus led out the burglar, very subdued and sheepish, and tied him so securely to a tree that he was as helpless as a mummy. In the morning the rope which circled him was found cut at the foot of the tree; an accomplice had waited while he entered the house.

GIVES UP HIS SHOOTING IRON

Baltimore Man Feared That He Would Shoot Himself.

New York, Sept. 9.—Lieut. Thomas Flannery, on duty in the Central park arsenal police station, was startled last night when a well-dressed man walked up to the desk, placed a loaded revolver on the desk and said:

"Please take this. I am not feeling just right, and am afraid I might kill myself."

The man said he was Emil Rosenthal of Baltimore, that he had lost his business, and that he had preyed on him to such an extent that for a time his mind became a blank.

When he came to his senses he was on a bench in the park.

When taken to the night court, Rosenthal promised the magistrate that he would not kill himself, and that he wished to go back to Baltimore, where he had a wife and several children. He was discharged.

"We have organized a company at Verona to establish a plant here, if we can get some practical light on the question. I am at the head of the organization, and we don't want to go off half-cocked on anything. We are anxious to get all the facts before us, and if there is a prospect of making a success of the enterprise we intend to tackle it."

"Congressman Marshall has furnished me with some facts, including the addresses of men who manufacture machinery for such plants. I am anxious to get in touch with Senator Hansbrough, and, if possible, to have him address the people of Verona on the denatured alcohol question. As I understand, he has more detailed information on the subject than any man in the Northwest."

"The proposition has a favorable appearance to us, and if there is anything in the much advertised idea, we are anxious to take advantage of it. We are especially interested in the growth and experiments being made with the new brand of potatoes, imported from Germany, said to possess exceptional alcohol producing qualities."
